High-Tension Wires Should Be Halted: Planners

The Hoffman Estates Plan Commission Monday will urge the village board to take a stand against above-ground installation of high-tension electric wires along the south side of the Northwest Tollway.

The commission also will recommend Commonwealth Edison Co. install the lines underground, suggesting the public is willing to pay for the additional expense.

"The concept of placing these transmission lines above ground south of the tollway is detrimental to the residents in the immediate area . . . Placing these lines above ground south of the tollway encroaches on homes, a golf course, a park and a school," according to a recommendation drafted Wednesday night by the commission.

"We would urge the village board to take a stand at this time, and urge that Commonwealth Edison Co. place these lines underground," the recommendation states.

THE COMMISSION listed seven facts found during its session Wednesday with two representatives of ComEd as well as spokesmen for homeowners along the proposed cable route. These are:

— "Commonwealth Edison is in the concept stage only."

— "A certificate of convenience and necessity has not been applied for from the Illinois Commerce commission."

— "Alternate concepts are being considered by Commonwealth Edison."

— "The cost of the overhead lines is estimated at $200,000 for installation south of the tollway (plus easement costs) and $400,000 north of the tollway (plus easement costs)."

— "Northern Illinois Gas Co. has not been contacted on this concept of installation on their easement south of the tollway."

— "Utility use is not exempt in all village ordinances, although it is exempt from zoning in Cook County."

— "Homeowners adjacent to the south of the tollway are unalterably opposed to the above-ground concept in their area."

The village board also is to receive a finding of facts and a recommendation from its attorneys, although it is not known whether these will be ready by Monday night. These are to inform the board as to what legal powers it might have in taking the stand recommended by the plan commission, and in enforcing it.

Forces Girl To Drive Him For 2 Hours

A young nurse's aide was forced to drive through the area for more than two hours Wednesday night after a man jumped into her car while she was stopped at an intersection in Schaumburg.

Police said the incident occurred at Meacham and Algonquin Roads at about 8:30 p.m. They said a man in his 20s forced his way into the woman's northbound auto while she was stopped for a traffic signal.

The man then ordered her to drive, giving instructions along the way. Apparently the woman was not molested during the incident, police said.

On several occasions, police said, the woman ordered the man from the auto, but he refused to leave. The intruder was not armed, according to police reports.

After driving for nearly 2½ hours, the man ordered the woman to drive down a narrow gravel road.

When the car reached the end of the road, the man left the auto and disappeared on foot. The woman then reported the incident, police said.

Two detectives have been assigned to the investigation.

If the man is arrested, Schaumburg police said he faces possible charges of unlawful restraint and criminal trespass.

Cookie Sale Nets $23

A cookie sale netted $23.50 in profit for the Cancer Leukemia Research Foundation, said Dirksen School sixth grade teacher Charmain Cahoon of Schaumburg.

Miss Cahoon said her students and those in the classes of teachers Bill Ondratschek and Pat Cassidy baked cookies at home and then sold them during lunch time at the school.

Students Sew Pillows For Elgin Elderly

Hand stitched and stuffed pillows made by two fifth grade classes for patients in a convalescent home, were part of the student's study of health.

Mrs. Barbara Oas, teacher at Dirksen School in Schaumburg, said the project started when her students discussed a unit on responsibility.

"The girls decided making pillows completely by hand for the Day Break Nursing Home in Elgin was a good idea," said Mrs. Oas.

Another fifth grade teacher, Miss Linda Covich and her students, joined the project. Together the students stitched 26 pillows which they delivered to the home this week. The pillows had smiling Raggedy Ann faces embroidered on them.

Mrs. Oas said both patients and students enjoyed the visit.

PROMINENTLY PROMENADING, Hoffman Estates Park District residents are put through the paces by teenage square dance caller Cliff Benson. He has been working throughout the Chicago area for several years and now runs the new park district program.

'Swing Your Partner' Takes On A Rock 'n' Roll Flavor

Dancers Promenade To Parks' Beat

by STEVE BROWN

There is a small, but active minority group organizing in Hoffman Estates. Members hold weekly meeting and practice strategic moves under the direction of a young, but experienced leader.

However, there is nothing to fear from this faction. There is no need to barricade your doors or keep your children off the streets.

The 16-member group comprises one of the newest programs offered by the Hoffman Estates Park District — square dancing.

Led by 16-year-old caller Cliff Benson, the group has been meeting weekly this fall to learn the fundamentals of square dancing, a leisure-time activity with a big following in the Chicagoland area.

"There is some place to square dance every night of the week in Chicago," Cliff explained.

CLIFF SAID he has been calling for about 2½ years. He works several nights each week, either in instructional programs or square dances.

The square dancers accept Cliff's directions without question even though in some cases he is only half their age.

Using a barrage of quick patter in instructions he directs the dancers through intricate moves with sure-handed ease.

A recent session saw the dancers working such moves as the "Star Through" and the "California Twist." The members, all newcomers to square dancing, work at the steps with some hesitancy at first, but after a little practice the moves come naturally.

Of course there is a certain amount of chuckling when one of the dancers finds himself going the wrong direction or using the left hand instead of the right for a certain step.

"This group has been working for a little over a month, and they all seem to be doing real well," Cliff said.

CLIFF HAS learned much of caller's technique by tape recording other callers. He has also read a lot of literature on the subject.

"I went to Callers College last and they really tear you up there," he said. The week-long session is run by long-time callers who offer advice to help newcomers improve their style.

Cliff said square dancing music is beginning to get away from the traditional country-western sound. "You can even find some music now that almost has a rock-and-roll beat."

He added that interest in square dancing is always increasing.

"Of course, you do not hear too much about it unless you are already involved," Cliff said. The product of a square-dancing family, Cliff also works with his father to publish a square dancing magazine.

Eyeing the success of this new program, park district director Al Binder said he is considering the possibility of expanding the program this winter to include youngsters along with the adults.

Local 'Key Precincts' Not As Accurate As In Meadows

Two Schaumburg Township precincts, designated by ABC-TV to be among 100 key precincts in the state, did not reflect the outcome of the election as accurately as the precinct chosen in Rolling Meadows.

The Rolling Meadows district was the only one in Palatine Township where the votes rolled in in favor of Gov.-elect Dan Walker.

The Schaumburg Township precincts, Nos. 14 and 16, both showed heavy favoritism for Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie. Ogilvie led in both precincts by 100 votes with Precinct 14 giving 381 for Ogilvie/281 for Walker and Pct. 16 turning 493 for Ogilvie and 391 for Walker.

Precinct 14 in Schaumburg is bounded by Roselle Road on the east, Schaumburg Road on the north, Windsor Drive on the west and Weathersfield Way on the south.

Precinct 16 takes in portions of both Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg and is bounded by Roselle Road on the east, Edgemont Lane on the north, Jones Road on the west, and Higgins Road on the south.

In other key races the two districts also showed heavy Republican returns, favoring President Nixon 3-to-1 over Sen. George McGovern. Sen. Charles Percy outpolled U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski by a similar margin.

And, on down, the line Republicans enjoyed heavy leads in the two areas.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Savoring a landslide mandate, President Nixon met in Florida with his top advisers for a weekend retreat that could shape the nation's policies until 1976. At the same time Democratic leaders around the country have begun the arduous task of reshaping their party's leadership to put it in contention for 1976.

With more plentiful supplies of meat, particularly pork, increases in the price of food will probably slow for the rest of the year, Agriculture Department experts predicted.

Divers, groping through silt and buffeted by treacherous tides, searched for at least a half dozen vehicles that plunged into the Brunswick River at Brunswick, Ga., with their screaming occupants when a ship slammed into a drawbridge. It is unknown how many persons and cars plunged into the murky waters.

The State

One man was shot to death and two were wounded in a shooting at the Black Muslim Temple on Chicago's South Side. All were employees of an elementary school and library attached to the temple.

Francis T. Mayo, Region 5 administrator for the Environmental Protection Agency, suggested that each of the four states in the region name two representatives to a technical committee to make recommendations on problems of cooling water around Lake Michigan's shores.

The World

The United States said it believes the Vietnam peace negotiations are entering their final stage. But North Vietnam said "peace is not for tomorrow." "The reason is simple — the United States refused to sign the peace agreement it has already agreed to," a Hanoi negotiator said in Paris.

A huge bomb exploded in a downtown Belfast parking garage and a series of gunbattles wounded at least six persons in the Northern Ireland capital. An Irish Republican Army leader was captured and a Protestant girl was tortured and her head shaved by Catholics in their continuing warfare.

The War

Both sides in the Vietnam War are waging a battle of supplies, reinforcing their own stocks and attacking those of the other side, in an all-out race to beat a promised cease-fire agreement. Seventeen American servicemen were killed in South Vietnam last week, highest total in a month.

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange closed slightly higher on a late-session rally sparked by the sharp rise of several blue chip stocks, notably American Telephone and Telegraph. The Dow Jones Average climbed 4.52 to 988.24, a new high for the year. Advances edged declines, 748 to 703, among 1,802 issues on the tape. Volume came to 17,040,000 compared with 24,620,000 a day earlier.

Post Mortem On State's Attorney Race:

Black Vote Beat Hanrahan

by ROGER CAPOTTINI

A News Analysis

Like an old football knee injury, the vote from the black wards in the City of Chicago came back to haunt State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan Tuesday and gave his healthier opponent, Bernard Carey, an upset victory in their battle for the office.

In addition to knocking Hanrahan out of his immediate position, the disastrous blow from the once-solid Democratic wards may have ended Hanrahan's career and signaled the demise of the formerly all-powerful Democratic team.

While the official vote count on the bitterly contested race still is being tabulated, the unofficial totals indicate Carey managed the upset by combining heavy vote totals in his favor from most suburban and black precincts.

The key to Carey's surprise victory, however, came out of the black wards in Chicago.

A REVIEW of several black wards in the city indicated an enormous amount of ticket-splitting in what traditionally have been straight Democratic wards.

Those 14 predominantly black wards show how Carey won the battle and made Hanrahan's optimistic remarks of early Tuesday night "premature."

Carey was victorious in 10 of the 14, carrying Wards 2, 3, 6, 8, 16, 17, 20 and 21 by large majorities and the 29th by a slight edge.

Hanrahan early in the evening said he had reports from a key black ward that showed he would win. Unfortunately for the incumbent, he apparently was looking at one of the four he won, and two of those by a narrow margin.

Hanrahan carried the 24th and 27th Wards by a healthy majority, but won the 4th and the 28th Wards by only a few hundred votes each.

Incomplete returns from the 14 wards showed Carey with 132,642 votes to 93,422 for Hanrahan, or about 59 per cent for Carey to 41 per cent for Hanrahan.

WHILE MUCH of that vote would seem to have resulted from an intense dislike building for four years against Hanrahan, some part of it must be attributed to an increased awareness on the part of the blacks for their own best interests. They not only balked when it came to Hanrahan but crossed party lines in favor of Charles Percy.

At the same time, it was not a strictly anti-Democrat vote, as the voters of the same 14 black wards turned out for gubernatorial candidate Dan Walker, giving him 104,800 more votes than they gave Hanrahan.

With those votes still trickling in, many political observers have begun to speculate on whether the trend indicates the downfall of the Daley machine — that the Democratic ward committeemen can no longer control their voters.

While there exists much evidence to document that theory, there are other figures that should diminish the hopes of those who would like to see the machine collapse.

The Democratic machine had no trouble delivering the vote for Hanrahan in certain wards.

Among the 30 wards Hanrahan did carry were those headed by the likes of John D'Arco, Claude Holman and Vito Marzullo.

A SAMPLING of wards controlled by loyal Daley Democrats shows tremendous margins of victory for Hanrahan. Hanrahan's strength was obvious in the following wards, with Democratic committeemen in parentheses: 1 (John Pietrowak), 25 (Vito Marzullo), 26 (Matthew Bleszczak), 31 (Tom Keane), 32 (Dan Rostenkowski), 38 (P. J. Cullinan), and 41 (Roman Pucinski).

Several of the wards lost to Carey were those whose Democratic committeemen, for a variety of reasons, may not have tried very hard for Hanrahan.

Three wards, for example, controlled by black Democratic committeemen delivered the vote for George McGovern, Dan Walker and Roman Pucinski, but not for Hanrahan. Those wards — the 2nd, 3rd and 20th — are headed by William Harvey, Ralph Metcalf and Cecil Partee respectively.

The 20th Ward, headed by John Stroger, went for McGovern, Walker, Percy and Carey.

There have been some reports that Carey's victories in these wards resulted mostly from a lack of effort for Hanrahan by the committeemen who knew they couldn't "sell" the incumbent to their constituents. In some cases, it has been reported, the committeemen, with that in mind, actually pushed Carey in order to save the rest of the Democratic candidates.

CAREY, AS expected, rolled up large margins in the county's suburban areas.

Of 30 suburban townships, Carey had won 24.

The largest margins of victory for Carey came from Evanston and New Trier townships, where Carey outdistanced Hanrahan by more than 4 to 1.

Of eight suburban townships that delivered vote totals for Carey in excess of 2 to 1, four — Elk Grove, Palatine, Wheeling and Barrington — were in the Northwest suburban area.

Additionally, two more Northwest suburban townships, Maine and Schaumburg, produced Carey victories which were just short of the 2-to-1 ratio.

Other townships giving Carey twice as many votes as Hanrahan, according to unofficial totals, were Northfield and Rich.

Hanrahan defeated Carey in Berwyn, Calumet, Leyden, Norwood Park, Stickney and Lemont townships.

Zoning Bd. Recommends Two New Developments

Two planned unit development (PUDs) totaling 832 dwelling units were recommended for approval Wednesday by the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals.

The developments together replace one Campanelli project previously approved by the village. The entire parcel of land lies west of Roselle Road between Wise Road and a point north of Weathersfield Way.

Ciesel-McGuire Industries, Inc. and 3-H Builders will develop the PUDs. Ciesel-McGuire will develop the 30-acre north third of the parcel. The firm requested zoning for 478 apartments. Their project will be called The Courts of Weathersfield.

T H E SOUTHERN two-thirds (42 acres) of the parcel will be developed by 3-H. Their plans call for 414 triplex condominiums, three units to a building. Laurelwood is the name chosen for the 3-H project.

The zoning board's recommendations contained stipulations agreed to by the developers.

Ciesel-McGuire's project was revised slightly so several three-story buildings were switched with several two-story buildings. This was done to avoid placing the higher buildings next to the single-family homes to the west.

The developer will pay for the widening of a section of Roselle Road, and agreed to share the cost of installing a traffic light at Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way.

Additionally, Ciesel-McGuire will make donations to the proposed hospital on Schaumburg Road, the cultural center, and the police and fire funds. Their lawyer will meet with Mayor Robert Aicher to determine the amount of these donations.

Providing a landscaped buffer area around the perimeter of the project was also agreed upon.

STIPULATIONS agreed to by 3-H included piping their storm water run off rather than letting it flow into an open ditch, improvements on Wise Road including widening of the street, and installing sidewalks on both sides of interior or streets.

Donations to the hospital, cultural center, police and fire funds will also be arranged with the mayor.

Both developers agreed to begin construction within a year of the passing of the ordinance and to complete the projects within five years. They also agreed to designate fire lanes and granted the village the right to come in and ticket cars parked in these fire lanes.

The fire chief will have the right to approve the location of all fire hydrants and fire lanes in both developments. Additionally, both builders agreed to install a solid base in the roadways as soon as construction begins to facilitate the servicing of the projects by fire trucks.

Both developments will be brought before the village board on Nov. 28.

A TREE TO BE the official Christmas Tree in Hoffman Estates was planted yesterday at the village's new municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr. The 20-foot tree was donated by the Hoffman Estates Jaycees at a cost of $450. Present for the planting ceremony were Jaycee Bill Gerner, tree committee chairman; Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, Police Chief John O'Connell and Streets Supt. Ken Dean.

No Special Meeting Needed For Hot Wire Controversy?

There may be no need for a special meeting of the Hoffman Estates Village Board to deal with a controversial plan by Commonwealth Edison Co. to install high-tension wires above the ground along the tollway.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said yesterday he has tentatively reserved Conant High School's auditorium for one week from today. But he definitely will not schedule a meeting until after Monday's village board session.

The village plan commission will report results of its fact-finding meeting held Wednesday, and make a recommendation to the board Monday night, said Longmeyer. If a report on the village's legal authority in the matter also is available Monday, it may not be necessary to hold the Friday session.

T H E VILLAGE board this week agreed to hold a special meeting with homeowners living in the vicinity of the proposed cables to discuss village board action on the issue. The board was not certain of its powers to demand the cables be installed underground, and requested the plan commission investigate cost factors and status of the proposal. The village attorney was to examine legal aspects.

The special meeting was suggested because the audience Monday night was so large it was feared the village council chambers could not accommodate all persons who might wish to attend the next session.

Longmeyer said yesterday he had been unable to find an auditorium available any sooner than next Friday.

If the board still wishes to hold the special meeting after hearing the plan commission report, Longmeyer said he would notify homeowners by letter.

Candy Sale To Aid Mentally Retarded

Today and tomorrow have been proclaimed as Knights of Columbus Candy Days for the Mentally Retarded Children by Hoffman Estates Mayor Frederick Downey.

The Knights of Columbus are conducting a statewide candy day for the sole benefit of mentally retarded children.

Volunteers of the organization's Holy Ghost Council, Palatine, will be stationed at key locations within the village to sell the candy.

Downey urged all residents to support the fund drive.

Board To Eye Com Ed High Power Line Plans

A plan commission report detailing proposed Commonwealth Edison installation of elevated high power lines adjacent to the Highpoint subdivision will be presented to the Hoffman Estates Village Board Monday.

"Concepts" of the project, initially discussed for placement on the south edge of the Northwest Tollroad in an 80-foot easement to be leased from Northern Illinois Gas Co., were outlined for the commission Wednesday. ComEd representatives, Jack Stevens, Northwest district superintendent, and Jack Foss, director of transmission systems made the presentation.

Possible rerouting of the high tension lines to the north side of the tollroad, necessitating further land acquisition by ComEd, and an underground system, proposed by concerned homeowners, also were reviewed.

A basic proposal calls for four cables to be mounted on poles, ranging from 75 to 90 feet high, depending on land contour. The route is approximately four miles long.

ON THE EAST it would connect with a substation one-half mile east of Plum Grove Road, which serves as the major transmission center for Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates. At the west, it would connect with a similar facility at the Kane County line.

ComEd does not have a specific route proposal in mind, Stevens emphasized. The utility company is attempting to first determine the attitude of residents before filing an Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) certificate of convenience, which will result in scheduling of a public hearing on a definite route.

Since ComEd has potential access to the right-of-way on the south side of the tollroad, representatives of the utility met with area homeowners several weeks ago to discuss tentative plans.

Although 200 residents publicly protested the installation, registering concern about its effect on health, safety and property values at Monday's village board meeting, only a handful of homeowners attended the plan commission discussion.

NONMALLY, HOWEVER, a definite route first is established, then the ICC is petitioned with the local governmental authority notified prior to the call for a public hearing.

In bringing the matter to the attention of the ICC, ComEd must justify the selected route as being the most economical and best use of land involved, unless residential or community displeasure requires selection of an alternative. Foss said, because no firm decisions have been made, costs of the above ground installation on either side of the tollroad, or an underground facility have not been finalized.

However, pressed by commission members for possible costs, Foss estimated underground installation at about $1 million per mile; overhead installation on the south side of the tollway could possibly run $50,000 per mile, or one-twentieth of proposed underground costs. Added to that would be gas company easement lease costs.

NORTHSIDE INSTALLATION would probably be higher, because crossing the tollway at two points would necessitate a more expensive corner type post. In addition, land would have to be acquired for the project.

According to Foss, the rate of load growth on the present substation has increased 32 per cent over the past two years. At a continued growth rate, expected to decrease to about seven per cent annually, that facility will experience a 10 per cent overload by 1975, if the new system is not in operation, he said.

In reply to questions from commission members, Foss described growth as "mostly residential." He said miscellaneous commercial and industrial uses.

2-Cent-Per-$100 Hike Proposed

MSD Unveils $305.9 Million Budget

by ANNE SLAVICEK

A proposed 1973 Metropolitan Sanitary District budget that would increase taxes by a minimum of 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation was made public yesterday.

The $305.9 million budget includes funds for design and construction of the interceptor sewers connecting to the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant in Des Plaines.

Other local projects that would be funded by the proposal include construction of the Polar Creek Water Reclamation Plant in Schaumburg Township and interceptor sewers connected to that plant, construction of a reservoir to serve the Willow-Higgin Creek area and expansion of the Hanover Sewage Treatment Works.

The sewers connecting Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights to the proposed O'Hare plant would serve as deep tunnels in the Chicago Underflow Plan to help stop flooding and stream pollution from overloaded combined sanitary and storm sewers.

The MSD Board of Trustees will begin hearings on the proposed budget Wednesday.

ALTHOUGH THE budget as proposed by MSD Gen. Supt. Ben Sosewitz includes a tax increase, the MSD board is committed to "holding the line" on the current tax rate of 33.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

MSD Pres. John E. Egan said yesterday the board will cut the proposed budget in an effort to keep the tax rate even with last year.

An anticipated increase in the assessed valuation in the district could possibly result in an even lower tax rate than in 1972. Meanwhile, the sale of bonds to finance district construction could make the actual rate increase by as much as 4.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The amount of federal and state grants to the district will play a crucial role in determining the final level of the district tax rate, Sosewitz said.

If the district receives $100 million in federal and state grants there will be little need to issue bonds to borrow money for construction, he said. On the other hand, if President Nixon holds federal funding at last year's level, Sosewitz said, the district will receive only $42 or $43 million in grants and will need to issue bonds.

In addition to the local projects, the budget would provide funding for work the bonds the district issues result in an increase in the tax rate.

THE $305.9 MILLION proposed budget is an increase over the $21.5 million in 1972 and the $20.4 million budget in 1971.

Sosewitz said much of the increase can be attributed to state and federal requirements that the MSD meet water quality standards.

The proposed construction program represents an increase of $200 million since 1971.

That increase includes a 5,000 per cent increase in funds to be spent for flood and pollution control.

on the district's land reclamation project in Fulton County, equipment for the West Southwest Sewage Treatment Plant, sewers to the Calumet plant, and a North Shore aeration system.

Sacred Heart Open House Is Monday

Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows is holding an open house for all parents on Monday from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The open house will culminate the evaluation process at the school for the first quarter. Parents will be able to meet with their daughter's teachers and discuss evaluations written by the teachers.

The evaluations are based on teachers' appraisal of the students' performance against the particular objectives of the course, with specific mention of particular areas of strength or weakness. This technique is felt to provide parents, teachers and students with a more personal and individualized means of communicating about a student's progress in school.

Will Hartigan Learn To 'Heel' Under Walker's Lead?

Illinois, which has had the distinction of having a Republican governor and a Democratic lieutenant governor for the past four years, soon will have a governor and lieutenant governor of the same party who opposed each other in the Democratic primary.

Republican Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Democratic Lt. Gov. Paul Simon have operated since January, 1969, under a kind of benign opposition in which Ogilvie did little to hurt Simon's image and Simon did nothing to undermine the governor.

Simon, for instance, could legally have appointed a successor to the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen during Ogilvie's absence from the state. He refrained, in accordance with a prior promise to Ogilvie that he would not try to usurp the governor's powers in his absence.

Other than losing the traditional offices of the lieutenant governor in the state Capitol, Simon suffered little interference from the governor's office and was routinely granted his appropriations requests from the legislature.

On the other hand, he was given few duties by Ogilvie. He had the constitutional duty of presiding over the senate and himself created the function of "ombudsman" for the office.

THAT FUNCTION, however, was strictly unofficial and an attempt by Simon to get the legislature to formally assign the role of ombudsman to the office of lieutenant governor, and give him and eight-man commission to carry it out, never got off the ground.

Ironically, Lt. Governor-elect Neil Hartigan will go into office with fellow Democrat Dan Walker in the governor's chair with no duties whatsoever.

Under the 1970 constitution, the new lieutenant governor will not even have the duty of presiding over the Senate.

His duties will be determined by the governor and the legislature.

With Republicans in control of the House and the Senate, it is unlikely that they will assign any monumental duties to a Democratic lieutenant governor — especially one who is a product of the Daley organization in Chicago — which will add to his stature.

Walker, who inherited Hartigan as a running mate when the Chicago organization elected him over Walker's choice, Neal Eckert of Carbondale, is not likely to assign Hartigan any great tasks unless the new lieutenant governor comes to heel.

He has not done so thus far. Early in their reluctant alliance, Walker publicly called upon Hartigan to resign his post as Democratic committeeman in Chicago's 49th Ward. Hartigan quietly declined to do so, and for the duration of the campaign Walker made no further issue of the point.

ON THE DAY FOLLOWING his election, however, Walker again brought up the point, publicly and in Hartigan's presence. Hartigan, at the same appearance, declared that he would not resign.

as committeeman.

That seems clear indication that he sees his future as lying with the Daley organization and in Chicago politics, where he has been attorney for the Chicago Park District, and not with Walker.

That could be a wise choice for Hartigan. Even if he decided to play Walker's ball game, he is not likely to become a favorite of the governor-elect, who owes much of his election success to pointed opposition to the "Daley machine."

However, it leaves Hartigan in the position of fending for himself for the next four years.

Springfield observers anticipate that Hartigan will find things to do — but they will be more for Mayor Daley than for the governor. Hartigan formerly acted as liaison man for Daley in Springfield and has hinted he will have his own legislative program, which will probably be independent of the wishes of the governor, but not of the mayor of Chicago.

Beyond that, Democrat Neil Hartigan may have less importance under Democrat Dan Walker than Democrat Paul Simon has had under Republican Richard Ogilvie.

Nixon Gives 'America 1st' Slogan New Meaning

by EUGENE V. RISNER
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon gave the old "America First" slogan new meaning during his campaign.

The theme he emphasized more than any other during 31,000 miles of travel through 16 states, and in 15 radio and television broadcasts, in quest of reelection was that the United States should remain the strongest nation in the world.

There simply is nobody else around to protect the interest of the free world, he said; nobody else to provide the balance where an imbalance would be disastrous.

Seeking to project an image as the competent manager of the country's affairs who would not bargain away its interests out of any "naive sentimentality," Nixon repeated over and over that George S. McGovern's policies would leave the United States at the mercy of its international rivals — chiefly the Soviet Union and China.

"NEVER SEND the President of the United States to the bargaining table as the leader of the second strongest nation in the world," he said.

As the world moved from confrontation to negotiation, a strong national defense was needed more than ever; if the United States unilaterally cut its conventional forces, if it failed to go ahead with its nuclear force, then it could not expect to wring similar reductions from the Soviets. That was Nixon's argument.

In short, he said, McGovern's proposal to cut more than $30 billion from the defense budget could not be tolerated; it would represent a "new isolation" in which the United States retreated from its responsibilities and opportunities throughout the world.

It would ruin all the patient diplomacy of the last four years, Nixon claimed — diplomacy which had resulted in chipping away 25 years of isolation from China and achieving the first concrete agreement with the Soviet Union limiting nuclear arms.

REINFORCING THIS theme was the breakthrough in the negotiations on Vietnam disclosed 10 days before the election. This enabled Nixon to claim that "peace with honor" was imminent, with only the details to be worked out.

He was able to claim that all American prisoners of war and missing in action would be returned without depending on the "good will of the enemy" and that the people of South Vietnam would not have a Communist or a coalition government imposed on them against their will.

It also enabled him to contrast it with McGovern's proposals, which he claimed would give Hanoi all it wanted without gaining any concessions in return.

On election eve, Nixon said the overriding issue in the election was "peace — peace in Vietnam and the broader issue of peace in the world."

This shows how much things have gone his way since last year when he remarked that whoever tried to make Vietnam an issue in the election would have "the rug pulled out" from under them.

Percy, Walker Gain Stature

Year Of The Maverick In Illinois

by THOMAS A. PLEDGE

In Illinois, 1972 will be remembered as the year of the maverick. Flaunting their political independence Sen. Charles H. Percy and Daniel J. Walker rode a crazyquilt voting pattern to victories and established themselves as figures to be reckoned with in the national political arena.

Percy, a liberal, embraced the Republican national ticket and was embraced in return. But on the Senate floor, Percy at times has found himself at odds with the conservative legislative wishes of President Nixon.

Nixon racked up a record plurality for a Republican presidential candidate in Illinois but Percy, campaigning on the slogan, "He's his own man," outpolled even Nixon.

With more than 97 per cent of the vote counted, Percy led Democratic Rep. Roman C. Pucinski by more than 1.1 million votes.

IN WINNING his second Senate term, Percy established himself as a liberal Republican with proven vote-getting ability in an electoral-vote-rich state and a possible challenger to Spiro T. Agnew should the vice president seek the GOP nomination in 1976.

But if he has an eye on the White House, Percy wasn't talking about it. With a grin, he said: "I pledge my best efforts for the next six years."

Walker, in a narrow victory over GOP Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, also established himself as a man to be reckoned with in national politics.

Walker, a maverick Democrat, capitalized on his reputation as an independent and on voter resentment against Illinois' first state income tax to buck the GOP tide and oust Ogilvie. Walker's win came on the heels of an upset victory over Lt. Gov. Paul Simon in the Democratic primary.

Simon had the backing of the powerful political organization of Mayor Richard J. Daley in his primary bid against Walker.

Walker, who hiked the length of the state, said his walk had made "an indelible impression" on the people.

Ogilvie blamed his loss on the state income tax, which he instituted two years ago.

The Chicago Democratic organization, jolted by Walker's primary win in March, was shaken again Tuesday by the defeat of Democratic Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan to Republican Bernard Carey, a former FBI agent.

HANRAHAN, ACQUITTED last month on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice stemming from a 1969 police weapons raid in which two Black Panther party leaders were slain, was the victim of a defeat engineered by black voters who crossed over from the Democratic ticket in massive numbers for the first time in decades. Hanrahan lost at least 10 of Chicago's 14 predominantly black wards.

The Panther case also plagued Hanrahan in the primary. He was first slated by the Democratic party for reelection, but was later dropped and replaced by Judge Raymond Berg. Hanrahan, however, refused to bow out and defeated Berg in the Democratic primary.

Daley, however, was not visibly worried by the defeat. "The Democratic party is not in a shambles," Daley said Wednesday.

Asked if he could work with Walker, Daley replied: "I can work with anyone."

'Mr. Average American' Voted For President Nixon

The man who spent a week traveling with the campaign of Sen. George McGovern said yesterday he voted for Richard Nixon for president.

"I just don't think the man (McGovern) could have carried out the programs he had to offer in the way he would have wanted to," Richard Johnson said yesterday. Johnson was the Rolling Meadows man who was selected this year by the computers of the National Public Affairs Center for Television (NPACT) to appear in several television programs focusing on a representative of middle-class America.

"At first I was pro-Nixon," Johnson admitted, "but when the opportunity to travel with McGovern came up, I gladly accepted the chance. But the purpose was for me to hear and see what other people thought of McGovern."

(Johnson's memoirs of that trip were serialized last week exclusively in the Herald.)

"The thing that really bothered me was the indecision of the people around him," Johnson said. He said the indecision appeared in places like union groups, where after McGovern addressed a gathering people were not sure of their position toward the Democratic candidate.

Johnson said he didn't think McGovern could have carried through with some of the programs he offered the American people, even though Johnson said he agreed with many of the proposals.

"Like Vietnam," Johnson pointed out. "McGovern wanted to end the war and bring the troops home in 90 days, but I don't see how he could have done it. And on tax relief where he offered to provide another $22 million by closing tax loopholes, equalizing the tax burden and returning $15 million for local use. I don't see how that's possible in this age."

JOHNSON, WHO said "I'm really a Democrat at heart," expressed the move. But nothing ever developed further on the matter, so it did not become an issue in his mind, he said.

ONLY TWO other Republicans won Johnson's support on Tuesday and they were Rep. Philip Crane and Sen. Charles Percy. In all races, Johnson said he voted for Democratic candidates.

With the end of Campaign 72 came an end, too, more or less, to Johnson's time in the national limelight. But he admits he has had a year quite literally to remember. "I never dreamed a year ago that little me would be involved in all this," he remarked.

And when asked if he thought he might get invited to the inauguration in January, the man who was written about in newspapers across the nation and featured on two television shows laughed and said "no I don't even think the President knows I voted for him."

WLS To Put Up Antennas Next Fall

TV Reception To Get Better

Channel 7 (WLS-TV) will construct temporary antennas on the Sears Tower in Chicago next fall, which will eliminate poor television reception in the Northwest suburbs.

Meanwhile, Channel 7 officials contend the severe ghosting or double images being received on Channel 7 by local viewers "will not get any worse."

Spokesmen for the ABC-owned and operated Chicago station said "People in your area right now have all the adverse effect they will ever have."

He added the Northwest suburbs have been hardest hit by the rising Standard Oil Building, which has blocked the signal of Channel 7's antenna. He said the Standard Oil Building and the Sears Tower are at such a height now that reception cannot become any worse.

The Channel 7 transmitter is located atop the Marina Towers office building, a much smaller structure than the tower.

ing skyscrapers now being constructed downtown.

Local residents began receiving ghosting on Channel 7 last March and the problem became more severe as construction of the Standard Oil building continued. Channel 7 is the lone major Chicago network affected by the Loop construction. Channel 5 (NBC) and Channel 2 (CBS) transmitters are on the John Hancock Center and thus far there has been little interference.

BUT AS THE Sears Tower continues to rise — the building now is at the 86th floor — the other two major stations will also have interference difficulties. The two stations have not determined whether they will relocate their signals on the Sears Tower.

Channel 11 (WTTW) also plans to install temporary antennas on the Sears Tower next fall. Area residents have reported interference on Channel 11, but not as severe as on Channel 7.

The Sears Tower will be the world's tallest building when completed. Permanent television antennas will not be installed on the massive structure until late in 1974.

Local Artist Displays Work

During the month of November, Lorrie Marsiglio of Schaumburg is exhibiting her paintings in the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 Library Ln., Schaumburg.

She is the first artist to display her work in the new library, and coincidentally, it is Mrs. Marsiglio's first exhibit.

The artist said she began sketching as a student and just recently began using oils. Mrs. Marsiglio said her first efforts in oils were paintings of nursery animals for her two sons. These are now on display at the library.

Stylized zodiac signs and tarot cards are another favorite subject. "Although my paintings themselves are products of experimentation, I research my subject carefully," she said.

Mrs. Marsiglio explained that she never has been schooled in the art of oil painting and so she "experiments." She also does work with chalks and water colors.

"I am interested in psychic sciences and when I select a tarot card to paint, I always make sure it's a good sign and one that would be favorable to have around," she added.

Mrs. Marsiglio said at present painting is just a hobby. She also works as a market researcher.

thought that another candidate, notably Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), might have been a more forceful candidate. In comparing McGovern to Kennedy, Johnson said "I don't want to say that Kennedy has more clout, but he has more power to get done what he wants to get done."

But in praising McGovern, Johnson added, "I wish some of the things that McGovern talked about, Nixon will follow through on."

Johnson conceded that the stigma attached to him by the media of being "Mr. Average American" caused some problems for him, especially as the election grew nearer. "I really was undecided, but because of the position I was in, I didn't want one person to be swayed to Nixon just because I might be for him." He stressed the fact that Nixon was the better choice as far as Richard Johnson was concerned.

"At one point I was leaning toward McGovern when the peace rumors began," Johnson said, adding he thought the timing of the announcement of a possible peace might have been a political

PTAs To Discuss The Environment

"Concern For Our Environment in Schaumburg Township," will be the topic of discussion at the first general meeting of the Schaumburg Area Council of PTA's at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Darrell Little, chairman of the Environmental Education Committee for School Dist. 54 and the area council will moderate a panel discussion.

Those on the panel are: Ellsworth Meineke conservationist; Mrs. Ruth MacIntyre and Ken Coles members of the environmental committee; Miss Dianne Marks, board of education president, and Mrs. Jane Murphy and Peter Justen, members of the Schaumburg environmental committee.

The James B. Conant "Conairs," will sing after the panel discussion, said program chairman Mrs. Ann Weber.

This Year's Mosquito Case May Continue Until 1973

The ongoing legal dispute between the villages of Palatine and Schaumburg over the spraying of a chemical insecticide in the two communities is once again expected to be delayed.

Neither side has completed its research for the case, according to Bradley M. Glass, Palatine village attorney.

The case is scheduled to come up Monday in Cook County Circuit Court, but is expected to be continued for a fourth time.

The case has been assigned to Circuit Court Judge Robert Downing after the judge who heard the preliminary motions, Edward J. Egan, was elevated to the Illinois Appellate Court.

The dispute will resume where it left off rather than beginning anew because of the change of judges.

THE SUIT was brought by the abatement district, challenging local ordinances in Palatine and Schaumburg that prohibit the spraying of Malathion, a mosquito-killing insecticide, within their corporate limits.

The two communities maintain that Malathion has environmental disadvantages, and does little good combating mosquitoes anyway.

The abatement district contends that spraying is a significant part of its overall mosquito abatement program, and the inability to spray in Palatine and Schaumburg hampers the program's effectiveness.

Zoning Board Of Appeals Won't Rule On Gas Station

No recommendation on the proposed construction of a gas station at the Schaumburg Plaza shopping center will be forthcoming from the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals.

The board voted Wednesday on the request for a special use permit to construct the gas station at Carver Lane and Schaumburg Road. Three members voted against the request, two for, and one abstained. Four votes are needed for a recommendation.

The request will go before the village board on Nov. 21, with no recommendation from the zoning board.

James Teufel, the developer of the shopping center, proposed building the gas station utilizing a site only 75 feet by 75 feet.

NO SERVICE BUILDING would be built on the property. Teufel proposed two four-by-six foot warming houses on each gasoline service island. Only gasoline would be sold, he said, and no vehicle repairs or oil changing would take place.

The station would be called the Plaza Pump, and a sign with this name would be the only one on the property. Teufel emphasized he has no contract with any oil company, although he said Clark Oil had expressed interest in the project.

Clark, and two other oil companies Teufel spoke with, agreed to operating a station that would not bear their name.

Russell Parker, zoning board chairman, said he did not object to the service station on aesthetic grounds. Because there are already two stations nearby, he said another was not needed.

BECAUSE OF THE heavy traffic along Schaumburg Road, Teufel said his station would not in the long run take away business from other service stations.

Dunkin' Donuts and other restaurant operators have approached him about the corner, Teufel said. "We feel these buildings would be more obnoxious than what we've proposed," he added.

Because the area is zoned B-2 (business), Teufel does not need a special use permit to construct a restaurant.

The motion of the board voted on included several stipulations, all of which Teufel agreed to.

These included a landscaping buffer for the nearby quadrupoles, limiting the hours to 6 a.m. to 12 midnight, beaming station lights down, and eliminating one driveway on Schaumburg Road.

The Lighter Side

'Memorial Heartburn' On The Menu?

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—While in the Senate restaurant on a recent noonride, consuming a bowl of Ellender Memorial Gumbo, I suffered a mild seizure of angst.

Angst, the first stages of an anxiety complex, may not be as distressing as botulism, but neither is it conducive to the digestion of gumbo.

When beset by angst, it is wise to identify the source of your anxiety and seek to exercise it.

The source of my anxiety was a sudden reminder that the nation's capital has about run out of space in which to immortalize departed heroes and statesmen.

STATUES AND monuments already abound in virtually every park, square, traffic circle and parking lot.

Thoroughfares and landmarks have long since been named for assorted greats and near-greats from America's past. Bodies of water have likewise been preempted.

Occasionally, a new federal building will provide an opportunity for enshrinement. But the roster of greats and near-greats awaiting immortalization is long enough to make the erection of edifices in their honor prohibitively expensive.

More and more, then, we are likely to see a swing to menu memorials.

THE LATE Speaker Joe "Iron Gut" Cannon was the first great or near-great accorded that type of enshrinement. His monument is bean soup.

In 1904, during his tenure as speaker, Cannon — who obviously was more of a parliamentarian than a gourmet — ordered the House restaurant to have bean soup on the menu every day, "hot or cold, rain, snow or shine."

To this very day, the dish is still prepared in his memory.

Either that or his successors forgot to countermand the order.

In any event, Cannon Memorial Bean Soup has now been joined on the Capitol cafe circuit by Ellender Memorial Gumbo.

THE LATE Sen. Allen J. Ellender made a practice of serving Louisiana

Creole Gumbo to his colleagues. Upon his recent death, his colleagues arranged to have his gumbo recipe added to the Senate restaurant menu.

Will congressional menus eventually be composed entirely of dedicatory dishes? Therein lies my angst.

For while Ellender was a pretty good cook, the average great or near-great's idea of haute cuisine is a farcisee of old campaign speeches.

Give them menu immortality and the next enshrinement phase will be memorial heartburns.

State Starts Safety Program To Protect Bicyclists

Illinois has initiated safety programs to make citizens more aware that bicycles are more than toys.

The bike's renewed popularity and increased accident rate have prompted state officials to create new laws requiring additional equipment for bikes, a "Bicycle Rules of the Road" booklet, safety parks and a bicycle safety curriculum for elementary schools.

Approximately 89 million Americans bought bikes last year, twice as many persons as a decade ago, according to reports by the Bicycle Institute of America.

The institute also reported that more than 75 million Americans own bikes compared with approximately 55 million in the late 1960s. That equals two bicycles for every three cars.

Cycling's new popularity has caused the number of bike accidents to skyrocket, according to William F. Cellini, secretary of the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Bike accidents killed 50 Illinois citizens and injured an additional 3,348 last year, according to department reports.

NATIONAL SAFETY Council officials predict approximately 880 cyclists will be killed nationwide this year from collisions with automobiles. Another 130 persons are expected to die from other types of accidents while on bikes.

Gove. Richard B. Ogilvie said he is trying to counter this rise in the number of bike accidents by approving legislation which will enable others on the road to see cyclists better after dusk.

All bicycles sold after Jan. 1, 1973 must be equipped with front and rear reflectors on each pedal. Individual pedals sold after that date must also have front and rear reflectors. These reflectors must be visible 200 feet away.

Another new law will require bikes to be equipped with additional reflectors six months later. All bicycles sold after July 1, 1973 must have reflectors on the front and rear of each bike, on each pedal and on each side of the wheels.

Signs and pavement markings will be placed along officially designated bicycle routes in the state, since the governor approved a bill authorizing the use of motor fuel taxes for that purpose in August 1971.

"break-in" period as do regular tires. It is recommended speeds not exceed 60 miles per hour during the first 50 miles of driving.

Deflating your tires in order to get additional traction in snow is an "old wives' tale." Deflating your tires means decreased traction in snow or ice.

Caring for your car, and especially its tires, can mean a world of difference this winter, but don't defeat your purpose by driving carelessly.

Illinois bicycle enthusiasts now have their own versions of the rules of the road manual. "Bicycle Rules of the Road," contains information about the bicycle's history, its part in the modern traffic picture, various designs of bicycles and their performance characteristics, maintenance tips, explanation of traffic signs, signals and pavement markings, rules for safe behavior and the traffic laws applying to bicycles.

ALTHOUGH THE booklet is designed for elementary school children, it contains facts useful to anyone who cycles.

Danville's police department, Loves Park and North Park's Harlem School District 122 and Peoria's Council for Responsible Driving have built off-street facilities in their own communities where elementary school children can be instructed in a controlled, yet realistic situation.

These safety parks consist of miniature streets and sidewalks with standard traffic control signs, signals and pavement markings. Bicycles and small battery-operated cars are used as vehicles. Youngsters who cannot ride bikes yet use the miniature cars.

Children receive classroom instruction about traffic signs and rules, either in their schools or at the parks, before they are guided through the course.

The Illinois Department of Transportation has allocated $35,000 to the Loves Park (near Rockford) and North Park (near Chicago) projects, $32,000 to the Danville police department and $78,680 to the Peoria safety park.

Illinois has the nation's only comprehensive curriculum for teaching bicycle safety to school children from kindergarten through fifth grade.

Tailored to each group's comprehension abilities, the curriculum provides lesson plans for each grade, including suggested teaching materials and learning activities.

When The Snow Falls, It's Time To 'Re-Tire'

While millions of skiers look to the sky and think "snow," millions of motorists should look at their car and think "tires."

"Winter weather brings hazardous driving conditions to their peak," says Ross R. Ormsby, chairman of the Tire Industry Safety Council. "Both the safety and the mobility of the driver and car are put to the utmost test. Proper tires will give a distinct advantage during the rough months ahead."

Tips on winter tire care:

—Consider the weather conditions you expect to encounter in your area, and make sure you have the proper type tires your car will need.

—In areas where long months of glare ice and hard packed snow prevail, safety studded snow tires have been found to provide increased starting and stopping ability plus improved cornering, and greater maneuverability. Always check your state's limitations to make sure you comply with any restricted periods of use for studded tires.

—Snow tires with an open tread pattern and deep tread grooves are recommended for cars in areas where snow and ice may be periodically found on the roads.

CHECK INFLATION regularly. Changing temperatures affect a tire's air pressure. For every 10 degree drop in temperature, a tire's pressure goes down about one pound.

—"Bald tires" — tires worn to a tread groove depth of 1/16 inch — are dangerous even when road conditions are excellent due to the possibility of sudden disassembly. For safety's sake get rid of them.

—Winter tires deserve the same

"break-in" period as do regular tires. It is recommended speeds not exceed 60 miles per hour during the first 50 miles of driving.

Deflating your tires in order to get additional traction in snow is an "old wives' tale." Deflating your tires means decreased traction in snow or ice.

Caring for your car, and especially its tires, can mean a world of difference this winter, but don't defeat your purpose by driving carelessly.

'I Will Return,' Ed Hanrahan Vows

Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan, defeated in his reelection bid largely by the defection of traditionally Democratic black voters, said Thursday he thought Mayor Richard J. Daley could have done more to help in the wards that had gone Republican.

At his first news conference since the election Hanrahan was asked what terms he is on with the mayor.

"Well, they're cordial," he said. "We discussed the returns as they were coming in. We shared a sigh, I suppose."

But asked if the mayor could have done more to help him Hanrahan replied, "He certainly could. He could have carried those wards we didn't carry."

HANRAHAN SPOKE without apparent anger. In contrast to his frequent shows of temperance during the campaign, he was soft-spoken and controlled.

He gave a short laugh when asked how he felt election night.

"I come from the West Side of Chicago and I went to Notre Dame," he said. "There's nothing I hate worse than defeat, but you can't roll over and cry."

"As General MacArthur said, I will return."

Hanrahan got only about 38 per cent of the vote in the city's 18 predominately black wards, which contributed about 58,000 votes to the 129,000 vote margin won by GOP victor Bernard Carey.

HANRAHAN SAID he felt some well-known blacks such as Jesse Jackson, who he refuses to call a leader had made black voters believe he had not helped them.

"We have done everything we could to stop the horrible crimes that are perpetrated against people," he said. "And I must accept the blame that we were never able to get our message across to them."

Hanrahan also said the 1969 Black Panther raid and the "united nonsupport" of Chicago's press had worked against him. He said some persons had refused to accept the fact that he was acquitted of all charges in the Panther case.

"I'm sorry that incident (the raid) occurred, but I'm sorrier the truth about it was never fully reported," he said.

Hanrahan did not outline his future plans ("my first plans are to put up my storm windows"), but he said, "I'll be around. I'll be around in 1974 and I'll be around in 1975 the year of the mayoral election."

One in every five seniors at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights has been declared an Illinois State Scholar by the Illinois State Scholarship Commission.

The funds they will receive will depend upon the school they will attend, the amount of family income and family size. The scholarship commission gives its aid to Illinois students attending private and public colleges and universities in the state, with larger grants going to students who attend the more costly private schools.

The 48 St. Viator students who qualified for the state scholarship recognition are:

From Mount Prospect: Robert Blandford, Michael Brickley, James Bristol, William Carley, Andrew Dorner, Robert Mathews, James Meyer, James Miller, Michael Mitchell, Lawrence Moran, Mark Pugh, Sean Reilly and Robert Tess.

From Palatine: Timothy Deger, Gregory Dunn, James Solari and David Threedy.

From Elk Grove Village: John Kane.

From Rolling Meadows: Stephen Copolata.

From Schaumburg: Gregory Malone.

'Peanuts' Video Cartoons Still Pulling In The Viewers

by RICK DeBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

The ratings: CBS-TV's half-hour cartoons based on the "Peanuts" comic strips continue to be one of video's sure-fire ratings attractions . . . The newest one, "You're elected, Charlie Brown," came in ninth among 70 broadcasts in the national rankings for the week ending Oct. 29 . . . And it finished second only to the country's No. 1 hit series, "All in the Family," in the ratings for the top 70 markets . . . On the other hand, the Beatles' animated movie, "Yellow Submarine," that immediately followed the new "Peanuts" cartoon on CBS-TV did poorly in the national rankings, coming in 57th.

"All in the Family" star Carroll O'Connor did pretty well in audience pull with his recent special outing on CBS-TV in "Of Thee I Sing," the 90-minute video adaptation of the 1931 Pulitzer Prize-winning musical satire about a presidential candidate who runs on a platform of love . . . With O'Connor as the nominee, "Of Thee I Sing" placed a respectable 24th in the national statistics and 23rd in the 70-market survey . . . The CBS-TV movie, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," with Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn and Sidney Poitier, came in a potent fourth in the national ratings even though it was a rerun.

ABC-TV's No. 1 teleplay "That Certain Summer," in which Hal Holbrook portrayed a divorced man faced with explaining his homosexuality to his 14-year-old son, got the highest overnight New York City rating of any of the network's popular "Movie of the Week" entries this season . . . Last Sunday's half-hour CBS-TV special by the young pop music group called The Jackson 5 — a tryout for a possible series — also did pretty well in the New York overnights, stronger in the statistics than the low-rated new Yul Brynn comedy series it pre-empted, "Anna and the King" . . . but the night's top ratings-getter was Peter Falk's NBC-TV police detective series, "Columbo," which smashed all opposition.

The headliners: Joe Namath is scheduled as the substitute host for Johnny Carson on NBC-TV's "Tonight" Show Dec. 1 — the last program of the series' three-week visit to New York from California . . . The visit starts Monday . . . Twiggy and Charles Aznavour have joined NBC-TV's Jan. 17 "Cole Porter in Paris" musical tribute to the composer, an hour special that also includes Louis Jourdan, Diana Carroll and Connie Stevens . . . Same network's Flip Wilson series is reported in the trade press to be bringing $85,000 for a minute of advertising . . . On his show tonight, Wilson introduces a new comedy characterization to his repertoire: Jiva Koolit, a guru from Tibet.

SINGER Wayne Newton guest-stars on ABC-TV's "Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law" Nov. 30 as a young philosophy instructor charges with the mercy-killing of his abnormal newborn son . . . Barbara Walters of NBC-TV's "Today" program does a soft shoe dance with Dinah Shore when she visits the singer's daily morning series on the same network Nov. 1 . . . "Today" host Frank McGee and Miss Walters, this Saturday and Sunday begin a new series of interview broadcasts about health and medicine on NBC radio's weekend "Monitor" show.

Israeli institutions . . . The non-commercial video network's "International Performance" series tonight offers an hour French production, "Splendors of Versailles," which attempts to give a visual idea of the court of Louis XIV by presenting a musical tour through the historic palace.

The Hollywood Scene

by Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The movie version of the "The Naked Ape" involves no nudity and precious few apes, but writer-director Donald Driver does preserve the humor and sardonic observations of the bestseller.

Driver is small of stature, large of wit and massively bright.

He's also courageous. He has converted anthropologist Desmond Morris's book into a daring film concept.

"I call it a multimedia film," Driver explained. "I've used paintings, gymnasiums, music, animation and dialogue scenes to bring the book to the screen.

"It's not dependent on a simple linear plot structure.

"The subject is treated comically, as it was in the book, and meant to be entertaining.

TAKING THIS SORT of chance, naturally the picture could be a great success or a dreadful failure. But I'm confident it will succeed."

In remaining true to the book, Driver attempts to delineate mankind from primate to the present. He spent some $50,000 to build 13 statues of man demonstrating his development from ape to homo sapiens.

But has he managed to evolve a plot from Morris' text?

"Yes and no," Driver hedged.

"The audience becomes involved with the three principal characters. The only way to make a unique film these days is to involve the audience in something it cares about very deeply.

"What I've done is concentrated on the last 25,000 years. Of course it took more than 2 million years to arrive at the point human beings find themselves now — as aggressive, territorial, sexual hunters and carnivores.

"The entire picture, like the book, is based on the fact that man is unwilling — unable — to admit he is essentially an animal.

"That's the absolute truth. The book is a biological treatise on mankind as seen as simian and primate. But men spend most of their time pretending to be primarily spiritual beings. It's a terrible deception.

"BUT RATHER THAN make a strong case for the truth, we have fun with what modern man believes to be the facts."

In raising the money for his promotion, Driver first interested Universal. The studio backed away when Driver nixed the idea of costarring Charlton Heston and Raquel Welch as the leads.

Then he piqued the interest of Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner, who bankrolled the picture for $750,000. Universal put up an equal amount and Driver was off with the apes.

Driver managed to receive a GP rating on his film. Moreover, "The Naked Ape" is scheduled to be released to the public at Easter.

"The subject is treated comically, as it was in the book, and meant to be entertaining.

TAKING THIS SORT of chance, naturally the picture could be a great success or a dreadful failure. But I'm confident it will succeed."

An Italian Finally Got 'Valachi Papers' On Film

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Italian producer Dino De Laurentiis has done what no American filmmaker has had the intestinal fortitude to do: bring "The Valachi Papers" to the screen.

"The Valachi Papers" are to "The Godfather" what fact is to fiction.

"One of the reasons many Americans were afraid to make this picture was the reaction of Italian-Americans," said De Laurentiis.

"Well, I am an Italian. I could do it without being accused of many things. But I say also there are 22 million Italians in the United States. My picture involves only 5,000 mobsters."

"No good Italian will identify with these criminals."

NEITHER is De Laurentiis concerned with reprisals from the Mafia.

"In my country there is organized crime, of course," he explained. "But the Mafia works on a different basis over there. They are involved in land ownership and agriculture — not prostitution, dope and gambling."

"What interests me is that 'The Valachi Papers' was on the best-seller list for 26 weeks, but no one in America bought it for the movies."

"So I bought it in 1968 before 'The Godfather' was published. But I couldn't get anyone to work with me on distribution. They were afraid."

"When Vito Genovese died in February, 1969, I started production. I don't glamorize the gangsters like they do in 'The Godfather.' That one is a pro-Mafia movie. Mine is historic fact."

De Laurentiis is a brusque man of strong opinions and full of kinetic action. He speaks bluntly and forcefully.

"After three weeks shooting in New York I heard from the Italian-American League. They wanted me to delete the words Mafia and Cosa Nostra from my picture, also the names of Genovese, Lucci, Maranzano and Masserlo.

"MOVED the picture to Rome right away and kept shooting. I told them to call the author of the book and sue him if they objected.

"Yes, Italians are proud people. But this film has nothing to do with Italians. It deals with facts. If it were fiction that would be altogether different.

"Organized crime is a plague to society and someone must have the guts to denounce it on the screen. If it is an Italian who does this, so much the better."

The producer and director Terrance Young are at pains not to make any of the Cosa Nostra characters even slightly sympathetic. The audience cannot take sides, as it did in "The Godfather."

There are no good Mafiosi in De Laurentiis' picture because he is convinced there is no such animal as a good killer.

Sign Removal: One Approach

There's more than one way to encourage the removal of landscape-blotting billboards from highways

The state of Oregon, it seems, has developed a policy of encouraging billboard operators to take the initiative in getting rid of signs on interstate and primary roads.

If the system clears the Oregon legislature, the plan might well be considered in other states, such as Illinois.

Briefly, Oregon finds that in order to receive federal highway funds, it must meet certain standards as to billboard removal.

After six years of discussion, Oregon and the federal government have agreed on a system which rewards billboard owners more lucratively than available under other plans.

Payment is based on a formula that provides 34 times the monthly income of the sign. That's roughly $200 to $225 per sign higher than any previous government-approved formula under study in other states — and it will cost some $600,000 more in state funds to pay the bill for this.

Understandably, formal approval is up to the lawmakers. But there's a catch which makes the program a little more desirable to those opposed to billboards but concerned about the information they supply to passing motorists.

The Oregon law calls for establishment of a Travel Information Council to handle billboard regulation and to plan tourist information centers. And highway "logo" signs have been added on Interstate 5 in Oregon to advise motorists about upcoming services.

Illinois is moving in the same direction, too. A compensation formula is being worked out for owners of billboards who've registered their signs with the state — and state officials report they registered 18,000 billboards before the Sept. 28 deadline.

The truth is that we've got to pay for a landscape free of unsightly billboards. If we choose not to pay the price tag — whether in local, state or federal tax dollars — we're stuck with the signs.

If we should follow in Oregon's pattern, we perhaps could clean up the landscape while still providing traveler information. We'd only hope that Oregon's strategy — roadside information booths — doesn't blot the landscape as billboards now do.

Fish Lib

Scientists have discovered a funny thing about a little fish inhabiting Australia's Great Barrier Reef.

It seems that the basic social unit among "Labroides dimidiatus," commonly called wrasse, is a male with a harem of three to six females. The male dominates the females and the larger females dominate the smaller females.

The funny thing is that when the male dies, the No. 1 female begins to undergo a sex reversal, and after 14 to 18 days becomes a biologically true male. She — or, rather, he — then takes over the harem.

Zoologist D. R. Robertson of the University of Queensland theorizes that any female wrasse is capable of becoming a male but domination by the male represses this natural tendency. Once the domination is removed, the female's potential for leadership is permitted to come forth.

Everybody and his uncle is drawing human lessons from animal behavior these days. The temptation to do the same with the wrasse is too great to resist.

Will the women's liberation movement result in the emergence of increasingly masculine females, who will lord it over other females?

Will the male of the human species become increasingly feminized under the stress of this challenge to his leadership?

Did the person who first called a henpecked husband a "poor fish" know something the scientists are just finding out?

A New Odor Test

The Environmental Protection Agency is trying to come up with a way of measuring odor pollution.

It proposes adoption of a test in which a panel of eight persons sniff air containing varying concentrations of some odiferous substance. When half the panel can detect the odor, this constitutes one "odor unit." Presumably, a plant emitting ting too many "odor units" would be subject to penalties.

Some critics question how scientific such a test is. But as a Supreme Court justice said in another connection, you may not be able to define obscenity but you sure know it when you see it — or in this case, smell it.

Sports Complex Needs Lockers With Keys

I recently went skating at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex. I took my boots off and left them under one of the benches and proceeded to start skating. About half way through the session I went off the ice and went to check to see if my boots were still there. I did not find them anywhere, so I started looking in all of the lockers, thinking some immature punks had put them in there for some kind of joke. I told the office and one of the girls helped me look, again in the lockers.

This fantastic rink, as everyone claims it to be, has hundreds of lockers, but no keys in one of them. I also bought an arena pass for the winter for $20. What kind of rink is this when you can't even lock your shoes up to keep them from getting stolen. For the price of $20, I surely think that they should offer better security for your shoes than just leaving them on the floor.

All of the commissioners and park district officials should start using some brains and get some keys for the lockers. The swimming pool locker room has keys for the lockers, why not the rink.

From that day on I have been skating at the Arlington Ice Spectrum. The rink has better facilities, and is much better organized.

Ed Hanrahan: Why He Lost

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Talk to a dozen people this week and you'll get 12 different ideas about how State's Atty. Edward (Fast Eddie) Hanrahan managed to lose his campaign for reelection to Bernard Carey, the man not too many people figured had a chance.

All the explanations for Hanrahan's defeat, which he was calling victory early Tuesday in his typical style, are legitimate. But they're not as different as their respective proponents seem to think.

Sooner or later, they all boil down to the same thing — Fast Eddie, through the auspices of his caustic tongue, managed to give 60 per cent of the voters at least one good reason to dislike him.

It almost seemed Hanrahan was doing everything he could think of to alienate as many voters as possible.

He attacked so many groups, everyone lost count. One of Carey's campaign slogan's found wide acceptance — "Everyone is out of step except Hanrahan."

But there has been only minor mention of one factor which may have been a major factor in cooling off Hanrahan's illustrious political career.

He never should have gotten into a squabble with Carey's wife.

The incident didn't get too much play in the papers, but apparently what it got was enough to cost Hanrahan some votes. And obviously he couldn't afford to lose any.

After a name-calling session with Carey on a television show, Hanrahan is said to have continued the invective on his way out of the studio. Before it was over, Hanrahan reportedly snarled a few words to Carey's wife, Mary Rita, something to the effect, "You can have him."

It really wasn't any big thing, except some people apparently took it that way. Reports from several south suburban townships which were supposed to be Hanrahan strongholds, indicated many women, including many Democratic women, immediately defected from Fast Eddie's camp.

For them, finally Hanrahan had gone too far. They could accept Hanrahan's war with everyone else to that point. But now he had taken on Mary Rita Carey, and even many Democratic women feel she is "a little doll."

For the first time they realized what was meant by the phrase describing Hanrahan as "temporally unfit." Finally they saw that Hanrahan simply can't control his emotions.

And they voted against him.

Now it is more appropriate to consider what Hanrahan will do next, rather than why he lost.

There are many opinions on that too.

The most common theory voiced so far is that he will become a judge. Hanrahan is saying — not yet anyway.

But if he's temporally unfit to be a prosecutor, imagine him as a judge. Every defendant to come before him would be requesting a change of venue, especially if the defendant happens to be black.

A second possibility was mentioned by Hanrahan himself.

During another television confrontation, Hanrahan told Chicago Tribune Editor Clayton Kirkpatrick that Edward Hanrahan could do a better job of running the newspaper.

Maybe he'll open up his own paper and show the rest of the newspaper world how it should be done.

That doesn't sound bad. It sure would make for some interesting reading. But you'd have to wonder how Hanrahan would react to criticism of his paper half as fiery as that he has heaped on other papers for years.

The third alternative is by far the most attractive and it's the one Hanrahan specifically mentioned within a few days of the election. "I'll learn how to play the piano proficiently," Hanrahan said, or something to that effect.

Who knows, maybe in a few years, when he gets good enough, we'll see Hanrahan in a concert hall, playing classical music.

That might suit him well. Artists are excused for having explosive temperaments. But pity the poor music critic who suggests the artist hits some keys harder than others.

Or, if Hanrahan decided to go in another direction, we might find him at a piano-bar in a nightclub, playing a medley of "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head," "Where Did All the Flowers Go," and "I'll Get By."

But picture the poor drunk who interrupts, requesting, "Play a little 'Melancholy Baby,' will ya fella?"

He'll wish he had voted for Hanrahan.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A wave of construction of budget motels, charging less than $10 a night for single occupancy and sometimes as little as $11 for a couple, is cutting the cost of travel in the United States.

Day's Inns of Atlanta, which operates 28 budget hotels, says in newspaper advertisements — "Mr. Salesman, if you paid more than $10 for your room tonight, you paid too much!"

Laventhal, Kreksten, Horwath & Horwath, statisticians of the lodging industry, named eight chains of budget motels in operation with a total of 200 motels and seven other chains organized to operate budget motels that haven't yet built any.

Lowest cost of those already in operation are Motel 8 of Santa Barbara, Calif., with 94 units at $6.60 a night and Scottish Inns of America, Kinston, Tenn., 26 motels at $6 a night. Econo-Travel Motor Inns of Norfolk, Va., with 28 establishments, charges $7.50 a night for a single room. Also in the $8 class with Day's is Thr-Rift Inns of Newport News, Va., with five motels. Happy Inns of Orlando, Fla., and Chalet Motor Lodges of Nashua, N.H., with 11 units between them, are around $9 and Imperial "400" of Englewood Cliffs, N.J., charges an average of $10 at its 104 units.

BUDGET MOTELS THAT have been organized but not yet in business include Friendly Inns of Carlisle, Pa., Family Inns of Rocky Mount, N.C., Southern Scottish Inns of New Orleans, Regal 8 Inns of Mt. Vernon, Ill., Country Squire Inns of Perry, Ga., and Overnight Inns, which hasn't even set up a headquarters.

The huge Holiday Inns, Inc., is in the budget motel business in a tiny way. It has some little fiber glass cabinet junior inns with rates as low as $6. Kemmons Wilson and Wallace Johnson of Memphis, founders of Holiday Inns, didn't go too far with the junior inn venture partly because they ran into bitter opposition from Adolph and Joel Krisch.

Snowmobile Accidents Are Booming

They control American Motor Inns of Roanoke, Va., the largest single Holiday Inn franchise operator.

John Lesure, Orlando, Fla., partner in Laventhal, Kreksten, Horwath & Horwath and the company's motel expert, said the budget motel is the greatest competitive threat that the motel and hotel industry faces. He said the budget motels appeal primarily to salesmen and "to the family en route to a destination, including campers." He said neither of these traveling types wants swimming pools or television, nor does he care if there is no bar or no restaurant in the motel. In his 1972 report on motel industry trends, Lesure pointed out that the operating costs of motels without restaurants or bars are usually at least 20 per cent below those of the full service motels.

LESURE TOLD United Press International the big motel chains provoked the budget hotel movement in two ways. They built too many fancy motels and, when occupancy began to fall off two years ago, they tried to compensate by raising room prices sharply.

The $18 and $20 a night rate for double occupancy was already common two years ago. But during 1971, this rate was pushed up to $22 and even as high as $27 including sales taxes.

Single occupancy rates at the more elaborate motels have ranged from $14 up this year. Lesure said a 2 per cent increase in occupancy rates the first four months of 1972 helped the standard motels somewhat but that competition from the new budget chains is becoming a real challenge.

A set of rules for protecting more than your pocketbook — though that, too was proposed by the American Society of Oral Surgeons at its recent annual meeting.

ASOS members are the surgical specialists who repair broken faces, and they're concerned about something that can entail not only heavy medical expenses but disfigurement and death — the mushrooming number of snowmobile accidents.

It's estimated by the Federal Safety Board that more than a million snowmobiles are now in use in the United States. The surgical society has called on the federal government to set strict safety standards for them, because of "a tragic rise in mishaps — many of which have caused serious injuries to the victim's faces."

A RESEARCH team of the highly regarded Marshfield Clinic in Wisconsin reported to the society on a three-year study of snowmobile accidents:

servative operation for beginners who want to avoid broken faces.

THE MARSHFIELD Clinic study included these additional findings, which speak for themselves if you'd avoid accidents:

• Three-fourths of the mishaps occurred at night.

• More than half — 51 per cent — took place in open fields, filled with hidden hazards.

• Three-fourths of the injured had not been wearing a snowmobile suit, helmet, or face protector.

DR. RICHARD A. Peters of the clinic condemned most helmets used by snowmobilers as "totally inadequate." Too many drivers settle for the inexpensive, plastic helmets commonly used by motorcycle. Their only virtue is that they sell for about $10. They tend to become brittle at low temperatures, said Dr. Peters, urging riders to wear the newer fiberglass helmets — even though a good one costs about $45.

A $3 saving is poor economy, needless to say, considering the hazards of a fractured skull or broken face.

Face shields also drew Dr. Peters' criticism. Not only do they tend to fog up, he said, but do little or no good in preventing injuries. The clinic group already has contacted manufacturers to urge marketing of a combination helmet with a metal cage-shield, similar to those worn by football players.

Shortage Of Oil, Gas Is A Big Worldwide Problem

by NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The figures being collected in State Department Room 3524A—the Office of Fuels and Energy—are chilling for ordinary consumers, captains of industry, and high policy makers.

James E. Akins, the soft-spoken but articulate director of Room 3524A, spelled out in an interview the consequences of the United States of the world energy crisis and the continuing shortages of oil, natural gas and electricity.

—The federal government may ask automakers to produce more efficient cars. American cars consume about 100 trillion gallons of gasoline a year.

—Oregon's lead in banning the convenient, flip-top aluminum can could spread across the United States. It takes approximately 10 times as much energy to produce an aluminum can as the old-fashioned tin can.

—Electricity rates may be changed to encourage more rational usage of electricity. Large consumers may be charged more, rather than less. Rates for off-peak hours may be lowered to encourage use of domestic appliances after 9 p.m. when commercial and industrial demands ease off.

ARE ELECTRIC tooth brushes and carving knives really necessary?

—Tougher standards for insulation in new homes may be promoted. Loss of heat is a significant factor in the consumption of heating oil.

These are some possible domestic measures that might be taken to ease the situation, Akins suggested. A career foreign service officer with experience in Lebanon, Syria and Kuwait, Akins jokes sardonically about the "throwaway U.S. economy."

For example, he said, "the over-lighting of U.S. houses, tends to raise their inside temperatures. This contributes to an overuse of air conditioners."

The heart of the problem is the fact that the United States can no longer supply its own needs in oil or natural gas. U.S. oil production will run about 12 million barrels a day in 1972, for example, while consumption will be about 16.6 million barrels a day.

"The United States is now the world's largest importer of oil and the situation shows every sign of getting worse," Akins told a conference on energy at the Middle East Institute in September. "In 1970 we imported 3.2 million barrels per day of oil; in 1971, 3.7; this year imports rose to 4.5 million barrels a day, and next year, the estimates are nearly six million barrels a day."

The long-range forecast is sobering, both from the standpoint of the drain on the already unfavorable U.S. balance of payments and the importance of oil imports to national security.

"The rate of growth in oil imports is increasing and, with currency adjustments, the amount paid per barrel has also gone up," Akins said. "With the further price increases we expect, and with prospective imports of 12 million barrels a day in 1980, the net cost to the U.S. could be over $10 billion a year, taking into account company remittances and the most optimistic figures on increased U.S. exports connected with this trade."

THE UNITED STATES is not alone in its need. Western Europe consumed 12 million barrels of oil a day in 1970. Japan consumed about 3.5 million barrels a day in 1970 and is expected to consume 10 million a day by 1980.

The threatening oil situation has been a long time in developing. When Western oil companies began exploiting the Middle East oil reserves in the period between the two world wars, they obtained exceedingly favorable concessions. They made big profits. And they took unusual risks.

In 1960 the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) was formed to combat the erosion of crude oil prices that occurred in the late 1950s. The oil exporting countries at first achieved only minor success in bolstering the price of crude oil.

Then came the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. The war closed the Suez Canal, forcing Europe to increase its dependence on Libyan oil. The hostilities increased the antipathy of the Arabs towards the Western countries because of their alleged sympathies for Israel. And when the radical 29-year-old Col. Muammar Al-Khadafy toppled Libyan King Idris in 1969, a confrontation developed.

Libya spearheaded a movement aimed at the Western oil companies to increase their payments to the oil producing countries. With Western oil demand steadily increasing, the companies had to agree to sharp increases in payments in 1971.

As a result, crude oil prices have climbed. And they give every indication of rising higher and higher.

The U.S. diplomatic establishment, along with other federal agencies, is now searching for a solution. Secretary of State William P. Rogers has assigned Akins, 46, a major role in the effort.

Here are some of the conclusions which diplomats such as Akins are discussing with Congress, the oil companies, other diplomats, scholars and experts.

—THE ENERGY crisis must be viewed in its over-all proportions, not just as an oil problem, nor even as a natural gas problem, or an electricity shortage problem, or just an American problem. Energy is a "continuum." A shortage in one area of energy supply leads to greater demands on the other areas, a lack of oil increases demand for electricity, and natural gas.

—The United States, Japan and Western Europe are all in the same boat. They must face the future together, preferably in cooperation, not cut-throat competition. Together they must find new supplies—clean nuclear energy, solar power, geo-thermal power, the power of the oceans' tides and other exotic methods—as well as consume the traditional reserves.

—The United States should move vigorously to build the Alaska pipeline to bring North Slope oil to the United States. This will make available two million barrels a day—not enough to solve the crisis but to temper it mildly. The United States should also push the search for offshore oil elsewhere—despite the environmentalists.

—The United States should give serious consideration to investing in the exploitation of Venezuela oil, which currently is more expensive to produce than oil from other world sources. But with the rise of crude oil prices elsewhere, it may be more attractive.

—The United States should give serious study to a proposal by Shek Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian Minister of Oils and Minerals, for a special U.S.-Saudi commercial agreement that would permit Saudi oil to enter the United States free of restrictions and duties over the long-term, and encourage increasing Saudi investment in oil marketing in the United States.

—The United States should explore the possibility of importing oil and natural gas from countries that have been critical or even antagonistic to the United States. Progress already is being made by U.S. firms in efforts to import liquefied natural gas from the radical government of Algeria, and discussions are going forward with the Soviet Union. "I have outlined frequently on other platforms the measures that might be considered to protect ourselves," Akins said in concluding his Middle East Institute address.

"Some will be expensive and may well be unpopular but they are credible and they must be taken. I have frequently expressed my absolute conviction that we will indeed move soon in this direction."

'Recruit Day' For Guardsmen

The Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps of Mount Prospect has invited all young men and women in the area to attend a "Recruit Day" from 12 to 4 p.m., Nov. 19 at Wheeling High School, Hinsdale and Elmhurst roads, Wheeling.

The "A" Corps, which now totals 120 members, is made up of youth from almost a dozen suburbs as well as Chicago. Girls as well as boys participate in every phase of the Corps, including Color Guard, Rifle and Saber Squad and Drum and Bugle.

Prospective members need not have experience playing an instrument since all recruits undergo a six-week trial period before being accepted. Though all uniforms and instruments are supplied by the corps, there is a $5 monthly fee.

Besides the regular corps, youngsters between the ages of 9 and 12 can apply for membership in the Guardsmen Cadets, a training unit for the "A" Corps.

Vietnam Was Different—Way Back In Autumn Of 1965

by TOM TIEDE

NEW YORK — Henry Kissinger was a college researcher, Madame Nguyen Thi Binh a housewife, Le Duc Tho generally unknown — and Richard Nixon practiced law in Manhattan. In the autumn of 1965, when the United States began in earnest to go to war again, all was different in Vietnam. It was a new experiment. "Conceived in liberty," as the planners put it. The facts were clear: America was helping a friend.

The autumn of '65, U. S. involvement in Southeast Asia was already 15 years old, troop strength in Vietnam alone was more than 125,000, some 25-30 names were recorded on the weekly casualty lists — but only a few back home wondered why.

It was a different day, a different world. Those who protested always wore sandals and needed their toenails cut. The idea, after all, was to defend democracy. And Americans set about it with patriotic unity, if not much actual interest.

I made the first of six trips to the combat zone in the autumn of 1965.

"Where are you going?" a friend asked.

"Vietnam," I replied.

"What for?"

"The war."

"Lucky you. I sure would like to travel."

BUT IF the homefolks were naive, so were many of us, newsmen and GI's, at the front. There was no front, but we had to say the front in the autumn of '65, because that's the way past wars had been described and too few of us had the perception to view this much differently. It was, no doubt, World War II all over.

Right vs. wrong. Good vs. evil.

"I am here," explained 21-year-old

Pfc. Harold Pruitt, of Salem, Va., in October of that year, "to contain the enemy. I think sometimes the American people forget that. But if we don't stop them here, we'll be fighting them next in California or New York." He said it proudly. I wrote it the same. Within two months more than 50,000 readers responded with letters, to "Any GI in Vietnam," asserting that a believing America hadn't really forgotten.

Indeed, it was difficult to think otherwise but patriotically then. Especially for those on the scene. In war, even debatable war, it's Us vs. Them for the participants. When friends die, whoever does the killing is the enemy and never mind the philosophical arguments.

I remember Milton Olive, as example. "A nice lad, 18 years old, from Chicago. Carried a Bible, he did, and read it. One day on patrol with a unit of the 173rd Airborne Brigade, he and several others had clustered in a group during a fire-fight. A hand grenade was tossed in between them. Everybody scattered except Milt Olive. He grabbed the grenade and pulled it into his stomach. He was never to read the Bible again. And nobody who was there, nobody who knew him, could have anything except condemnation for the side that committed the murder.

HERE WERE, of course, hundreds of other Milt Olives in the autumn of '65. And regardless of one's views on the morality of the situation, there can be no denying those people had a special fortitude fighting as they were in the unpopular conflict, forgotten as they were by most everybody but their own family. Again, not many stopped to consider who the soldiers (mostly) were. Eighteen, 19, 20-year-old kids from middle class down. Kids who didn't have the money to buy their way out of the war via college. Kids so woven into the fabric of their nation that they did not, at the time, have the cheek to object. Kids. That's something else ridiculous. We called them kids, or boys. Like hell they were. They were young men.

And I shall always believe they deserved better than they got.

There was the one from Cleveland, who had his legs blown off by a land mine, and who died before he received the Dear John letter from a girl who did not want a cripple. There was Terry Hinson, from Texas, who joined the Army at 18, killed his first man at 17, then became part of the reason for an age limit requirement in Southeast Asia. There was Everett Goias, San Francisco, a jolly sort who friends said didn't have any enemy in the world, except one — the fellow who shot him seven times one November afternoon and killed him.

The professor has written several books, three concerning the orthogenic school, and others dealing with problems of social psychology and related issues. His book, "Dialogues with Mothers," is based on his years spent helping parents of normal children with the problems of childrearing.

Born in Vienna, the professor received his doctorate in psychology and philosophy from the University of Vienna. He and his wife have raised a family of three children.

Degree For Norton

Donald Clark Norton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Norton, 145 Ashland St., Hoffman Estates, was graduated recently from Quincy College, Quincy, with a B.S. in elementary education.

A 1968 graduate of St. Vincents High School, Norton was named to the honor roll for the final half of the past academic year.

On SIU's Dean's List

Three Hoffman Estates students have been named to the dean's list for the spring quarter at Southern Illinois University.

Earning grade point averages of 4.25 or better on a 5 point scale were Timothy Forman, 103 Audubon Pl.; Gerald Kumpf, 234 Berkley Ln., and Michael Richardson, 198 Jefferson Rd.

one period in the war 90,000 South Vietnamese soldiers ran away from their units each month, and crooked merchants. In Cu Chi, for instance, GI's from the 25th Division used to pay $10 for a sure case of VD, $2 for taxi rides that formerly cost a few pennies, and 10 times the proper amount for ice blocks that invariably melted in half by the time they were carried to camp.

Often, the soldiers were more than cheated by the allies, they were victimized, too. When the First Air Cavalry set up shop outside An Khe, in September of 1965, troopers were forbidden entrance into the village. "We've found things like ground up glass in the Cokes," explained a Division officer. That wasn't all they found. In An Khe and other places GI's were too often exposed to booby-trapped children, Viet Cong assassins (who had working arrangements with local police), and, in many memorable instances, bars that specialized in luring new customers for their heroin trade.

So it was that Americans came to hate their friends. And even in the autumn of '65 with My Lai more than a year off, the contempt was going beyond civilities. A GI trucker (25th Infantry) ran down a child, laughing. A Long Range Reconnaissance Patrol (273rd Airborne Brigade) was adept at bringing back dead enemy ears and selling them. When bored, some soldiers would get their kicks by shooting down farm animals and carving their initials in the hide. One crazy battalion commander offered his men a case of whisky for the first one to chop off a Viet Cong head.

NGUYEN VAN PHUOC, a student leader of the time, was one of the few Vietnamese who protested the GI disgraces. He published a newspaper at the University, and was formally censored by Saigon authorities for advocating U.S.-South Vietnamese peace.

"How could you bring peace?" he was asked.

"The best way?"

"The best way."

"I'D SHOOT EVERY American as he got off the boat."

All was not total bitterness between the allies, of course. It was still 1965, remember, and people were still seeing lights at the end of the tunnel, and charity lived. U.S. physicians volunteered time from their careers to work without pay, in what passed for Vietnamese hospitals (in the Can Tho civilian hospital an American doctor estimated that 40 per cent of the patients died).

GI's collected food and money for otherwise friendless orphans.

I remember a French nurse on the northern side of Tay Ninh city asking: "What would we do without the Americans?" She ran a leper colony. Her 400 patients were outcasts. The grounds were littered with eroding flesh and dying human beings. Yet: "The Americans give us everything. It makes the patients comfortable. That is a very great favor for us."

And so it was, in the autumn of 1965. The war was just heating up. But all the heroics and horrors of it were already in evidence. James Wright of Dallas, 18, wondering in a hospital bed whether or not his bomb-mangled face could ever be made right. Craig Smith, a Mexican-American, vomiting at the sight of his first dead body. Dr. Buck Harper, an Army captain, saving the legs of a Vietnamese infant in a crude Army tent. There was energy, enthusiasm, even optimism as the United States "on the side of God," as one chaplain said, began to let blood. "If I had to guess," said a top general, "I'd say it'll all be over inside a year."

THERE WERE a lot of us caught up in enthusiasm and optimism of the autumn of 1965. Not only generals and soldiers, but newsmen, politicians and private citizens.

Remember?

We all, most of us, applauded then.

PITTBURGH® PAINT SPECIAL!

AND THIS in turn gave rise to a rare phenomenon in the pursuit of combat; the United States began to blame the south Vietnamese for the predicament, the obviously deepening dilemma, and in time began to hate its allies as much or more than its enemy. Soldiers arriving in Saigon, late in 1965, had learned from the soldiers who had gone before that the nation consisted of whores, grafters, and shrimp soldiers who slept on guard duty. Rare was the man in American uniform here who had anything but contempt for the "gooks."

Some of this contempt to be sure, was legitimate. By late 1965, most South Vietnamese cities of any size were havens for draft dodgers (estimates go up to a quarter million), military deserters (at

And now, two-and-a-half-million Americans in South Vietnam have been killed or wounded, 100,000 women have lost their husbands, and 350,000 children have become war orphans.

Now we all look back and, too late, finally wonder why.

An Ex-Priest Faces Deportation

by TOM TIEDE

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — When Benedict Lawrence Butler was a boy, living in South Africa, he made a solemn promise to his Irish mother: He would go to America, become a priest — and spend his life working at the business of saints. That was 36 years ago.

The promise never quite worked out.

The boy did emigrate to America. Did become a priest. But today, the 59-year-old Benedict Butler is more sinner than saint. His mother ("dead many years now") can no longer care, but his adopted land does. And therein lies a sad, simple, sorry story.

Let Butler himself begin it:

"I was one of 12 children. In a little town I can hardly even spell anymore: O-u-d-i-s-h-o-o-r-n. Oudshoorn. In South Africa. My father and mother were both religious. Especially my mother. She was strict Catholic. Anyway, they always wanted one of us children to become a priest or a nun. One of my brothers was picked out early and groomed for the job, but then he decided to get married. That broke my mother's heart. I still remember her and dad sitting up late at night talking sadly about it. I couldn't take that. I couldn't bear to see them so unhappy. So I decided to take my brother's place. I didn't really want to become a priest, but I wanted to please my parents. So I left South Africa and came to America to start my training."

Butler arrived in Washington, D.C., in 1936 and enrolled in Catholic University. He stayed there, for the next 10 years, on a student visa. He never became a citizen. At first he didn't want to — then, after a while, when he decided to stay permanently, "I thought about citizenship, but I just didn't think it was necessary." When he became a priest officially, he applied for and received a permanent resident visa, in 1947.

His first assignment in the world of goodness was at the Blessed Trinity Church in Washington. Then he was transferred to the Milwaukee diocese, Holy Cross Church. Then to St. Theresa. Then to a parochial school. "But all this time," he says, "while I was moving around, I was not happy. The priesthood was not a vocation for me. I knew that deep inside. I had taken all the vows, but, inside, I wasn't really a priest. Can you understand that? I wasn't really a priest, and this bothered me all the time."

IN 1951 BENEDICT Butler took his collar and his cross and placed them in storage. "I didn't quit. I wasn't excommunicated or anything. I just decided it would be best if I stopped preaching." He tells of the decision, even now, with apprehension. As if God was going to get him for it. As if God, indeed, already has.

Butler learned a new trade quickly. Tire recapping. He says he became a steady, reliable 8-to-5 worker. "I was with one company for 10 years. Never late for work. I was clean. My record was clean. I worked my way up to foreman and I once had 35 under me." Still, the new job was not totally satisfying. Perhaps because Butler could not forget his conscience. "It's not easy to just quit being a priest."

He never married. He never formed close friends. He became one of the masses, another face in the inner city, and a very lonely, very troubled, very vulnerable man.

At one time, Butler started drinking. Wrongly. Heavily. Alone in his room, late at night, with a TV shining in one corner. He was not, he says an alcoholic. But never mind the terminology. He got loaded with increasing frequency, got in with equally inebriated pals, and got finally into crime. "Over the years I guess I cashed thirty-to-thirty-five forged checks. I don't know exactly how many. Thirty, thirty-five or more. Including one federal check for $98.80, it was a welfare check. I never stole any of the checks. I just cashed them. I don't know why. Most of the time, I think, I was drunk."

Last year, on Holy Thursday, Milwaukee police arrested Butler on several counts. Since then two courts have given him five years probation. And now the real crisis arises. Noting that the ex-priest, though 36 years in America, is not a citizen, immigration authorities recently stepped in with a charge of their own: "Any alien convicted of two crimes involving moral turpitude in subject to deportation."

IN OTHER WORDS, says Butler, "they are thinking about kicking me out of America. Like I was in the Mafia or something. I told them I was sorry for what I did. I told them I loved America. But they still said I may have to go back to South Africa."

And so it is. Three-and-a-half decades after his promise to his mother, Benedict Butler is increasingly sorry he ever tried to make her happy. He works now, on a night shift, alone, in a Milwaukee alcoholic rehabilitation center. He has been a failure, a drunk, a crook and a jailbird. Now he has to worry about his future as well as his past. "If they send me back, I don't know what I'd do. I don't remember anybody there, I'm an American. I never took out the papers, okay. I did some bad things. Okay. But I'm an American."

Chances are Benedict Butler will remain an American. Immigration officials say that about 17,500 aliens are deported annually, 250-300 of them for criminal activities; but Butler's case, so far, may not be so serious. Given his work as a priest and his spotless previous years as a U.S. resident, he will "most likely" be reprimanded but not deported. Besides, says one immigration authority, "From what I hear about Mr. Butler's life, it may be that the man has already suffered enough."

Some Facts About Prostate Surgery

Dear Dr. Lamb — Are there two methods for surgery for complete removal of the prostate gland — one with an irrigation channel through the abdominal wall with a hole in the bladder and another with a two-way catheter (one admitting irrigating water and the other tube draining as a regular catheter)? If so what are the reasons one is preferred over the other?

Dear Reader — You are really describing two different operations, both of which are common in individuals who have prostate gland problems. The prostate gland is located at the outlet of the bladder and when it enlarges too much it can shut off the flow of urine. Sometimes, because of the degree of obstruction and problems which result, it is necessary to drain the over-distended bladder through a tube which is inserted into the abdominal wall directly into the bladder. This operation is called a cystotomy. It allows free drainage and helps get the patient ready for prostate surgery.

The bladder can be drained by passing a catheter through the urethra unless there is too much of an obstruction and in this case a cystotomy has to be used.

Probably the most common form of prostate surgery today is through a specialized device passed just like a catheter to the region of the prostate and then portions of the prostate are removed with an electro-cautery and the pieces irrigated out through the tube with salt water. Thereafter in the post-operative period the catheter is left in place to be used for irrigating out clots that have occurred because of the operation and to provide drainage. Once adequate drainage is established, the cystotomy tube is taken out and the abdominal hole closed.

Now, clearly not everybody needs a cystotomy and in fact many people have prostate surgery without it.

Another common method of removing the prostate is through an incision above the public bone and then by direct surgical means the prostate is removed from its location at the outlet of the bladder.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have read and several people have told me of articles concerning gallstones in which the article stated that it is possible for gallstones to be dissolved by treatment. Thus, it would not be necessary to have surgical removal of the gallbladder. Can you give me any information on this?

Dear Reader — Yes, there have been several reports on this. The experimental work has been done at the Mayo Clinic, but I would have to add that it is still in the experimental stages and although early studies have shown that gallstones can be dissolved, this doesn't mean that everybody who has gallstones will be a candidate for such treatment.

Chicago Defense Unit Wins Honor

The Chicago Defense, made up of Nike Hercules units located throughout the Chicago area, was named best in the Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM), during a recent defense combat evaluation competition in Colorado Springs. Announcement of the winner was made by Lt. General Richard T. Cassidy, ARADCOM commander.

In a letter to Colonel James C. Finsterle, Chicago Defense commander, General Cassidy said: "This coveted award attests to the exceptional leadership, singularly professional competence, dedication, and attention to detail demonstrated by the Chicago Defense throughout this fiscal year." He added that the Chicago Defense scored the second highest ever achieved during a defense combat evaluation.

In recognition of the accomplishment, the Chicago Defense received a plaque for permanent retention and the rotating

'Center Needed Now'

PTYO Lists Site Plans

Due to the recent publicity and controversy surrounding a future library site for Palatine, the Palatine Township Youth Organization (The Joint) feels that the public should be made aware of several proposals that have been made to them (and by them) by other organizations regarding the usage of the PTYO property on Smith Street (the former LeVade Ranch).

To bring all interested stockholders and others up to date, about a year and a half ago the PTYO was approached by the Library Board and a village trustee concerning the possibility of buying off a portion of the four and one half acre site for a future library — two and a half to three acres with cross easements for parking with the teen center building in back. Via the grapevine we heard they were afraid of a teen center and library being so close — what would people think? (More teens read books than the average adult) Palatine residents told the library twice what they thought about expensive land in the center of town, by voting down two referendums solidly.

The search was on again for a site in town, near town, all around town to please the village board so that they could get the approval.

In the meantime the Knights of Columbus approached the PTYO about getting this five year project to completion. They would like to leave something of permanence to the community and graciously had the faith in us to say they would help finance and provide the adult know how necessary to practically run a teen center.

We explained our commitment to the library people (even though we had not heard in months from them). The KC's wanted to know why we couldn't get together on this and see if we could revise our thinking to suit the needs of the community; after all, what everyone wanted to do was contribute a necessary service to the entire community.

We did change our thinking — teen centers are outdated; we knew we could not financially support a teen center but with KC's and PTYO renting out a Community Center for all organizations to enjoy or any individual for a party, wedding reception, anniversary or scout meeting we could do it. With a teen center included it would truly be a Community Center. The KC's subsequently had plans drawn up to build such a center; did some figuring to finance it and since they are an adult group, took steps to get it financed. The drawings are good but such a center will cost more than the $75,000 to $100,000 originally estimated. If the public should be made aware of several proposals that have been made to them (and by them) by other organizations regarding the usage of the PTYO property on Smith Street (the former LeVade Ranch).

The original cost of the property was paid for by bondholders of PTYO and contributions for what people thought was needed in the community five years ago. Should we give up and forget it like so many other things and times in Palatine or should we make another effort to get people to put their heads together and see the need NOW for a new library and the realization of a dream young people have had for five long years.

Here are the reasons why we think we have the best offer for a library site. That any money expended by the Library Board for land acquisition would go right back into a Community Center funded by a non-profit corporation rather than any private individual. The library board would obtain a site for FAR BELOW its present market value and the community would be enhanced by the building of the center. As to the opposition of locating the library away from the central business district of Palatine these are the pro factors that we have considered:

1) Parking is much more available on our land than in town.
2) The inadequate library facilities presently available.
3) Profitability of land cost in central business district.
4) Short-sidedness in not seeing that the business district is moving north and along Northwest Highway.
5) Long wait for proposed mall or municipal buildings.
6) We could hardly be threat to residents for future flooding — very few residents around us.

7) With the Jr. High, golf course, the train station and future shopping center that stoplights, sidewalks, water and sewer are inevitable.

8) Property is contiguous to Palatine for annexation into village proper.

This is our offer. The PTYO would be pleased to sell the entire four and one half acres parcel for approximately $100,000, merely reserving a portion of land on the rear of the site for a community center; all funds received to put into the building of the center. Let's get together and act now! Can we afford to wait five more years?

—PTYO Teen Board

Sex Ed Program Hit

I read with interest Mr. Rosenberg's letter when he mentioned that he was a professional writer who had been hired to write some assignments under a "Catholic viewpoint" for the Roman Catholic Church. I don't understand why my church (I am a Catholic) does this, but perhaps it explains by Mary Perkins Ryan, who has criticized Pope Paul VI and the encyclical Humanae Vitae was chosen as a main collaborator for editing the program "Becoming A Person."

This program encourages the children to discuss their parents and home life in the classroom in a kind of group confession. They are even asked if they think that their parents were right. The children are asked to discuss what their reaction is to discipline from parents. The sexual information they are fed and encouraged to discuss in mixed class is unbelievable. The 7th and 8th graders are taught about the use of contraceptives without being taught the Church's stand on them. In fact the program supports the use of contraceptives. The parents should see the teacher's manuals.

This "Becoming A Person" program was condemned by Cardinal O'Boyle of Washington, D.C. and Bishop Dwyer of Portland, Oregon has banned it from his diocese. Let's hope that the school board members remove this program from St. Joseph The Worker School.

Local Sex Ed Controversy Continues

I am writing in response to Mr. Joseph R. Rosenberger's letter regarding the need for sex education in the Catholic school. As long as Mr. Rosenberger is liberal enough to believe that Roman Catholic authorities can teach the Catholic faith, it's a shame Mr. Rosenberger does not take advantage of the open

Post-Election Trash

'You'd Better Watch Teichert's Actions'

I noted, with interest, the letter written by Peggy Daley Taylor criticizing Mayor Teichert. I would like to point out, however, that the criticism comes a bit late. Mayor Teichert has already introduced subsidized housing in Mount Prospect in the form of the Huntington Commons Apartments. One third of these apartments are being subsidized by the Illinois Housing Development Authority.

Since Mayor Teichert is still talking about where to build low-cost housing, I would suggest that Mount Prospect residents pay more attention to Mayor Teichert's behind-the-scenes activities or perhaps they may find the low-cost housing in their immediate area. Following Mr. Teichert's pattern with the Huntington Commons project, the residents most affected will be the last to know about it.

I might also add that while Mayor Teichert professes to be concerned about the welfare of local residents who may need help, it is somewhat odd that the subsidized apartments in Huntington Commons are being filled by people not from this area at all.

UNICEF Aids Commie Governments

I should like to comment on a recent letter from Mrs. Monna Posa entitled, "UNICEF's A Safe Choice."

I am amazed that even today there are some people gullible enough to believe that the United Nations is a worthwhile organization. It has been proved many times that most of the money appropriated by UNICEF is used to buy supplies for Communist countries because the Communist control over the U.N. makes this possible. This gives little or no help to needy children. On the contrary, these supplies only serve the Communist governments in keeping their enslaved people under subjection. The American taxpayer pays most of UNICEF's money.

Providing for the welfare of children in need is without question a most worthy project — but not when such efforts are used as a facade by the Communist organization. And, as one would expect from any agency connected with the United Nations, UNICEF has had more than its share of Communists on the payroll. For example the first chairman of UNICEF was Ludwig Rjachmann, a Communist from Soviet-controlled Poland. When he was subpoenaed in 1957 by the Senate Judiciary Committee to answer questions about his connections with Communist agent Alger Hiss, Rjachmann fled this country rather than appear before the committee.

The Communist permeation of UNICEF explains the many strange ways this "charitable" organization spends its money. The newsletter of the McGraw-Edison Company's Committee For Public Affairs of December 1961 pointed out: "The UNICEF appropriated $59 million between 1947 and 1958 to Communist countries. The U.S. furnished approximately $42 million of that money. UNICEF helped finance the U.N. aggression in Katanga in 1961, when hospitals were bombed and civilians were indiscriminately killed. And I quote from Stanton Evans' column in the Indianapolis News for Jan. 26 1962, 'When the U.N. was out of money for its Congo aggression, it borrowed $10 million, earmarked for UNICEF, from the U.S. government.'

It must be especially galling to the thousands of Americans whose loved ones have been killed or wounded in the Vietnamese war to read of the recently announced plans of UNICEF to funnel money to the government of Communist North Vietnam.

Because of its simply monstrous record, UNICEF hides behind a mask of alleged charity, for fear that the American public will come to realize that it is just one more "front" which the Communists are using to enslave the world.

Rosenberger's Stand Is Assailed

Mr. Joseph Rosenberger of Buffalo Grove apparently discerns in my criticism of his attack upon Catholic moral teachings implications of a constitutional dimension. In no sense, however, do I question his legal right to expound his ideas, however puerile. Rather, I point only to his lack of civility. The question is one merely of manners, not of First Amendment freedoms.

Mr. Rosenberger conjectures regarding my conduct had I been in Nazi Germany. Not having been there, I cannot satisfy his curiosity. In posing the question, however, Mr. Rosenberger appears to be suggesting an equation between his own potty-spirted attack upon a prayer vigil at St. Joseph the Worker Church and high-minded resistance to Nazi tyranny. Which nonsense suggests that Walter Mitty is alive and well, and living in Buffalo Grove.

I accept at face value Mr. Rosenberger's assertion that he has written at length on the subject of Catholic moral teaching. The fact remains nonetheless that his letters on the topic disclose only gross ignorance, both social and theological. In this field, as in others, writing varies considerably in quality. It is possible that bits and snatches of Mr. Rosenberger's prose rise above incompetence and achieve mediocrity; but I doubt it. Nor is it very important; the real point at issue here is Mr. Rosenberger's bad taste.

Mr. Rosenberger describes himself as a "professional author." How then explain his reliance upon infantile invective in lieu of reasoned discourse? The answer lies perhaps in the very looseness of the phrase, encompassing as it does not only skilled craftsmen but also hacks who churn out junk ranging from third rate advertising copy to pornographic novels. In any event a more precise appellation for Mr. Rosenberger is

China—Where You Can Instantly Tell Girls From Boys

SHANGHAI — China is one country where you can instantly tell the girls from the boys. This time of year, though, you have to do it by their hair, not their shapes. The boys are all closely trimmed, the women are bobbed, the girls wear pigtail.

Clad in the up-to-now standard Mao uniform of pants and jackets in varying shades of blue, gray and tan, and wearing flat, slipper-type shoes, the girls and women seem utterly shapeless.

What's more, the Communist Party has drummed into everyone such a puritanical streak that we had to travel more than 3,000 miles before getting the first sight of boy and girl so much as holding hands in public. Before coming, I'd read that even pairing off on a few bike rides was tantamount to engagement.

Up until we saw the hand-holding, we were making wry jokes to each other about where all the babies — and they're here by the millions — might be coming from.

Fighting to keep the birth rate down, the Mao regime has been seeking to convince everyone that the best marriage age for women is not before 24 or 25, and for men not before the age of 24.

A country with 800 million mouths to feed — it may be above that figure; nobody seems to have a precise figure — can't help but drive for birth control. Even at a 1 per cent gain, China will have a billion people by 2000.

The 1 per cent rate isn't holding. Even our interpreter-guides (able people from the national news agency and the foreign ministry) admit that birth control does not appear to be working in the countryside. That's the way it looked to us, too, surrounded as we were so much of the time by children from the toddling stage to the preteens.

Mrs. Li Hsui-ying, the handsome manager of an electronic factory in Shanghai, calls the late marriage age "a question of social atmosphere." Not at all incidentally, Mrs. Li is an ideal example of the emancipation of Chinese women.

IT MAY BE THAT Mao's China has produced "Women's Lib" on a far broader and swifter scale than has ever happened anywhere on earth. There seems not the slightest evidence of inferior status for women anywhere.

True, you see women digging ditches, and pushing and hauling carts, but men do the same jobs; and you see girls and women on automobile assembly lines, operating lathes and heavy cranes, working in the shipyards, doing everything that men do — and at the same pay scales.

Mrs. Li, 40, is typical of the mature, urban woman in that she wears her hair in the standard bob. It's a neat and attractive cut.

She is the kind of executive who inspires confidence. She knows every detail about her plant and apparently all of the 270 workers in the shop.

The plant makes silicon rectifiers (control circuits for changing AC current to DC), transformers, terminals and similar equipment.

Mrs. Li's parents were textile workers and she became one at the age of 12. At the time of "liberation" (Mao Tse-tung's taking over), she was an illiterate 17-year-old. She entered what she called a "spare-time school" (the larger plants low glances into its cities and massive interior. One such glimpse was afforded recently to a specially-picked 22-man delegation from the American Society of Newspaper Editors, taken on a 22-day, 4,000 mile tour. Among them was Norman E. Isaacs, currently professor of journalism at Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism; former executive editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times; past president of ASNE; and — since 1970 — a director of the Paddock Corporation and newspaper consultant to the Heralds. In an exclusive report for Herald readers, Isaacs has provided a personalized and detailed five-part account of his journey inside Communist China.

and farm communes run such adult education schools) and learned how to read and write.

Five years later she joined the Communist Party and has been rising ever since. She was elected the factory head out of a list of eight candidates. It seems clear that all through this society, workers vote for their leaders by secret ballot. We've heard it enough times now that I am convinced it is so.

Mrs. Li is by no means the only woman executive we have met. We started out in Peking two weeks earlier with Mrs. Wei Shu-ling, an equally lively and dynamic woman of 44, who runs the Peking Art and Craft Center, where 1,260 people make beautiful things in ivory and jade, as well as working in cloisonne, the delicate multi-coloring in enamels.

There were others, too, in various cities we have visited. All talk freely about family planning, about women who have had their fallopian tubes tied to

by JIM COOK

The fall is almost exclusively the season of premiers — on television, anyway.

On the Mid-Suburban League gridiron, the Super Bowl III championship game will be a rerun of 1971 — but only to the extent that the schools involved are returning to their lead roles in the season's climactic finale.

North Division champion Hersey and South Section titlist Elk Grove will take the same cue as last year when they enter the prep football spotlight tonight at Hersey at 8:00.

That's however, where the similarities abruptly end.

While the names have not been changed, the circumstances surrounding the area's 1972 fall extravaganza have all but undergone total metamorphosis.

In the '71 classic, Hersey was heavily favored to tackle conference honors. It was Hersey who deservedly carried a lofty area-ranked standard. And it was Hersey who afforded Elk Grove the luxury of a return engagement after the Huskies had apparently proved themselves in a 10-0 decision earlier that same season.

To appreciate the incredible turn of events one year has produced, Elk Grove may now be substituted for Hersey in every instance in the preceding paragraph.

Head coach Don Schnake's Grenadiers are rated second behind St. Viator, another Herald-area exponent, in reliable, yet mythical Chicagoland team appraisals.

Elk Grove has been deemed the favorite to repeat as MSL champion off a perfect 8-0 campaign that promises to leave memories as one of the most productive complete squads the area has ever produced.

But then there's Hersey which reaped a 5-3 harvest under highly successful head coach Joe Gliwa. The Huskies were the last team to hand Elk Grove a loss, the 10-0 affair in September of '71. Since then the Grenadiers have reeled off 14 straight triumphs — two of which claimed Hersey.

The oddsmakers and speculators have failed to erode the Huskies' confidence of completely adhering to last year's script — namely Elk Grove's 7-3 upset triumph.

"If I didn't think everybody on our team felt that we could win this game, we wouldn't show up," Gliwa bluntly stated. "I can't say that we enjoy the role of underdog, but there just seems no other place to put us."

Apparently Schnake would gladly trade places. The prospect of an upset has him upset. "It's not all that comfortable a position to be in," he said. "There are too many things leaning toward Hersey for anyone to get the impression we've got a cakewalk ahead of us."

One of Schnake's primary concerns is Hersey's mental attitude. "I really feel it hurts us a little bit that they were beaten last week. That can only serve to inject a little more determination into them."

Gliwa made no excuses for his team's 14-6 loss to Palatine last week and agrees with Schnake's evaluation of its effects. "It's difficult to be complacent after a loss," Gliwa admitted. "I don't think it was a question of looking past Palatine and toward Elk Grove. We had several opportunities to come from behind against them, but we didn't."

The complacency factor has also been recognized as a possible deterrent in the Elk Grove camp.

"The fact that we haven't been actually pressed the last few weeks could have a tendency to make us too loose for this one," Schnake said.

"We've been trying to take steps to prevent this, knowing that Hersey has geared themselves to a fine edge in preparation for tonight."

While Schnake frets, the Elk Grove

record still rings out loud and clear about a ball club which ranks among the better ones ever assembled in the Northwest suburbs. Behind a couple of guys named Jeff — Stewart and Schroeder — the Grenadier offense in 1972 piled up more yardage on the ground than any other squad in the 18-year history of the MSL.

When you talk about complete, total ball players, Stewart has to rank very near or at the top," Gliwa praised. "He's an excellent runner, thrower and defensive back. And don't be fooled by their big rushing total," he warned.

"ALTHOUGH THIS kid hasn't had to throw very much, we've seen him on a couple of occasions and he represents a helluva threat." Stewart literally "ran away" with total offense honors with over 1,000 stripes.

And when throwing becomes the subject, Hersey becomes the subject. Paced by junior slinger Mark Zukula, the Huskies have demonstrated a strong tendency to pass... and you can't knock success.

"This, I think, is where we will really be tested tonight," Schnake acknowledged. Not coincidentally, the South Division champs have shown the most vulnerability in defending the pass which should provide an interesting matchup tonight.

Zukula has hit favorite target Marty Friel on exactly half of his 52 completions — five of which blossomed into Friel scores. Normally the last resort for rushing-oriented teams, Hersey has been known to come out throwing from anywhere and everywhere on the field.

"Their biggest asset in my mind is

Two Wins From A Perfect Season

Powerful Lions Entertain deSales Tonight

SPEEDY STEVE Bobowski, St. Viator's fine halfback, has been one of the reasons the Lions are 8-0 with two games left. He has piled up 449 yards on 63 rushes from scrimmage, a nifty 7.1 average, and caught nine passes for 173 yards, including 64- and 62-yarders. His best rushing game was 108 yards against powerful Lane Tech and he has been near that mark three other times, scoring five touchdowns.

by LARRY EVERHART

"This is our biggest game of the season so far."

St. Viator football coach Jim Lyne has said that several times already this season. But he's meant it every time, and you can be sure he meant it again when he said it this week in reference to his Lions' clash with visiting St. Francis de Sales at Forest View tonight.

Sure, the Lions have already clinched the East Division title in the Suburban Catholic Conference and berth in the championship game against Marist Military Academy. Sure, they've been gathering steam each week on their way to a perfect 8-0 record and have been called by many the best team in the state. And sure, St. Viator is a solid favorite over a team that has had trouble moving the ball and is now out of the title running.

But Viator has yet to accomplish the one thing it wants most — a 10-0 record, which would give it a Herald area all-time record for most wins in a season and the first perfect record in the Lions' 11-year history.

That incentive alone — plus the fact that St. Francis de Sales is far from being a pushover with a 4-2 conference record — should be plenty to keep the Lions' competitive juices flowing tonight.

As Lyne put it, "The most important thing is to get that undefeated season. That's our goal. We don't care about rankings or records or anything like that. We just want to be 10-0."

Going along with this goal — until last weekend, at least — was to get in the league championship game. St. Viator needn't worry about that any longer. When Notre Dame handed St. Francis de Sales its second loss last week (14-0), it left only Holy Cross within a game of the Lions with one to play. And even if they ended up with the same record, St. Viator would be awarded first place in the division by virtue of its earlier 14-0 conquest of Holy Cross.

The title tussle against Marist — which has clinched the West Division crown in convincing fashion — will take place at Wheeling High School next Friday night, Nov. 17.

But Lyne's Lions don't dare think too much about that one until they get through tonight's challenge.

"It's going to be a real tough game," Lyne promised. "We've got to go all-out and get this one first. Then next week will take care of itself. There will be no problem getting up for that."

"St. Francis is coming after us and we know it. They'll be after our quarterback (all-state candidate Stan Bobowski). He was taking shots on almost every play last week (in a 27-7 victory over Marist), even after he had handed off. We can't always count on the refs to throw the flag on late hits. We've got to protect Stan."

He said there are a few minor hurts on the squad, as there have been almost all year, but that all the regulars should be ready to go tonight. It is fortunate that no major injuries have hit because depth is about the only category in which the Lions are not awesome.

The Pioneers of de Sales are similar to last week's foe, Marist, in that they have a tough defensive unit but have had trouble scoring (the least of St. Viator's worries). St. Francis has scored only 73 points in six league games compared to St. Viator's division-leading 173 points. The Lions have allowed just 43 — also best in the East — to the Pioneers' yield of 51.

As St. Francis coach Dick Marin says, "We have been primarily a ground club on offense but we haven't moved the ball well enough. I guess that's why we're out of the running now."

"Our club is a little down now," he admitted. "We thought we could make a race of it. If we'd still had one loss now, it would have been a real game tonight."

Marin couldn't fault his defense, though, pointing out that it was the ofense that gave up the 14 points to Notre Dame on fumbles.

Marin is just as impressed with the Lions as other opposing coaches have been all year. "I've seen most of the other top-ranked teams in the state and I feel Viator deserves to be No. 1," he declared. "They've got great people up front and they really execute."

"Bobowski is the best quarterback in the conference and one of the best in the state. But, you know who I was really impressed with after watching them? That fullback, (Frank) Cliggett. He does a great job blocking. He's their unsung hero."

There have been many others on the team, too many to list here — but then it's been a team proposition with the Lions anyway, just as it is with any winner. They've won in the trenches with their line play as well as with their skilled backs.

There are two more rivers to cross for St. Viator . . . and the one looming before them tonight is being taken just as seriously by the Lions as all the others.

Fan's Forum

'HE HAD TO BE KIDDING'

Dear Fan's Forum:

I get a kick out of these gripes in your paper from St. Vlator people who don't think their team gets enough publicity. I can remember how they've been on the front page several times, how many pictures they have received before and obviously will get in the final two weekends, and yet they are so quick to complain when a Hersey or somebody else gets on the front page. Ho hum, that letter writer said last week in your Fan's Forum when he talked about Hersey's game with Rolling Meadows getting a better play than St. Vlator's game with St. Joseph. He had to be kidding. There just have to be more people around here interested in reading about Hersey against Rolling Meadows than St. Vlator against St. Joseph. You've got an outstanding team at St. Vlator but let's not let it go to your head. There are other schools around. Besides, you don't even have your own field.

Ted Scott

LETTER IRKED READER

Dear Sirs:

The letter from W. Moran (Nov. 3, Fan's Forum) really irked me. Why single out Hersey to "ho-hum" about? For almost three weeks there wasn't a picture from a Hersey game in the paper. (I've got all of the back issues if he would care to check this out).

Well, W. Moran, I think our team has done pretty well too, Catholic school or not. First place in the North Division isn't really all that bad, now, is it?

If he thinks coach Giwa was bragging — well, he just might have had something to brag about.

I also hope that W. Moran and the Chicago papers will be very happy together.

MUSTANG FAN PROUD

Dear Sirs:

I, as a "Mustang Fan," am very proud to go to Rolling Meadows High School. When I was in eighth grade I wanted to go to Arlington, now I'm glad I didn't. I love Rolling Meadows and I wouldn't change schools if you paid me.

The Mustangs may not be in first place, but they went out with pride. This is true and anyone can tell you this because we never gave up. The sophomores, freshmen, junior varsity and varsity had pride in every game that they played.

A Mustang Fan

The guys also have spirit. There is a plaque which says "Mustang Pride" on the wall of the locker room. Every guy, in any sport, must know the meaning of this because every guy touches it every time he passes it. Also on our Varsity football team, the guys painted a purple stripe down the middle of their faces to show pride in their school. Our Varsity defense team, in addition to the purple stripe, painted one red stripe on each cheek to represent the other team's blood and one white stripe under the red for sacrifice. These symbols must have meant something very important to the football players and I'm sure it did.

There are some underclassmen who I must mention because they are such great players in football. I am a sophomore, therefore it gives me great pride to see these three sophomores on the varsity team — Lance Pressi, Steve Breitbill and Jim Waswo. On the sophomore team the two heroes of our games were Joe McChesney and Dan Hembolt. Dan got a knee injury during the Arlington game so he did not play the rest of the games, but those he did play he played his best.

Most of the student body had very much school spirit. Every game, home or away, the stands were full and there was cheering constantly during the sophomore and varsity games. We are the only school that includes our Booster Club in our "Victory Camp" cheer. Homecoming was the best game, though. Our drill team and band did a fantastic job at halftime and everybody got so hoarse that no one could talk the next day.

Special thanks go to the Boosters, who came to every game faithfully; the band and drill team, which did fantastic jobs in the halftime shows; the cheerleaders, who started us cheering and we couldn't stop; and our mascot Charley who brightened up every game. These groups make Rolling Meadows a great school to go to.

All in all, this football season was the most exciting because this year was first for us in many things, such as Homecoming and varsity Football. I know that everyone must give some credit to the Mustangs for trying so hard this season. Next is basketball. Go, Mustangs!!

TWO-TIMING TACTICS is the best way of handling Palatine's Andy Knotek. Hersey found out the hard way as the versatile senior caught two passes for touchdowns in leading his team to a 14-6 victory at Ost Field. Hersey won the North Division title, however, on statistics.

that quarterback's arm and more than a couple fine receivers it can team up with," Schnake said. "We know he's improved and matured a great deal since we last met up with him. He's bound to cause us an awful lot of trouble."

Conversely, Elk Grove's opposition has almost been encouraged to throw the ball rather than answer to the Grenadiers' defensive line bulwarked by the likes of 225-pound Rich O'Leary and 205-pound Dan Mincey.

pass rush and for some of their kids to be hanging back looking for the pass. But if we can give Zakula the time he needs to set up, he's going to be dangerous.

"Our scouting reports said that it is 'suicide' to run at their big tackles all day," Gilwa disclosed. "It's going to take an exceptional effort on the part of our kids and we're going to need aggressive line play, but we think we can move against them."

Saddled with the assignment of either clearing a path through Mincey and O'Leary for fullback Scott Miesfeldt or protecting Zakula from the Grenadier duo's expected rush are Husky cornerstones Brian Nelson and Tom Loch (opposite Mincey) and Kevin Pancratz and Marty Friel (opposite O'Leary).

It won't mark the first time Hersey has clashed with a bigger, more physical team. "I think this game could be termed the survival of the fittest," Gilwa said. "A couple of key injuries could really change the complexion of the game in a hurry.

"We fought for the title in our division for one more chance at Elk Grove. This is it."

This is also one rerun nobody will mind seeing again.

Three Harper Harriers Run In Florida Saturday

by LARRY EVERHART
Cross Country Editor

Harper College's three best cross country runners face their most demanding test of all in a climax to the long season Saturday in the National Junior College Final meet in Pensacola, Fla.

Mike DeLaBruere, Ron Hankel and Bill Bates all qualified for the Hawks by being among the top dozen runners in the Region IV meet two weeks ago. Harper as a team finished third, but those three individual standouts have led the team all season and turned in some of the best performances in the school's brief history. Hankel is a graduate of Prospect High School, and Bates attended Forest View.

In last week's Skyway Conference meet, which Harper won easily, all three runners broke the previous course record. The Hawks had no less than four runners (also including John Geary, a Palatine grad) break the 21-minute mark for four miles.

Most impressive of all was DeLaBruere, who won the individual conference crown with a sparkling 20:18 — 39 seconds better than the previous record. Holding the mark previously was Hankel, who also surpassed it with an excellent 20:40. Bates checked in with 20:57.

The course which will host the nation's top junior college runners Saturday is Ellison Field, situated a Navy Air Base. It is fairly flat — part grass, part roads.

Last year, when Danville, Ill. hosted the national finals, Harper entered as an entire team for the first time. They finished 24th. Best individual showing ever by a Hawk was three years ago when Jim Macnider — now at North Central College — placed 21st at the national meet in Pittsburgh. He missed being an All-America (top 20) by one second.

Getting back to this year, it has been another fine season for Harper. Besides running to the conference title, the Hawks were 9-0 in dual meets and ran a winning streak in such meets to 25 straight since October, 1970. Their only disappointment was finishing third in the Region meet.

The season could look even brighter after tomorrow when more individual honors could be added.

Encourage Car Pools For Game

Tickets are on sale for the Super Bowl III Mid-Suburban League championship game between North Division titlist Hersey and South representative Elk Grove slated for Friday at 8 p.m.

Tickets cost $1.25 for adults, 75¢ for students with identification cards and 75¢ for all children, regardless of age and may be purchased at the main offices of either school in advance between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. through Friday.

In anticipation of an overflow crowd, those planning to attend the game are urged to organize car pools. Elk Grove students are encouraged to ride the school buses ($50).

Tickets may be purchased beginning at 7 p.m. at the gate prior to the game at Hersey, but the gates will be open at 6:30 for those who have purchased them in advance. No seats will be reserved.

Passes that will be honored at the pass include the Mid-Suburban League Pass, the Inter-Suburban League Pass, special employee pass for Elk Grove and Hersey (immediate family included), I.H.S.A. officers, sideline pass which must be displayed, Hersey High School student athletic pass and fall sport participants pass and Gold Card passes. Nothing else is acceptable.

Arlington Minor Hockey

Ed. Note: Typewriter needs fixing because it was extremely difficult to make out some of the names on this week's hockey reports. We'd like to be accurate on the names but it is impossible when there are letters on top of each other or letters blank on the line.

HANTAK

David Zimmer scored two unanswered goals plus another with an assist from Leo Lewis. Dennis Mattix scored one unanswered goal and two others with assist from Paul Fink and Dan Pfeiffer while Jim Danart scored the other Conoco goal assisted by David Zimmer and Warren Johnson. Aroo goals were scored by John Carberry, both unanswered. Goaltender Mark Monroe had a good game for Conoco.

Arlington Soft Water 11, Johnson's Sporting Goods 2

The players scored all the goals for Arlington Soft Water. Doug Kinney with six and Paul Kula with five. Jim Villeen, Dave Moreno, John Kupanski, Jack Lubricker and John Limp assisted. For Johnson's, Joe Duroto scored both goals with assists from Mike Sainz and George Lear.

Arlington Soft Water 10, Conoco 4

John Kupanski, Jack Lubricker, and Dave Moreno assisted with Jim Villeen, Bob Mische and Jim Villeen assists. Bob Mattock scored two goals for Conoco while Dan Pfeiffer and Dave Zimmer scored once each.

Arlington Soft Water 11, Wauconda Chiefs 1

Paul Kula scored an amazing seven goals and assisted on another as AHSW overpowered the Wauconda Chiefs, a recent team to the league. Dave Moreno with two goals and five assists was another star, helped by Doug Kinney, Jim Limp with single goals, Dennis Mattix also assisted on two other goals, with Kevin Wiley.

Johnson's Sporting Goods 4, Aroo 3

Both teams were in this clean hard fought game all the way, with Johnson's scoring the winning goal in the closing minutes. Mike Knight for Johnson's and Dave Jenkins for Aroo both put in fine performances in goal with excellent support from defensemen on both teams. Carl Brewer and three goals by Dave Jenkins with assists by George Lewis and Maurice were it for Johnson's while Bill D'Antonio, Jim Newton and John Lumley scored the goals that almost won it for Aroo. Both teams played good positional hockey and showed great improvement over their initial efforts.

ALL-STARS BEAT NAPERVILLE

The Arlington Banham All Stars hosted the Banham from Naperville on Saturday and Sunday. The Banham, from Glen Ellyn, Illinois, opened the meeting assisted by Bob Walther and Jeff Gardner. After Naperville tied it up, Doug Peltier put Arlington ahead to stay with his 6th goal of the season in the second period. Insurance tallies were added by Bob Rosequist on a superb pass by Rick Palmer and the last goal was by Capt. Jerry Dzubak. John Roth was great in the nets. After five games, his goals against average is 0.84.

Jaycees Top Handers

Superior contending by Diane Pierotti and the McQuillan and light defensive work enabled the Arlington Jaycees to defeat the Banham, 3-2.

Len Jarocki scored two goals, while a single goal went to Richard Duerl. Assists were credited to Mark Kanteckip, Jim Fredian and Steve Smithurst.

A fine defensive game was played by Chris Lindahl.

Peewee Waho Naperville

The Arlington Heights Peewee Allstars played a fine game against Naperville. In spite of spending 27 minutes in the penalty box,

Little Vicki Rides

Tall In The Saddle

Vicki Lynn Sylvester of Rolling Meadows is only eight years old, but is already making headway in the field of horses.

The little equestrian, who has been taking lessons for about 14 months, entered five horse shows at Happy Day Stables in Norridge.

On Nov. 5, Vicki entered the Intermediate Equitation II and finished a fine third out of a class of 13. In her second competition in the Hunter's Seat Equitation for 13-year-olds and under, Vicki finished fifth from a class of 17. Her next show is Dec. 3.

Federation, Big Eight Join Forces

The Big Eight Conference wrestling coaches voted unanimously to join forces with the United States Wrestling Federation in an effort to improve amateur wrestling in America.

In their annual meeting, the Big Eight coaches passed a resolution indicating "full support for the USWF in its policies and in the promotion of wrestling in the United States of America."

"Political maneuvering by the United States Olympic Committee has deprived the United States from achieving a high plateau in international wrestling circles," said Big Eight commissioner Charles M. Neinas. "The Big Eight Conference intends to utilize its energy and resources to assist the U. S. Wrestling Federation."

a result of the international competition experienced through the Wrestling Federation in the past few years.

Orval Borgianni of the University of Nebraska is chairman of the Big Eight wrestling coaches. Other Conference coaches are Harold J. Nichols, Iowa State University; Dale Samuelson, Kansas State University; Tommy Chesbro, Oklahoma State University; Shelby Wilson, University of Colorado; Vernon (Hap) Whitney, University of Missouri and Stan Abel, University of Oklahoma.

Wilson, who wrestled at Oklahoma State, is one of twelve Olympic gold medalists and 56 Olympians from the Big Eight Conference.

The Conference indicated that this year's fine showing at the Olympics was

Hoffman Estates Football

by AL KENNICK

The Saints came marching in. That was the happy tune played last Saturday on the Hillcrest playground gridiron as the Saints defeated the Bears, 60 to the Hoffmann Estates Athletic Association Pee Wee League title.

The loss was the first of the season for the Peewee Hillcrest Bears, a bitter pill to swallow for Coach Jim Vlasaty, young boys who had run roughshod over all comers during the regular end-of-season schedule.

The Saints — the survivors — were their seventh against two ties — were fired up from the opening whistle and, although outmanned statistically, took the play away from the Bears, turning in a rock-ribbed defensive effort that allowed the Bears inside their 20 yard line only twice while putting together just enough offensive thrust to earn the victory.

Julian Coach Dick Russo — his squad would have carried him from the field were it not for the Abe Gibbons like sixth — hurried back to his youngsters and tried valiantly to lift the team members who had turned in a speculative job.

My quarterback Craig Joyce, sort of a come-on in this game, can you imagine, a young Pee Wee who calmly dropped into the pocket and picked out a secondary receiver with the coolness of a much older player. One of his two pass completions, to left end Greg Carelli, although gaining but four yards, set up the winning touchdown early in the fourth period.

The Bears' Lateen Squires with a solid right and for three yards and the touchdown, and Carter Cavish who intercepted two passes and made a game-saving tackle, and Shirley Russo (coach's son) who three times punted the team out of danger.

"A team effort," exhorted Russo. "Just as these boys have been doing weekend-to-weekend, I couldn't be more proud if we'd have won the Super Bowl."

(The Saints get the bowl bid, too, this Saturday, at noon on the Conant High School field, they take on Schaumburg's Pee Wees in the Pee-Wee Bowl.)

The Bears gained most of the yardage in the contest, played before several hundred spectators — 33 in the first half while holding the Saints to minus-1 and 114 net yards for the game while the Saints managed but 40.

Once, a Bear halfback turned the corner and almost broke free, but there was Carter Cavish in the way. Another time, a pass from Frank Vlasaty (coach's son) to Bret Mueller gained 17 yards and failed by a step from going all the way.

But it was not the Bears day; they lost five fumbles and suffered two pass interceptions. The Saints, meanwhile, played flawless ball — no turnovers.

The game's lone score came following an up-and-down, 10-yard punt that gave the winners the ball on the losers' 10. A dive gained one; that Joyce to Carelli pass gained four, a sweep netted a pair, and around end went Head for the touchdown.

A heart-broken Coach Vlasaty cited the quartet of Mike Lents, Terry McCoy, Jim Connell and Mueller for their outstanding play.

"It just wasn't meant to be," the coach said, "but these kids were something all year. I'm very proud."

While the Pee Wee championship day highlighted Hillcrest football action, the Browns of the Widget League also made big news.

The Browns wrapped up an unduplicated title with a resounding 41-0 triumph over Schaumburg. It was the winner's ninth straight victory after a season-opening loss to the runner-up Chiefs.

The win also gave the Browns the right to move into the Widget bowl — 2:30 Saturday afternoon at Conant, following the Pee Wee bowl as host to the Glen Ellyn Widget champs.

Ray Powell again was the big gun for the Browns. He got the winner's off to a flying start with a 65-yard TD return of the opening kickoff, and later rambled 44 yards for a touchdown.

Five other Browns scored: Keith Ebel on an 8-yard dash, Brian Ward, a 36-yard run, Bob Ryan, a dive for 2 yards, Gene Mapes, a 13-yard scamper, and Brian Albrecht, the day's lone highlighter on a 10-yard run — 60 yards. Powell and Mike Chase recorded the only two conversions.

The Browns rolled to a 20-0 first half lead, and Coach Jack Stahlbahn played his number two offense and defense the entire second half. That defense held the Squires to 12 net yards in those final two periods.

The Browns gained most of the yardage in the contest, played before several hundred spectators — 33 in the first half while holding the Saints to minus-1 and 114 net yards for the game while the Saints managed but 40.

The Browns' staff cited Kevin Hubbard, Chip Bambuski, Mike Cebulski, Rob Cebulski, Curt Compton, Jim Fehribel, Craig Fillingim, Scott Gass, Chuck Lents, John Liners and David Spaeth for outstanding effort.

The Chiefs wrapped up second place with an 8-1 record by dumping last year's champion — this year's third place team — the Falcons, 15-7.

As it turned out, the game was decided in the first two minutes when the Chiefs put two touchdowns on the board before the Falcons ran a play from scrimmage. And before the first quarter was over, the winners had put all 19 of their points on the scoreboard; they then held off a spirited comeback by the Falcons, particularly in the fourth period.

The Chiefs moved from the opening kickoff into paydirt in seven plays. George Rush going the final 26 yards off guard. The PAT was good.

Falcons ace halfback Marty Pugh took the opening kickoff from his two to the 32, but there was cracked hard and fumbled. Tom Gallo recovering for the Chiefs. A five yard penalty moved the ball to the 27, from where scratback Ron Jorgenson dashed off tackle into the end zone behind key blocks from Gallo and Dave Hundreiser.

It took the Chiefs just two plays to score again the next time they had the ball. First came a 17-yard sweep, then a beautiful pass from Jorgenson to Tom Danowski for 43 yards and the lead.

The Falcons couldn't muster their offense in the first half, their vaunted ground game was stopped without a first down in those two periods.

Quarterback Jimmy Murphy finally got his team moving in the third period, the Falcons going 40 yards in eight plays for their lone score. Scratback Mike Daly gained eight of those yards including the final one for the TD; Murphy highlighted the drive with a dazzling 18-yard run on a keeper around the right end after the blocking of Pugh, Daly, Rich Dean and a pulling lineman or two. He slid out of bounds on the one yard line. Dean plunged in for the extra point.

The Falcons recovered two Chiefs fumbles in the fourth period, but neither time were they able to start a sustained march. Chiefs' back Rick Broaddus halted one drive with his second interception of the game, the other with a key tackle. The Falcons' final effort also was halted by an interception, this one by Murphy.

Daly gained almost half the Falcons' total yardage, 36 of the 74 net yards. Pugh was held to 20 net yards, yet finished the season with 623 net yards and a better than six-yards-per-carry average.

Gallo and Bob Stahl fed the Chiefs' defense with 10 and 11 tackles respectively, while the Schenk brothers, Rich and Bill, led the Falcons' defenders; each accounted for seven tackles.

In the day's third Widget game, the Giants defeated Hanover Park, 25-0.

MITES DIVISION

In their season opener the Palatine Mites lost to the V.W. Demons of Dundee 8-3. Mike Gellinger scored all three scores for Palatine. In the net for Palatine was Don Miller and Dennis Myers. In other games they were defeated by the Elmhurst Huskies 13-0. The Palatine Mites defeated Streamwood 7-1 with goals being scored by Mike Gellinger (three), Peter Calter (one), and David Graveline (one). In the net were Myers and Miller.

In their most recent game the Palatine Mites lost to Elmhurst 6-0. Mike Gellinger and Dennis Myers shared the goal tending duties. They were both given scoring opportunities for the Mites but they failed to materialize. The Mites play each Saturday morning at the Polar Dome in Dundee.

PEE-WEE DIVISION

The Palatine Jaycees hosted state divisional play at the Polar Dome in the third period. The second period was won by the Elmhurst Huskies 13-0. The Jaycees came late in the period and the Jaycees came late in the period. The Jaycees were assisted by K. C. Gellert and Brett Anderson. The second period was won by the Elmhurst Huskies 13-0. The Jaycees came late in the period and the Jaycees came late in the period. The Jaycees were assisted by K. C. Gellert and Brett Anderson.

The Jaycees also defeated the Tri-City Kwinians 7-2 in their next league outing.

In the Polar Dome League in Dundee, Goalties John Mahoney and Joe Koening split the game in the nets and were credited with the first shut out of the season for the Kwinians. John Kincald, Gene Atenber, Gary Garofalo and Steve Bridwell scored goals. Goalties assisted by Dave Manick, Bucky Olson, Gary Abramson and Roger Tuckner.

The Kwinians also defeated the Tri-City Jays 7-2 in their next league outing. Tri-City's two goals were scored by Sullivan and Dave Gray with assists going to Gisl and Redd. Tim Bently scored two goals for the Kwinians. This is the first time this season one of the Kwinians has scored more than one goal. The other goals were scored by Bucky Olson, Gary Garofalo, Gene Atenber, John Kincald and Scott Zordan. Bill Graveline and Steve Bridwell were each credited with one.

In their first contest, the Kwinians tied the Dundee V.W. Demons 2-2. Mark Longer scored both goals for the Demons and Helas was credited with one assist. The Kwinians goals were scored by Gene Atenber and Rick Flynn with assists going to Scott Zordan, Dan McSweeney and Bob Greenhill. These two teams have played three practice games previous to the season and every game has ended in a tie. The Kwinians record so far this year in the Dundee League is two wins, one loss and one tie.

The Palatine Jaycees failed to shake out of their slump this time losing to the Elmhurst Huskies 4-0. Unable to overcome many defensive mistakes the Jaycees suffered their first shutout. Scoring for Elmhurst were Castro, unassisted, Brinkley from Little, Stanclift from Rose, and Pyle and Perri assisted by Kuehne. In the net the Jaycees were Scott Vena and Rick Mitchell.

MINIET DIVISION

Madison County, Wisconsin teams came to the Spectrum and handed Palatine its second loss of the season. The fine Madison team tallied twice in the first period and then in the early part of the second period put two more on the nets. Then a fine feed pass from John Fredrickson allowed Tom Garofalo to put it past their goal tender. But it was the only time Palatine was able to score. The next two goals were scored for Madison in the third period. In a six and one-half minute span, Palatine will get a return match in Madison Nov. 25.

In a regular league game against the Tri-City Royals at the Polar Dome, Palatine, sponsored by the Arlington Elks, was looking for a win after dropping the game to Madison. Palatine poured it on 40 in their first shutout of the season. The boys worked to Jim Sprinkle his first shutout patch. The scoring was as follows: Jim Sprinkle (two), Kevin Froncik (one), Mark Dittmar (one), Tom Glynn (three). Assists by Tom Garofalo (two), Kevin Froncik (two) and one each for Phil Heggland and Mike Doruff.

The Palatine Norsemens and the Elmhurst Black Huskies competed in a scrummin-

Set Final Plans For Chicago's Auto Show

Final plans and decorations for the 1973 Chicago Auto Show, expected to be the largest ever staged in this country, were given enthusiastic approval by members of the Executive Show Committee which will direct the operation of the nine-day event opening Feb. 24 in McCormick Place.

Scale models of the two-floors exhibition areas, which will contain spectacular displays featuring some 550 U.S. passenger cars, imports, recreational and commercial vehicles, were inspected and approved. Clarence W. Marquardt, Jr., Show Chairman, said the show will comprise the largest amount of floor space ever taken at an auto show in the United States. He added:

"We are preparing to present an exposition that is not only complete in every automotive respect, but will also be an entertaining car shopping wonderland. The tremendous success of the 1972 show has inspired the car makers to seek even larger display areas for their 1973 products. In addition, we have been besieged for exhibit space by many manufacturers of after market products and accessories and auto-related items."

The 1972 show, staged last Feb. 26,

March 5 in the lake front hall, drew a total of 935,341 auto show fans. The gigantic exposition center contains some 600,000 square feet of floor space allowing for spacious display areas and wide aisles to accommodate huge crowds.

Robert M. Foley, President of the Chicago Automobile Trade Association which has been sponsoring the annual event since 1935, reported that more than 300,000 square feet of exhibition space has been contracted for as of this date and expected that a total of some 350,000 will be taken before the show opens.

"As usual, this will be the first opportunity for Chicagoans to see all the cars. There will be everything from sports cars, economy models, sedans, coupes, station wagons, racers and a wide selection of campers and recreational vehicles. All of the major overseas firms have taken space and we expect a number of them to introduce all new models at the show."

Foley also said that the Mazda, the Japanese import with the rotary engine that has been on a selling spree in the western states, will be on view at the show.

The 1972 show, staged last Feb. 26,

FOR MORE EFFICIENT COMBUSTION,
OUR 73 VOLVOS HAVE NO CARBUREATORS.

Volvos run fine with carburetors.

But they run better without them.

The drawback to carbureted cars is that your foot decides what fuel/air mixture the engine gets.

The heavier-handed your foot is, the more gas your engine sucks in.

Our 1973 Volvos, however, have fuel injection. It's controlled by a device slightly more precise than your foot. A brain.

An electronic computer automatically determines the correct fuel/air mixture for every driving condition. Then orders it injected directly into each cylinder. Resulting in more efficient use of your gas.

And cleaner exhaust.

So when you notice something missing under the hoods of our 1973 Volvos, don't worry.

'Big Brothers' Aid Fatherless Boys

There's no trick to treating yourself to sports exhibition and simultaneously benefiting fatherless boys from the greater Chicago area.

All you have to do is contact the Big Brothers of Metropolitan Chicago. The non-profit, human relations organization now has patron tickets on sale for a world-famous Globetrotters game to be held Friday, Dec. 8, at Northwestern University's McGraw Hall. All proceeds from Big Brothers ticket sales will support the unique charitable activities of the group.

Formed locally about two years ago, the organization provides "big brothers" for fatherless boys aged 8 to 17. The big brothers — all of them volunteers — provide the adult male companionship and guidance that many boys desperately need because they come from fatherless families. The goal of the program is to give the youngsters the attention, confidence, care and self-esteem they need to grow up into responsible and fulfilled men.

To accomplish this, the Big Brothers carefully screens adult males and matches them to their "little brothers" on a one-for-one basis. Big Brothers, who may be married or single, hold positions ranging from physician to steelworker.

For ticket information and other details write: Big Brothers of Metropolitan Chicago, 343 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois 60604. Or call 312-427-0637.

Rifles Set 4th Annual Awards Night

The Lake County Rifles Quarterback Club will hold its 4th Annual Awards Banquet at the Brae Loch Country Club, Grayslake at 6:00 p.m. on Dec. 3. The two most valuable players from each of the county's high school football teams, 36 in all, will be feted with inscribed trophies.

Also to be honored is the Lake County High School Coach-of-the-Year, yet to be named, who will receive the traditional "Golden Whistle" award.

Unlike years past, this banquet will also host the Lake County Rifles Football Team, recent winners of the C.S.F.L.'s Southern Division title. The Quarterback Club will present trophies to the M.V.P. of the Rifles' offensive and defensive teams.

A guest speaker from one of Chicago's major professional teams will address those attending the event.

The highlight of the evening will be the presentation of substantial college scholarship grants to two of the Prep Trophy Winners. The Quarterback Club is now sponsoring six young men from area high schools, previous winners of the coveted scholarships.

A limited number of tickets are available for this event and may be obtained through the Rifles' office in Libertyville, 302-8650, or by writing the Rifles Quarterback Club, P.O. Box 514, Libertyville. Donations are $7.50 per person. Cocktails will be served at 5:00 P.M.

Cleancut, Crewcut, Shortcut Hair Makes A Good Buck, Met Or Bear?

IF JOE FRAZIER, Mark Spitz, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Dick Williams, all at the top of their professions, are sporting the hairy look, can it be all bad?

by IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The forces of hairlessness are being cut to the quick.

In rapid order recently, Mark Spitz and his lip brush win seven gold medals in the Olympics, the Oakland A's and their fuzzy mugs triumph in the World Series and the Philadelphia Eagles fall flat on their naked faces.

The last is most disastrous. The Eagles last season were the best example of the virtues of hairlessness; they shone like a bald head in the sun.

Ed Khayat had taken over as coach after they had lost five straight NFL games. He came in on the war path. He brilliantly reasoned that a scalped player is a great player. Within minutes, the Eagles' locker room took on the look of a hair swamp.

"I have no comment to the press," Bill Hobbs, a linebacker, had said, "except to say that I love being a prisoner of war."

"I offered to meet them halfway and cut off one side of my mustache," said end Mel Tom. "But they refused."

"If this team is so grooming conscious," asked Tim Rossovich, "why don't they ask owner Leonard Tose to trim his eyebrows?"

The Eagles, naturally, went on a winning streak. But this season they have been unmercifully stopped by the opposition. TV sportscaster Don Meredith wondered if Khayat would begin making his players shave at halftime.

Hair is one of the great issues of the times. It has split generations, political parties, teams. Many think it ridiculous, that it shouldn't be important at all, that it's just splitting, if you will, hairs.

"Winning or losing," said Rossovich last season, "has nothing to do with hair."

Ah, but the gentle wild man is wrong. Some football players believe they can butt people better because more hair means more padding and fewer splintered heads. Mark Spitz felt that the fuzz at his prow actually made him swim swifter because it absorbed water. And everyone from melodrama villains to Dick Williams knows that one can think clearer by twirling a mustachio.

Somehow, coaches within the last several years have come to feel that hairy-faced and hairy-headed athletes (interestingly, not hairy-chested athletes) pose a threat to discipline, victories, morality and team morale.

Slowly, this notion is being snipped away. Joe Namath, the best quarterback in creation, shocked the world by growing a Fu Manchu mustache and still was able to thread a needle at 70 yards.

A bearded Joe Frazier won the world's heavyweight championship.

Tennis champ Stan Smith won't go anywhere without the fury canopy over his lips.

A hirsute iconoclast named Bill Russell changed the face, as it were of basketball.

Then Jack Scott, sometimes called "the guru of Jock Liberation," dauntlessly tweaked coaches in a magazine article, "How does a latent homosexual prevent himself from manifesting this latent potential in overt acts? He will often try to project a super-masculine image . . ."

Coaches who relate short hair with super-masculinity did not think this was too damn humorous.

And some coaches must have cringed when Dick Williams, manager of the A's, took why he will probably shave his mustache off after the season. He said he grew the 'stache because Charlie Finley, A's owner, had wanted him to. "But now he wants me to take it off," said Williams. "He says we have been winning so much he's been kissing me every day and my mustache is starting to itch him."

But the definitive reason why hair should stay was given by Archie Moore, former light heavyweight boxing champion. He was once asked if his wife minded kissing him with his mustache and goatee.

"Of course not," Moore replied. "She's happy to go through the forest to get to the picnic."

Northwest Choralettes

They Sing A Song Of Love

by ELEANOR RIVES

To sing with a top quality choral group means to thrill to the nameless joy of being part of something greater than yourself. There's pleasure in spilling over with joyous foot-tapping rhythm, or in producing the spine-tingling beauty of sound waves blending in pure harmony.

It has something to do with desire, something to do with musical talent and something to do with teamwork. When they are doing comes out good, musicians love each other.

The Northwest Choralettes, sponsored by the Northwest Suburban YMCA, love each other. The sound they produce is good; the way they produce it is fun in its highest form.

AMONG THE FEW things they have in common is that they are all women, all northwest suburbanites, and all love music. They must love music. Why else would they give up a full morning each week for rehearsals, learn instruments they never considered before, volunteer for solo parts that scare most of them silly, work themselves blue to polish up the 20 or so programs they give each year, even pay a small monthly dues to the 'Y' for the privilege of singing?

They must love each other, for rehearsals are often followed by lunches together, programs by "afterglow" parties and the season's singing activities by summer social activities.

There are currently 45 members in the Northwest Choralettes. Though some are music majors and some are soloists, no auditions are ever held. Mainly these suburban women just love to sing. And the rapport they have developed has helped produce "standing room only" programs and standing ovation audiences.

MUCH CREDIT for the success of these swinging singers must go to director Pat Ferguson of Des Plaines and narrator Virginia Schwab of Barrington. These two "found each other" and combined their talents years ago in a church just outside San Francisco. Not only a partnership but a warm friendship resulted, a friendship that continued uninterrupted when, by some quirk of fate, both their husbands were transferred to the northwest suburban area of Chicago at about the same time.

In the fall of 1968, the Northwest Suburban YMCA asked Pat to organize and direct a women's singing group as part of the 'Y' adult education program. Sixteen interested women came out. Virginia fit nicely into the scene scheduling programs, warming up audiences, giving moral support all around and adding a special touch with her dramatic narrations.

SAID JOANNE DeKOATZ of Mount Prospect, a Choralette for five years: "These two work fabulously together. Pat is brimming with music and rhythm — it's just in her. She loves it. And Virginia's dramatic numbers are great. The two of them do this for the love of it — they get just a token fee — it doesn't even meet their expenses. It's a labor of love, but to them it's not labor."

Choralette members represent a complete cross-section of ages and interests. Harriet Diekhoff of Mount Prospect is piano accompanist. There are 12 soloists, two guitarists, a string bass, a set of drums, a clavinet, a flute, unusual rhythm instruments (a washboard is unusual, isn't it?) and absolutely no prima donnas.

When Dixie Kurtz, Arlington Heights, sings "Blues in the Night," she moans her heart out; when Erika Seitz, also of Arlington, sings "Matilda," she's more Belfonte than Harry is; when the whole chorus sings "The World's Just Coming to a Start," toe-tapping rhythm sweeps the audience; and when they sing the lovely, haunting, but complex, "Ceremony of Carols," it's a rare high moment for them all.

CHORALETTE MEMBERS doubling as instrumentalists often teach themselves to play anything the group has scraped enough money together to buy. Colleen Crombie, Rolling Meadows, learned to play the drums because, as she puts it, "I got the short straw." She's dubbed "the lady of the pots and pans" — that's what she beats on for practice at home. Mary Jane Robertson, Mount Prospect, taught herself to play the string bass after the former player switched to tambourine. Another chorus member is learning to play the guitar.

In past years the Choralettes have given programs for schools, PTAs, senior citizen groups, hospitals and convalescent homes, churches, social and civic organizations; even at a birthday party for an 80-year-old woman who was so thrilled she invited them back the next year to sing for her 90-year-old friend.

THEY HAVE SUNG in the wards of Great Lakes Naval Hospital, in shopping centers and in the humid, echoing atmosphere of the 'Y's' indoor swimming pool. At least once a year, they give a benefit concert, open to the public and sold out well in advance.

The Choralettes have sung 184 different pieces of music and given 126 performances for 77 different groups in 21 different communities. They have made seven record albums. They have presented a 30-minute version of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" 22 times and each time brought down the house.

"We could have made a career of 'Charlie Brown' alone," commented Pat.

In the six years since Choralettes was organized, 75 women from 16 communities have participated actively as members. Membership is ever open to women who love to sing.

A MINISTER ONCE pronounced Northwest Choralettes the only group he ever encountered that in a single program sings everything from "Hair" to "The Lord's Prayer."

"Kids have marvelous musical experiences available to them in high school," she said. "But there is rarely any choral experience available to women in the daytime. Women need this kind of outlet."

Why must these women sing? Virginia Schwab summed it up when she said, "The Choralettes sing not because they have all the answers but because they have a song . . . and for all who sing and for all who listen . . . the song is love."

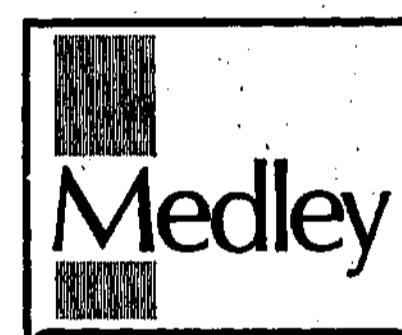

MOANIN' LOW, Dixie Kurtz of Arlington Heights renders a torchy version of "Blues in the Night." Dixie joined the Choralettes in 1970.

FONDLY REFERRED TO as "Our Fearless Leader," Pat Ferguson is the creative force drawing the Choralettes to the highest level of their abilities. With Virginia Schwab's help, she organized the group at Northwest Suburban YMCA in the fall of 1966. Each year's music is laced with a theme, from "Hey, Look Me Over" the first year to last season's "All Kinds of Music for All Kinds of People."

A MOMENT OF musical delight is registered on Virginia Schwab's face as she works at a taping session for the Northwest Choralettes. Her dramatic narrations add dimension to each program. As a free Christmas gift to the northwest suburbs, the Choralettes will give a concert Dec. 10, at 3 p.m., in the new sanctuary of Trinity Methodist Church, 605 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect. You're invited!

LADY OF THE POTS and pans is Colleen Crombie of Rolling Meadows who learned to play the drums practicing on her cooking utensils. She also sings and plays the clarinet. Mother of seven children, Colleen has made use of the 'Y's' nursery service while attending rehearsals. Northwest Choralettes gives each of its members as wide a variety of musical experiences as possible. "We've got a Now sound," said Colleen.

Guitar Enthusiasts Talk A Language Of Their Own

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you overhear your teen-ager discussing "easy action," "getting a buzz," "having a fast neck" or "manipulating the peghead," there's little need to get up tight.

According to Richard Della Bernarda, this is the parlance of the real guitar enthusiast. And he should know, because as president of Ovation Instruments, he manufactures guitars used by the country's top pop idols, including Glen Campbell, Neil Diamond, Cat Stevens and Bob Dylan.

For the worried parent, here is a glossary of guitar terminology explained:

Buzz: Undesirable vibration.

Easy action: Strings are positioned close to the fret, permitting fast play.

Fast neck: Slim and comfortable to the hand, permitting easy movement.

Machine heads: Tuning pegs.
Nut: Area where strings hit the first fret over the machine heads.
Sustain: The time the note lingers.

AMERICA IS currently in the throes of a guitar culture that shows no sign of letting up. According to Della Bernarda, one of the chief reasons is that most modern music is composed on the guitar rather than on the piano. Moreover, electronic technology has enabled guitar manufacturers to produce instruments with perfect tone.

"Young people," said Della Bernarda, "treat their guitars with great intimacy. In fact, they are just as concerned with where they purchase their guitars as they are with the instruments themselves. For that reason, there are very few successful chain stores in the musical instrument business. Most instrument shops are family concerns."

Why the eagle? Why should a fierce bird of prey be the emblem of our country? It appears on coins, atop our flag poles and on the insignia of more organizations than one can count. It also hangs over almost every doorway in New England, or so it seemed to me on my last trip. I decided to try to find out why.

It seems the Greeks and Romans set the precedent. They were so impressed with what they considered the most powerful and kingly of all birds that the standards of their military legions bore likenesses of eagles. The same bird has been the emblem of many European empires, always signifying nobility or high degree of merit.

English potters used the eagle extensively in their markings. Many pieces are devoted to my marks and monogram books to the eagle motif, and I suppose it was meant to signify the superiority of their pottery.

The Indians of our West used eagle feathers in their headdresses and war bonnets, with the bald eagle (and this should do a lot for the confidence of all the "chrome domes" in the country) being the preference in American art. In flight, the bald eagle is said to be the most graceful of birds. It is not the largest but is an impressive six to eight feet tip to tip of its spread wings, with a body length of about 36 inches. Seen close up (and I have seen them only at the zoo) with their kingly snowy heads, fierce yellow eyes, thunderous "eyebrows" and great hooked bills, they do inspire something (I think the word is "fear").

I READ SOMEWHERE that at the time of the American Revolution, Benjamin Franklin favored the turkey as our national bird, but really, now, would we, could we with due reverence, EAT our national bird at Thanksgiving? Ben was a wise old sage, but a turkey is just too chicken for American patriots.

So, by act of Continental Congress, on June 20, 1782, the bald eagle became our national emblem and the idea caught on with the American public.

The well-known design of the eagle with spread wings, with its head turned, clutching a bunch of arrows in one talon and the shield with stars and stripes in the other, is the one which appears on so many coins, flags, etc., but the design's origin is obscure. It has been called "The Louisburg Eagle" and dates from early in the 19th century.

Everyone is getting into the Bicentennial act now and no doubt the eagle will be the last gasp in decorating from now until 1976. (I have been wondering what would take the place of the owl, the frog and the mushroom which have been so popular for the last few years.)

THE AMERICAN HERITAGE, a hard cover bimonthly magazine, is advertising the Louisburg Eagle reproduction, made from seasoned textured pine and covered with real gold foil. It measures 3 feet, 8 inches and may be hung inside or outside, according to the description. The cost is $130.

It would surely make a handsome addition to an Early American home, but I can't help thinking, and I'm sure Ben would agree, you could buy a whole flock of turkeys for $130.

The Book Star

"THE PERSIAN BOY,"
by MARY RENAUT

Pantheon, $7.95

There's good news and bad news for Mary Renault fans.

The good news is that Miss Renault, one of the best of historical novelists who specializes in the classical period, has written a sequel to "Fire From Heaven."

The new book, "The Persian Boy," picks up about six years after we left Alexander the Great and carries through until his death.

As usual with Miss Renault's work, the reader is transported through time, learning along the way not only history but also details of living and life styles of another age.

The bad news is that some of her readers may have a bit of difficulty identifying with the leading character, through whom we see Alexander and who tells the story.

He's Bagoas, a eunuch, and Alexander's lover — the only one, according to Miss Renault, who is authenticated by historians of the period although it appears almost certain that another was Hephestian, Alexander's boyhood friend and later loyal general.

Alexander's "Persian Boy" is a fine vehicle for moving the story line along, for explaining the Macedonian and Persian customs and the differences between the two cultures. But his point of view on Alexander gives us little — he's all too convincing in what he is and how disconcertingly views Alexander as a lover, not a fighter.

"MICHAEL'S WIFE,"
BY MARILYN MILLER

Pantheon, $5.95

Another gothic, this time in modern dress and well done of the genre, about a young woman who loses her memory, and her desperate search to find her past. This one's for gothic fans, not for everybody.

"CAGNEY," BY RON OFFEN

Regency, $5.95

Unless you have an insatiable desire to see more stills of Jimmy Cagney, and you can't get enough of the old films on television, then this probably won't interest you too much. There's more to the man than meets this author's eye.

"THE GREAT LAND HUSTLE," BY MORTON C. PAULSON

Regency, $7.95

Paulson has written a vastly informative and interesting exposé of the business of land hustling — the crooked dealers and the legitimate operations are thoroughly discussed and prospective buyers can learn a lot.

Dr. Welby's Nurse

In Real Life She's Wife To A Psychiatrist

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Elena Verdugo plays nurse to Dr. Marcus Welby during the day. At night she plays wife to Dr. Charles Rosewall.

Last March Elena and the doctor were married, both for the second time. Unlike the general practitioner played by Robert Young in the series, Dr. Rosewall is a psychiatrist.

Elena spent 17 years between marriages working in television and occasional movies.

This summer the newlyweds bought a Spanish-style home in the plush suburb of Brentwood, a 25-minute freeway drive to Universal Studios where "Marcus Welby, M.D." is filmed.

It is ironic that the ABC series is shot on real estate that once belonged to Elena's forebears. The Verdugo family was one of the first from Spain to settle in Southern California. And in 1776 the family was given a grant of some 36,000 acres in the San Fernando Valley.

MUCH OF THE old Verdugo ranch included what is today Glendale and Burbank.

"And my ancestors had worked harder and enjoyed fewer fiestas, I'd still own all the property," says Elena. "Now when I go to Universal I feel as if I'm working on my own land."

Elena is a light-hearted actress who starred in the title role of "Meet Millie" in television's early days — 1951-54. Because the show was live, there are no residuals or reruns.

"Heck," Elena says, "there's no evidence it ever existed."

Rosewall is the father of a grown and married daughter who, along with her husband, are frequent house guests. Things get a bit crowded when Elena's 23-year-old son, Richard (an aspiring actor), stops by for a few days as well.

The busy household doesn't bother Elena. She goes into the kitchen and uses her imagination to cook original dishes. Sometimes they are too original and barely palatable.

When that happens Elena adds large amounts of curry and nuts, explaining to one and all that she has found a secret Indian recipe.

THE ROSEWALL home is comfortable and unpretentious. Elena is fond of saying the decor is "early nothing."

Elena usually works about two or three days a week per episode of "Marcus Welby, M.D."

She arises at 5:15 a.m. in order to report to makeup and wardrobe at 6 a.m. She takes time out for a bite of breakfast and reports immediately to work. No matter what the schedule, she is finished shooting at 6 p.m.

As for her role, Elena says she always wanted to be a movie star or a nurse as a child. Now she believes she's been able to combine the two.

"My mother was seriously ill for a time," Elena says. "We had a lot of nurses and I've drawn on their various characteristics to make a composite of nurse Consuelo Lopez, the role I play on the show."

The Rosewalls prefer to spend their weekends at home putting around the house. Their favorite diversion is watching old horror movies on television.

"I even see myself on some of them," Elena says happily.

What Liszt Did

Franz Liszt 1811-1886 is down in history mainly as a composer and concert musician. But the National Piano Foundation says he's also famous among musicians for introducing group instruction techniques to piano lessons. He often conducted classes for more than a dozen students at a time. (UPI).

Freddie Hart

If your taste in country music runs to love songs only, you'll like Freddie Hart's new album, "Go The All Ovens For You" (Capitol ST-11107).

Ably backed by the Heartbeats, Hart very capably gets through his latest collection. Hart's such a big star now the album should have good commercial success (his album "Easy Loving" has just been named by Billboard as the best country album of the year). But somehow the album very seldom excites me. The basic (and probably only) fault is a lack of variety.

IT'S JUST LIKE THE front and back covers of the album jacket — the pictures are the same except he's smiling in one and not in the other. So are the songs the same, except that a couple seem slightly more upbeat.

Two of the songs are very much worth a listen though. They are "Here I Am" and "Sugar Woman." Hart's still a good singer; it's just that this album isn't his best.

The Bee Gees also have a new album out and it's about their first that has not had me instantly falling in love with it.

"To Whom It May Concern" (ATCO SD-7012) suffers from too much of the old sounds simply warmed over. This makes much of the album blah, but there are at least three good songs (one a sure classic) and an interesting experiment among the baker's dozen included.

The soon-to-be classic is their hit single "Run To Me," which just about every popular singer is busy recording. The tune is haunting (something the Bee Gees do well) and the lyrics contain gems such as "If ever you've got rain in your heart," a phrase that will stay with me always.

THE OTHER TWO good songs are "Never Been Alone," which has as fine and meaningful a set of lyrics as any love song I've heard in a while, and "Bad Bad Dreams," wherein the boys actually capture the sound of a John Lennon song done by the Beatles. It's not, of course, but still ... and then "You Know It's For You" has traces of Paul McCartney.

Best omen for the future is Brother Maurice's playing of the Moog synthesizer in "Sweet Song of Summer." The song lacks much worth but the Moog has been incorporated into the boys' style well. They will hopefully use more of it in the future.

Among other new releases are: "Heads" by Osibisa (Decca DL7-3368). This group of seven African musicians seems to enjoy playing together very much. There is a looseness and informality throughout the album, which is mainly happy music given a driving beat. "Wango Wango" is a solid standout in their fusion of Afro rock-jazz.

"I'm a Y-Tonk Stardust Cowboy" (ATCO SD-7015) is Jonathan Edwards' second album and it is very satisfying. Again, ATCO has issued an album with 13 songs (like the Bee Gees') which is quite a bit since most albums have 10 or less songs these days. The music is pleasant, easy-listening all the way with just the right touch of country flavor added.

EIGHT OF THE SONGS were written by Edwards with "Stop and Start It All Again," "Everything" and the title song being the best. These songs highlight the fine harmonizing that has become a very successful tool for the singer. It helps make his songs so accessible and hummable. His instrumentals fit in well with the vocals too.

A six-minute-plus version of the traditional "Morning Train" is another good cut. Second albums are invariably tough — either because of the success or the failure of the first — but I think Edwards has followed a good album with a better one.

Mary Hopkins' "Those Were the Days" (Apple SW-3385) is a nice regrouping of some of the young lady's best work. Besides the title song (still a favorite), we are given the Beatles' "Goodbye" and the standard "Que Sera Sera." She may not always have been a real big success, but I for one am still glad that Paul McCartney heard her one day and got her to sign with Apple Records. Hopefully, there will be a lot more heard from her.

MRS. GRACE COASH, who is one of the original creators of the Footlighters, is musical director and voice coach for "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown."

Des Plaines children appearing in the production include Kevin Marquette as Charlie Brown, Rollyn Meyers as Snoopy, Sue Johnson as Lucy, Steve Smith as Linus, Bill Wright as Schroeder and Kelly Jones as Fatty.

Anniversary Fete At Countryside

Countryside Art Center is making a cake ... but a very special kind that calls for such ingredients as oil cloth, shower curtains, chicken wire and newspapers.

Everyone is invited to help cut the cake tomorrow (Saturday) from 1-5 p.m. out in front of the gallery at 414 N. Vail in Arlington Heights. The occasion is Countryside's first year anniversary in their new location.

Cake (the edible kind) will be served and everyone attending the ceremony is invited to browse through Countryside's present Designer/Craftman's Market, a half-day fair to continue through the New Year.

Countryside Art Center is a nonprofit service organization offering art exhibits, programs and demonstrations to residents of the community. Regular hours are 1-5 p.m. every day except Mondays. Further information is available through CL 3-3005.

Entry applications now are being accepted for the McCormick Place Professional Artists' Show to be held Dec. 7-10 in the exposition center's Ray Scholessing Hall.

It is stressed that the art show being managed by Jinx Harris Shows, Inc., will be limited to professional artists, sculptors, sketch artists and craftsmen.

UNQUALIFIED for exhibit will be velvet paintings, paper, feather or plastic flowers, shellcraft, lapidary, decoupage or toleware. Also unacceptable will be commercial molds in any media or work represented by agents.

The show managers are asking artists to submit an 8 by 10 glossy of themselves with their work. In addition, slides or photos of work must be submitted with the application by those who have not formerly exhibited in a Jinx Harris show.

Application forms and additional details may be obtained from the Public Relations Department, McCormick Place, 791-6190.

Children's Play, Cabaret Shows On MOS Agenda

Wednesday's membership meeting of Music On Stage will include discussion of the musical group's next production, "The Emperor's New Clothes," a Christmas show for children, as well as future cabaret shows.

Highlighting the evening will be a sing-along of "Promises, Promises," MOS's spring musical for which auditions will be held Dec. 10 and 11.

The meeting is being held at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights and begins at 8 p.m.

The cast for "The Emperor's New Clothes" was recently announced following auditions earlier this month.

Leading the show as the two weavers, Ho and He, are Karen Krien of Arlington Heights and Tommie Wilson of Mount Prospect.

The vain Emperor and his understanding Empress are Art Creighton of Palatine and Judy Carlson of Mount Prospect.

LARRY PETERSON of Arlington Heights and Fern Silver of Morton Grove provide the evil side of the story as Ling Tow, the scheming Prime Minister, and his daughter, the scatterbrained Violet.

Others in the cast include Jill Amendola of Rolling Meadows, Marguerite Dietrich of Prospect Heights and Jim Creighton of Palatine.

Music On Stage is presenting the musical Saturday, Dec. 2, at Ridge School in Elk Grove Village and Saturday, Dec. 9, at the Brentwood School in Des Plaines.

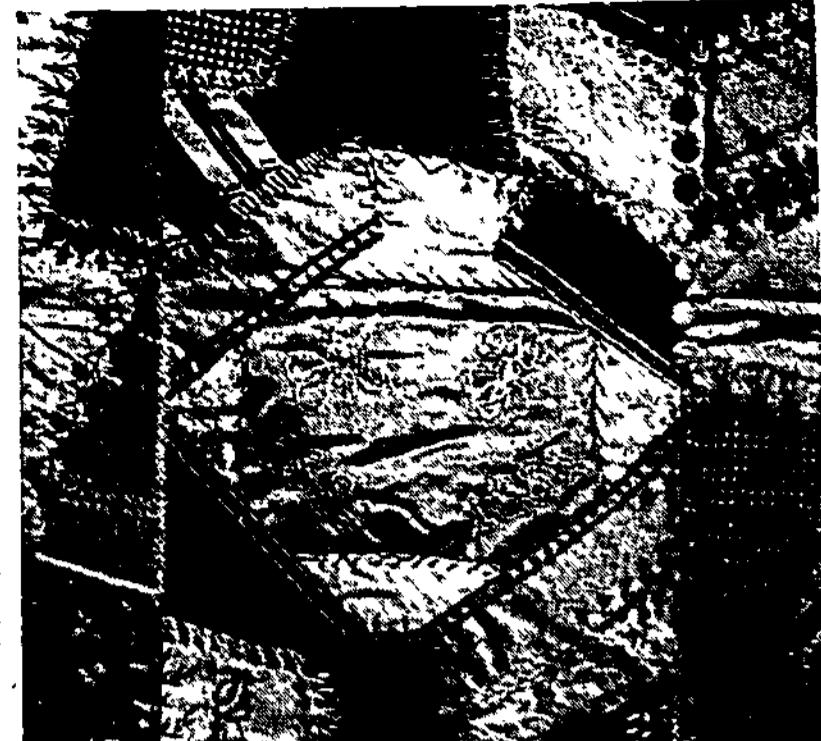

Additional performances are scheduled in January, 1973. Tickets, 255-1850 or 439-1062.

Area Students In Music Festival

Students from Area VII of the Illinois Music Educators Association will be participating tomorrow in a music festival at Oak Park-River Forest High School.

Students from this area participating go to Arlington, Elk Grove, Forest View, Hinsdale, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows High Schools.

Senior high band members will be directed by Ray Makeever, president-elect of the Illinois Music Educators Association. Makeever is director of music at Ottawa Illinois High School.

Maria Tunicka, born in Warsaw, Poland, and winner of many awards as a conductor throughout Europe, will direct the college chorus.

Directing junior high school students at the festival will be H. E. Nutt of the VanderCook School of Music, Thomas Wisnewski of the University of Illinois and the high school orchestra students. Miss Tunicka is completing requirements for her doctorate degree in music at Washington University. She has been a guest director for the Chicago Civic Orchestra and Grant Park Symphony.

WESTON NOBLE, chairman of the music department at Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, will direct the high school chorus and Dr. John Ferrell from Illinois State University will be directing the college chorus.

Directing junior high school students at the festival will be H. E. Nutt of the VanderCook School of Music, Thomas Wisnewski of the University of Illinois and Richard Whitecotton, music supervisor of Glenbard West High School.

THE COLLEGE chorus will sing at the music educators' luncheon at noon in the dining hall of the high school.

The concert by the junior high school organizations begins at 3 p.m. and will be followed by the concert by high school musicians at 4:30 p.m. Admission is $1. The public is invited.

Festival Theatre Sponsors Playwriting Contest Again

For the second consecutive year, Schaumburg Festival Theatre is sponsoring a one-act playwriting contest. Entries are being accepted now through Feb. 1, 1973.

Designed to encourage the art of playwriting and obtain original material which can be produced by the local theater group, the contest is open to residents of all areas and ages.

The first place winner, who will have his play staged by the group in the 1973-74 season, will receive $50. Second place award is $30; third, $15; fourth, $10; and honorable mentions, $5 each.

Scripts must be original and submitted in typed form. They cannot have been previously produced by any amateur or professional theater group and must be able to be staged in a maximum of one and one-half hours.

Only one entry is permitted per person. Winners will be notified by April 1, 1973.

Judges for the contest are faculty members of the drama department of Loyola University.

Contest chairman is Frank Gets of Schaumburg, a senior board member of Festival Theatre. Applications and full contest rules are available through him, 882-0188.

Arlington Heights Juniors are still busy selling tickets for their Nov. 19 Circus Show starring Ned Locke of TV's "Bozo Circus."

For the convenience of area residents, tickets will be available at Pioneer Park next Tuesday and Thursday, 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. and from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and again Friday and Saturday Nov. 17 and 18, 12:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Club members will also be selling tickets at the Northwest Trust & Savings Bank in Arlington Heights this coming Monday, 10 a.m. to noon; next Friday, Nov. 17, 6 to 8 p.m., and Saturday, Nov. 18, 10 a.m. to noon.

Two performances of the Circus Show are being held, 1:30 and 3 p.m., in the gymnasium of Prospect High School on Kensington Road in Mount Prospect.

Should a 9 year old have to eat a 5 dollar steak?

At Steaks 'n Stuff he doesn't have to. Because we have a special kids' menu at half price for youngsters under 12. Things they like to eat, and the price includes our bottomless salad bar, a free second dessert and all the Coca-Cola they can drink at dinner. You can have Coke too, or all the beer you want with your meal.

Steaks 'n Stuff is a grown-up place that kids love. You can come as you are, and the time of your bottom dollar.

Night Out

Rich Seasonal Fare For Theatergoers

by GENIE CAMPBELL

It is turning into a rich season for area theatergoers. Beginning now and throughout the next six weeks, new stage offerings are in store . . . and most look pretty enticing.

Opening next Tuesday at MILL RUN THEATRE is JULIET PROWSE in the musical comedy, "SWEET CHARITY." The singer-dancer will be appearing in the theater-in-the-round through Sunday, Nov. 26.

Charity, the character Miss Prowse will be playing, was first conceived by director Federico Fellini in the Oscar-winning film, "The Nights of Cabiria." There she was an amoral Roman prostitute who was as generous with her virtues as she was with her heart.

The story was later produced on Broadway by Fryer, Carr and Harris who retained the basic innocence and good-hearted nature of the dancer-prostitute but added a bit more razzle-dazzle.

Even closer to home are TV star JOSEPH CAMPANELLA and Broadway actress, MARGARET PHILLIPS at ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE in the Victorian thriller, "ANGEL STREET." The play, which is being directed by SHEPARD TRAUBE who staged and produced the original Broadway production, opened last night and will play through Dec. 10.

And it's not too soon to mark your calendar for Arlington Park Theatre's choice for the holidays, "THE FANTASTICKS." RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN, who achieved initial recognition as TV's "Dr. Kildare," but has received international recognition from appearing in more classic roles, will star in the much-anticipated opening Dec. 14. It will be the first musical produced at the local theater.

It is with great regret that I announce COUNTRY CLUB THEATRE'S cancellation of "THE LION IN WINTER" which will have its last performance this Sunday. Director and manager NORMAN RICE, who received a Joseph Jefferson nomination for his portrayal of King Henry II in the play, is no longer associated with the theater. The comedy "UNDER THE YUM YUM TREE" opens this next Tuesday to replace the present production.

CRAIG STEVENS is currently starring in "THE GAZERO" at PHEASANT RUN PLAYHOUSE through Nov. 26. However, for the last week of the show, beginning Nov. 21, PETE BRECK of television's "Big Valley" will replace Stevens, who because of prior contractual commitments cannot complete the run of the present production.

THE IVANHOE THEATRE and its director GEORGE KEATHLEY have gained prominence by premiering new plays. Currently, however, the stage has been reserved for Donald Drapers' smash hit "STATUS QUO VADIS" that has played over the months to sell-out audiences and is slated to open on Broadway in February.

But opening Dec. 7 at the Ivanhoe is the world premiere of "WELCOME HOME," a comedy-drama to star PERNELL ROBERTS. Keathley will direct the new play written by Hollywood author and producer EDMUND HARTMANN. It is his first play.

According to Hartmann, the "Welcome Home" theme is that "warmth shared with another human being is really all there is in life."

The main character, Harry, played by Roberts, is "trapped in a marriage without warmth and he tries to keep his son from making the same mistakes," the playwright further explains, "but, like everyone else, the son has to learn by his own mistakes."

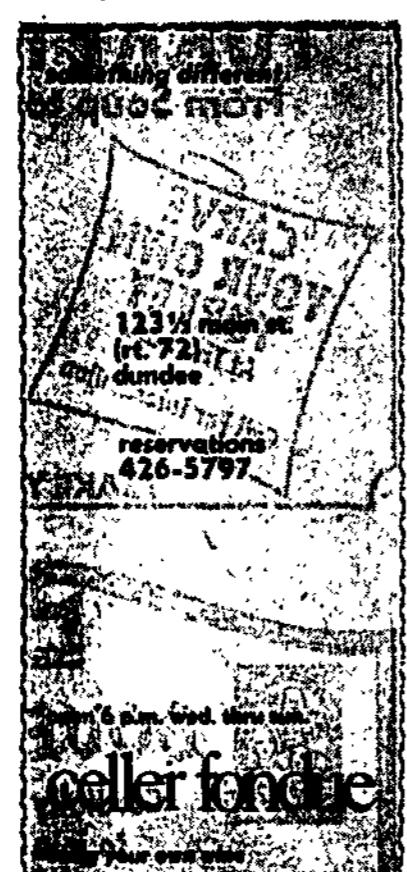

And of course, a very appealing show to be seen over the holidays is "NO NO NANETTE," a musical which is currently delighting theatergoers at the Shubert Theater. No doubt it will be in town for a long time.

Antiques to be auctioned off include a French Limoges coffee set, a French horizontal mirror with painted rural scenes on either end, English and Danish pewter bowls and pitchers, a procession of cape worn in the 18th century, silver serving pieces, figurines, etc.

Tickets are $3 each or two for $5. A preview begins at 6:30 p.m., the auction at 8 p.m. Tickets are available through the Hadley School at 446-8111. They will also be available at the door the evening of the auction.

Pinecone Turkey

You'll need some pinecones, colored construction paper, white glue, and scissors for these turkey table favors.

For each leg, cut a piece of brown paper about three inches square. Spread glue all over one side. Roll it up. Bend it in half to form a foot and a leg. Spread glue around the top of the leg and push it up into the pinecone. Repeat for the other leg. The back end of the pinecone turkey resting on the table will help him stand up.

For the tail, cut out brightly colored paper feathers. Put white glue on both sides of one end of each feather. Stick it into the pinecone. Cut out a red or orange paper head and neck. Put glue on both sides of the bottom of the neck. Stick it into the pinecone. Let dry. Now your turkey is ready to strut!

Shaw Festival

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont. (UPI) — The Shaw Festival's new theater here is expected to be completed and turned over to the Festival on June 5, 1973. A week later, the first season in the new house will begin, continuing until Sept. 16. Three plays are planned, two by Bernard Shaw.

Computer Counseling

Married couples with communication problems are receiving therapeutic help from a computerized light transmitter, patented by Prof. Edwin J. Thomas of the University of Michigan School of Social Work.

While discussing some aspect of their marriage, a husband and wife can send green or red light signals to register agreement or disagreement with what their partner is saying. The conversation and signals are recorded on tape for assessment by the therapist later. (UPI)

TV Note

CBS and MGM Television have agreed to develop the "Shaft" motion pictures into a one-hour weekly series about the black private investigator of that name. Star Richard Roundtree of the films also will head the video team, which is aimed at the 1973-74 season. "Shaft," first of the theater films, will be aired on CBS in September, 1973.

Oscar Awards program, the date is Tuesday, March 27, 1973, on NBC.

"Captain Kangaroo" on CBS made its 5,000th broadcast on Oct. 27, making it the longest-running children's series in television history.

Hallmark Cards Inc. has contributed its entire backlog of television productions, amassed during more than two decades of video experience, to the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. The collection totals 163 programs and includes 99 of the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama specials. The collection will be housed in the National Television Library at the University of California at Los Angeles.

NBC's "Ironside" will have a special two-hour drama, "Hey, Buddy, Can You Spare a Life?," on Nov. 16. Corruption and murder against a countryclub background. The extra hour is gained by preempting Dean Martin's time.

Tennessee Ernie Ford will preside over a "White Christmas Special" for NBC on Dec. 23.

If you are looking ahead to the next

NEW YORK (UPI) — Marlene Dietrich, backed by a 25-piece orchestra conducted by Burt Bacharach, will star in a one-hour special on CBS next Jan. 13. The show will be taped before a black-tie audience in London as a production by Broadway-London stage producer Alexander H. Cohen.

Next On The Agenda

DELTA GAMMA

"Women and the Stars" will be the theme of the Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Delta Gamma meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Douglas Dallmer, 330 Indian Hill Dr., Buffalo Grove. Mrs. Jean Bonnell will present the program on astrology.

Co-hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. William Stanley of Mount Prospect and Mrs. Bruce Krabbe, Park Ridge. Members may call Mrs. James Fortney, 825-7129, for information.

ARLINGTON WSCS

"Coping in a Computer Age" is the topic of the program to be presented Tuesday to the Women's Society of Christian Service, First United Methodist Church, Arlington Heights.

Learning to be human in a pushbutton world will be the subject discussed. A short film, "Home-Homini," will be shown, followed by discussion in groups.

A brief business meeting at 9:30 a.m., including election of officers, and coffee will precede the program. Coffee will be served by the Sharon Lauber and Lorraine Enright Circles, Mrs. William Gardner, chairman, and the Marian Thayer Circle, Mrs. Donley Scheiderman, chairman. Reservations are due Sunday with circle chairmen or Mrs. Curtis Chambers, 394-0424. A nursery will be provided.

DENTAL ASSISTANTS

A program on "Dental Education Projects" will be presented by Harper College dental hygiene students Tuesday evening for Northwest Dental Assistants.

Members will be meeting at 7 in the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn for a social hour and dinner at 7:30. The business meeting is set for 8:30.

Dinner reservations may be made through Joan Vanek, 233-9068 by Sunday.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

Chicago Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Delta Delta Delta will hold its annual Founder's Day luncheon Tuesday, at Harper College.

This marks the 24th anniversary of the founding of the first Tri Delta collegiate chapter at Boston University. Guest of honor will be Tri Delta's district chairman, Mrs. Keith Rueckert from Rock Island. Cost of the luncheon will be $2.50. Further information and reservations can be obtained by calling 822-4343.

TERRACE TOASTMISTRESSES

Terrace Toastmistress Club will meet 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Reserve Savings and Loan Association Building, York and Butterfield roads, Elmhurst.

Dr. Donald R. Low, Professor of Speech and Chairman of the Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts at Elmhurst College, will conduct a workshop on parliamentary procedure. Invitations have been sent to Business and Professional Women's Clubs and Parent Teacher Association Boards of the surrounding areas. All interested in learning more about parliamentary procedure are invited.

OPERATING ROOM NURSES

The microscope's application in neurosurgery will be the topic of Dr. Ivan Celic, neuro surgeon, at Tuesday's meeting of the Northwest Suburban Chapter of the Association of Operating Room Nurses. Hosting the meeting at 7:30 p.m., will be Evanston Hospital, 2650 Ridge Ave., Evanston. Anyone wishing further information may contact Dennis Schaff at 546-7104.

MOUNT PROSPECT WOMEN

The bridge group of Mount Prospect Woman's Club will meet Tuesday at 1 p.m. in the Chestnut Room of Mount Prospect Community Center. Co-chairmen of the group are Mrs. William G. Medlar and Mrs. Harold Beck.

Information regarding this group may be obtained by calling Mrs. Medlar at 533-1149 or Mrs. Beck at CL 5-6056. All money realized by this group is used toward the Mount Prospect Woman's Club philanthropies.

SAINTPAULIA SOCIETY

Distribution of mystery violet plants, registering names of show plants and violet plants as Thanksgiving gifts will be on the program Tuesday morning for members of Suburban Saintpaulia Society.

Hostesses for the 11 o'clock meeting will be Mrs. Madeline Southard, 113 Kirchoff Rd., Palatine. The mystery plants will be distributed to each member to grow and show at a later date.

ALPHA DELTA PI

Alpha Delta Pi's thoughts turn to the warmth and cheer of winter holidays as they learn the how and what of making gingerbread houses. Mrs. J. K. Adelman, 1720 N. Drury, Arlington Heights, will hostess the demonstration to be held Wednesday at 8 p.m.

A.D.P.'s will make houses for area old peoples homes as well as for themselves.

For further information, members may contact Mrs. Adelman, 258-2491, or her co-hostess, Mrs. Harold Chisamore, 824-7064.

Area Restaurant Has IVA Coupons

"World's Fare" coupon books containing discount tickets good in 20 Chicago area ethnic restaurants and in five ethnic grocery stores will be sold at Bimbo's Restaurant, Rand and Dundee, Palatine.

The coupon books sell for $10 and benefit the International Visitors Center which programs nearly 3500 foreign visitors to the Chicago area each year. Members of the IVC from the northwest suburbs who provide home hospitality for these visitors will be attending a cocktail reception Tuesday at the Graham Foundation for Advanced Study in the Arts, Chicago, at which the coupon books will be introduced.

Area families interested in entertaining foreign visitors or wishing further information about the IVA may call Carol Nrup at 394-5880.

Mrs. Robert Coppers, 240 N. Clark, will be hostess for next week's coffee and Mrs. Thomas Kenney will host the Nov. 21 coffee. Children are welcome.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Adrian Mohr, 358-0129.

Co-Workers Are Married

When Marilyn Schultz of Elk Grove went to work for Automatic Data Processing in Chicago, she met the young man who was to become her husband. Of course neither Marilyn nor Steve V. Donaldson, who made his home in Des Plaines, knew at the time that Cupid was pairing them up.

The co-workers were married the afternoon of Oct. 14 in Queen of the Rosary Church, Elk Grove.

Steve's family, the V. Donaldsons, came from their home in Blairstown, Pa., for the festivities, and his brother Neal came from St. Louis to be an usher for the ceremony.

MARILYN is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schultz of Elk Grove. Her sister Patricia and a cousin, Donna Gallo of Melrose Park, were two of her bridesmaids; the other was Diane Edwards of Elk Grove. Phyllis Strong, also of Elk Grove, was maid of honor.

Steve chose Jim Waring of Des Plaines as best man and ushers included Marilyn's brother Edward, Ray Stein of Elk Grove, her cousin; and Tim Kachic, Melrose Park.

Anthony Schultz, 6-year-old brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

AS SUE WAS given in marriage, the bride wore an ivory peau de soie gown with apricot ribbon running through a band of lace at the high neck, on the cuffs of the long full sleeves and circling the Empire waistline. Her elbow-length veil was attached to a lace cap also trimmed with apricot ribbon. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and ivy on a prayerbook.

The bridal attendants were dressed in apricot and carried baskets of autumn flowers.

Marilyn is a graduate of Forest View High School and attended Harper College for a year.

Childbirth Film At Area Hospital

Two showings of a film on the Lamaze method of childbirth will be offered at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. The first showing is at 8:30 tonight and the second will be at 10 Monday morning.

"The Story of Eric" will be presented by the Northern Illinois Chapter of the American Society for Psychoprophylaxis in Obstetrics with music written especially for the film. Highlights of classes demonstrating the techniques involved in preparation for childbirth are shown as well as the actual labor and delivery of one couple in the class. Both husband and wife are active participants in the events as they occur.

All expectant parents as well as the interested public are invited. A question and answer period will follow the film and a recently delivered couple who used the method will share their experience.

Further information is available from Mrs. George Levitt, 982-6656.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Donaldson

Baked Goodies At Meadows Mall

Fresh home-baked goodies will be sold by the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club at the annual charity bazaar, "Card-table Carnival," in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Mall Saturday.

Giant banks full of Tootsie Rolls will also be offered. Proceeds from the sale of the $1 banks will be donated to Brain Research.

The sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Area Couple Hosts Ball Preview Party

Mr. and Mrs. Luca E. Pontecorvo, 5500 Carriage Drive, Rolling Meadows, were hosts Thursday evening for a preview party for the 1973 Loyola University of Chicago Alumni Association Valentine Ball. The party was held in the Presidents' Room of Loyola's Marquette Center.

The Pontecorvos are general chairmen for the ball which will be held Feb. 10 at the Drake Hotel.

Community-Wide Blood Donor Plan May Be Set Up

A community-wide blood donor program may be set up in Elk Grove Village if the project receives support from village residents, churches and clubs at an organizational meeting at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the village hall, 301 Wellington Ave.

Village Trustee Nancy Vanderweel said this week she hopes people will attend the meeting ready to volunteer and be a part of the program. She said the program has been in the talking stage among trustees long enough, and now it was time to see if the public would support the project.

Mrs. Vanderweel and a special trustees committee have been investigating the possibility of setting up a blood "insurance" program in the village for nearly five months. Mrs. Vanderweel said announcements about the meeting have been sent to residents with the village water bill, and invitations went to 49 organizations and churches to send representatives. Earlier this week she said only 11 groups had responded to the announcement.

One program receiving particular attention by the committee was a 4 per cent community plan offered by the North Suburban Association for Health Resources. Under the plan 4 per cent of the village population would be required to give blood to insure the blood needs of the entire village would be met.

The advantage of the 4 per cent plan is that it covers hemophiliacs and cancer patients immediately without requiring a one-year waiting period as in some programs. The $23 processing fee for preparing blood for use is not covered by the North Suburban Association plan, but recent legislation requires insurance carriers to pay the processing cost.

MRS. VANDERWEEL said a community blood program would require a coordinator to run the program and 40-50 more persons to canvass the village for volunteer donors.

If the residents are not willing to work for a community blood insurance plan, Mrs. Vanderweel said she felt the village would then have the responsibility of sending out information on individual and group plans and let the people take care of handing it themselves.

She said the North Suburban Association offers a 20 per cent group plan for organizations and an individual plan. The Cooperative Blood Replacement Plan also has individual and family coverage which is free whether or not the participants hold health insurance, she said.

The volunteer blood banks are a step toward hospitals using all volunteer blood instead of paid-donor blood in which there is more risk of hepatitis, Mrs. Vanderweel said.

Suburbia's leisure life even makes the chore of dog walking easier, as this man can attest.

Grove, Dempster To Be Inspected

Remodeling Weighed For 2 Schools

Members of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 School Board and administration will inspect Grove Junior High School, Elk Grove Village, and Dempster Junior High School, Mount Prospect, tomorrow to discuss a possible $2.3 million remodeling plan for the two schools.

James Erviti, superintendent of Dist. 59, said the board has yet to make any decision on the proposal for remodeling. "The board has just decided to find out what it would take to remodel the schools."

On Oct. 30, a member of the Berger Kelly & Associates architectural firm presented a plan for remodeling the schools to the board.

THE PLAN CALLS for a rearrangement and expansion of classrooms, a small addition to the existing buildings and repair work on the schools' heating and ventilation systems.

Erviti said that if the board decided to have the remodeling done, the $2.3 million figure was a maximum cost estimate.

He said the project would cost the maximum amount only if the board decided to have the entire remodeling plan done over a period of several years.

The cost would be less if the board decided to have only part of the remodeling done or had the work done as quickly as possible.

Statistically, Elk Grove ranks as one of the best teams ever assembled in the Herald area. The Grenadiers are paced by versatile quarterback Jeff Stewart and hard-driving fullback Jeff Schroeder.

As opposed to Elk Grove's impressive running game, Hersey has proven a dangerous passing team headed by junior quarterback Mark Zakula and sure-handed end Marty Friel.

Both veteran head coaches — Joe Gilwa of Hersey and Elk Grove's Don Schnake — report that their teams are physically and mentally prepared for the classic prep windup.

Hersey will carry a 5-3 overall record ter up to the standards of the other, newer junior high schools in the district in terms of facilities, arrangement, and learning center size, said Erviti.

Grove and Dempster schools were built in sections constructed over several years. The two were first opened in 1960. They are the district's two oldest junior high schools.

Sewer Checks '2 Years Ahead': Village

The ordinance goes into effect Jan. 1, 1973, and gives municipalities one year to complete inspections.

"We've been following this ordinance two years before it was written," Claglia said. "We're actually ahead of everyone else."

Claglia said he did not know whether Elk Grove Village would be required to reinspect the sewers in the residential district because of the new ordinance, however, he added that not all the sewers in the industrial park had been surveyed.

"The testing in Elk Grove Village proved we did not have many breaks or cracks in the pipes, and there were very few illegal connections," Claglia said. He said currently the department was completing some repairs in the residential sections.

"In inspecting, we make visual observations of manholes to see if they leaked through the sides or through the concrete structures," he said. "Then we ran a television camera through 22,000 feet of sanitary sewer pipes to detect if there were any breaks, leaks or obstructions."

Claglia said smoke testing also was used in an attempt to discover any leaks. In this process smoke is pumped into the sanitary sewer at one manhole, and the sewer is plugged up at the next manhole in all directions. If there is a break, the smoke will escape the pipe and come up through the ground.

Claglia said Elk Grove Village was only one municipality in the MSD system and solving all the problems in the village would not eliminate all the problems with sanitary sewage back-up. "It will take another sanitary treatment plant in the area before the total sewage problem will be relieved," he said.

Forces Girl To Drive Him For 2 Hours

A young nurse's aide was forced to drive through the area for more than two hours Wednesday night after a man jumped into her car while she was stopped at an intersection in Schaumburg.

Police said the incident occurred at Meacham and Algonquin Roads at about 8:30 p.m. They said a man in his 20's forced his way into the woman's northbound auto while she was stopped for a traffic signal.

The man then ordered her to drive, giving instructions along the way. Apparently the woman was not molested during the incident, police said.

On several occasions, police said, the woman ordered the man from the auto, but he refused to leave. The intruder was not armed, according to police reports.

After driving for nearly 2½ hours, the man ordered the woman to drive down a narrow gravel road.

When the car reached the end of the road, the man left the auto and disappeared on foot. The woman then reported the incident, police said.

Two detectives have been assigned to the investigation.

If the man is arrested, Schaumburg police said he faces possible charges of unlawful restraint and criminal trespass.

The World

The United States said it believes the Vietnam peace negotiations are entering their final stage. But North Vietnam said "peace is not for tomorrow." "The reason is simple — the United States refused to sign the peace agreement it has already agreed to," a Hanoi negotiator said in Paris.

A huge bomb exploded in a downtown Belfast parking garage and a series of gunbattles wounded at least six persons in the Northern Ireland capital. An Irish Republican Army leader was captured and a Protestant girl was tortured and her head shaved by Catholics in their continuing warfare.

Cuban police first had to prove to hijackers of a Mexicana Airline Boeing 727 that they were really in Havana before allowing themselves to be disarmed and their $320,000 cash ransom confiscated, passengers told authorities upon return to Mexico.

The War

Both sides in the Vietnam War are waging a battle of supplies, reinforcing their own stocks and attacking those of the other side, in an all-out race to beat a promised cease-fire agreement. Seventeen American servicemen were killed in South Vietnam last week, highest total in a month.

'Mr. Average American' Voted For President Nixon

The man who spent a week traveling with the campaign of Sen. George McGovern said yesterday he voted for Richard Nixon for president.

"I just don't think the man (McGovern) could have carried out the programs he had to offer in the way he would have wanted to," Richard Johnson said yesterday. Johnson was the Rolling Meadows man who was selected this year by the computers of the National Public Affairs Center for Television (NPACT) to appear in several television programs focusing on a representative of middle-class America.

"At first I was pro-Nixon," Johnson admitted, "but when the opportunity to travel with McGovern came up, I gladly accepted the chance. But the purpose was for me to hear and see what other people thought of McGovern."

(Johnson's memoirs of that trip were serialized last week exclusively in the Herald.)

"The thing that really bothered me was the indecision of the people around him," Johnson said. He said the indecision appeared in places like union groups, where after McGovern addressed a gathering people were not sure of their position toward the Democratic candidate.

Johnson said he didn't think McGovern could have carried through with some of the programs he offered the American people, even though Johnson said he agreed with many of the proposals.

"Like Vietnam," Johnson pointed out.

Richard Johnson

"McGovern wanted to end the war and bring the troops home in 90 days, but I don't see how he could have done it. And on tax relief where he offered to provide another $22 million by closing tax loopholes, equalizing the tax burden and returning $15 million for local use. I don't see how that's possible in this age."

JOHNSON, WHO said "I'm really a Democrat at heart," expressed the thought that another candidate, notably Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), might have been a more forceful candidate. In comparing McGovern to Kennedy, Johnson said "I don't want to say that Kennedy has more clout, but he has more power to get done what he wants to get done."

But in praising McGovern, Johnson added, "I wish some of the things that McGovern talked about, Nixon will follow through on."

Johnson conceded that the stigma attached to him by the media of being "Mr. Average American" caused some problems for him, especially as the election grew nearer. "I really was undecided, but because of the position I was in, I didn't want one person to be swayed to Nixon just because I might be for him." He stressed the fact that Nixon was the better choice as far as Richard Johnson was concerned.

"At one point I was leaning toward McGovern when the peace rumors began," Johnson said, adding he thought the timing of the announcement of a possible peace might have been a political move. But nothing ever developed further on the matter, so it did not become an issue in his mind, he said.

ONLY TWO other Republicans won Johnson's support on Tuesday and they were Rep. Philip Crane and Sen. Charles Percy. In all races, Johnson said he voted for Democratic candidates.

With the end of Campaign '72 came an end, too, more or less, to Johnson's time in the national limelight. But he admits he has had a year quite literally to remember. "I never dreamed a year ago that little me would be involved in all this," he remarked.

And when asked if he thought he might get invited to the inauguration in January, the man who was written about in newspapers across the nation and featured on two television shows laughed and said "no I don't even think the President knows I voted for him."

Arlington May Be Next Target For Policemen's Union

Arlington Heights patrolmen may be one of the next targets of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA), an organization that already is the bargaining agent for patrolmen on several area police departments.

CCPA Pres. John Flood says he would like to organize patrolmen on the Arlington Heights police force, although he hasn't yet taken the matter up with the CCPA executive board or with village police themselves.

The CCPA already has chapters in Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect, Wheeling and Des Plaines. The Cook County Sheriff's Police also is represented by the CCPA.

"I think Arlington Heights patrolmen want to be with other area patrolmen," Flood said recently. "But I think there would be a fear on their part of organizing. This fear is a result of attitudes of such men as English and McDougall."

FLOOD WAS REFERRING to Maury English and Irwin McDougall, captains in the village police department. Flood contends that these police administrators would "intimidate" any patrolmen who express an interest in CCPA, by threatening them with loss of their jobs.

English, however, disputed Flood's charges. He said his men have to see for themselves if the CCPA has anything to offer and then can make the decision to join or not.

Flood, too, admits that any fears patrolmen might have about joining the CCPA are unjustified, but not because of anything English might say. Rather, he says, the Arlington Heights Village Board "wouldn't try to beat the men down for seeking proper organization."

He did not have such kind words for some other municipalities, Rolling Meadows in particular. When the CCPA first entered Rolling Meadows last year, a clear majority of the patrolmen there voted to join the organization. Now the CCPA is "dormant" in Rolling Meadows, Flood said.

Last January, charges flew in Rolling Meadows that Police Chief Lewis Case, backed by Mayor Roland Meyer, intimidated the city's CCPA members, threatening them with loss of their jobs. Meyer denied the charges, and several Rolling Meadows policemen backed him. But Flood still is not convinced.

FLOOD DOES NOT SEE the Arlington Heights village administration in the same light. He said that the local board is "sophisticated enough to deal with the CCPA on a sophisticated level." And Flood added that he has the greatest respect for Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood as a man the CCPA could deal with, should the organization come into Arlington Heights.

Still, Flood says he sees the CCPA cause hindered by the likes of English and McDougall, who he claims fear that the CCPA would "remove their power to deal arbitrarily with the men."

English does say that he disagrees with Flood on the way to accomplish goals. He doesn't like the idea of strikes, he said, adding that he thinks many of Flood's beliefs are "not practical."

"I just don't believe in a union for police officers," English said.

But Flood contends that he doesn't believe in police strikes, either, even though the CCPA has led more police strikes than any police organization in the country. He says the CCPA has done as much to stop potential strikes as well.

"I don't think a police organization can tell the men to do anything," Flood said. "Anything they do (such as strike), they do of their own volition."

STILL, SOME Arlington Heights patrolmen themselves are afraid that a CCPA chapter in their department could pull them into an unwanted strike. They point to Waukegan, where a large number of patrolmen went on strike and subsequently were fired, as an example of the CCPA in action. But Flood contends neither he nor his organization had anything to do with calling that strike, that the Waukegan police had decided to strike before joining the CCPA.

The strike issue aside, Flood says the CCPA has a lot to offer local police officers. He called his organization a "professional catalyst." He said the CCPA would demand for the patrolmen what's been promised by the police administration for a long time. The CCPA would give the patrolmen a voice in their careers, Flood said.

"I think the longer Arlington Heights patrolmen stay out (of the CCPA), the more they are hurting themselves," Flood said. "The CCPA is the only police organization in the state that has the courage to fight for what's right."

But Chief Calderwood and Capt. English say their men don't have anything to fight for. They said the police administrators have always had an open-door policy and are ready to listen and do something about any man's complaints.

And the patrolmen talked to the Herald agreed with their superiors. They say there are really no major dissatisfaction in their department. One officer mentioned that the Arlington Heights Patrolman's Association, an organization set up for the good of the patrolmen and encouraged by Calderwood, was recently dissolved. There was just no interest, and that was largely attributed to the fact that there were no complaints.

"Working conditions and salary here are equal or better than any around," English said.

BUT FLOOD ATTRIBUTED those good working conditions and salaries to the work of the CCPA in other communities. He added that the CCPA, with its attorneys and expertise in labor relations and negotiations, could help village patrolmen even more if they would start a local CCPA chapter. And as for being able to go to the chief with their problems, Flood said the chief is a representative of the village board, not of the patrolmen.

"Throughout the U.S., police are organizing," Flood said. "Chiefs have always maintained authoritarian control of their departments. But today, policemen are better educated, more apt to ask questions than follow blindly. Chiefs have no idea, in most cases, about labor relations...

"There's no doubt in my mind that if I could speak to Arlington Heights patrolmen as a group, we could organize them," he said. "Right now, they have a lot of fear because of lack of knowledge about the CCPA. I would be happy to debate English, McDougall or Calderwood before their own men on police organization. At the end of the debate, there is no question that they would come with us."

English agreed that Flood just might be able to win a debate with him over the CCPA, but not because the CCPA can really do anything for local patrolmen.

"Flood is an idealist. I'm a realist," English said. "No realist can argue with an idealist and win. But try and see if he can deliver what he promises. That's another story."

SOME VILLAGE patrolmen have expressed an interest in hearing what Flood has to say about the merits of the CCPA. A newspaper story about Mount Prospect police voting to join the CCPA hangs in the lounge of the Arlington Heights police department. The men know it's out there.

But whether they are ready to organize behind Flood is another matter. At the same time, Flood will not say definitely that the CCPA will try to organize the village patrolmen.

"Whether or not we make an organizational drive has not been discussed by the executive board (of the CCPA)," Flood said. "I want to do it, but only if they (the executive board) think the Arlington Heights patrolmen have the intestinal fortitude to withstand pressures from the administration."

Flood says it is inevitable that the village patrolmen will organize sooner or later. And he has his sights set on soon-

Rezoning OK'd For Elders' Housing

Elk Grove Village trustees approved rezoning ordinances this week for a senior citizens' housing project south of the Grove Shopping Center and for an indoor tennis facility on the northwest corner of Busse Road and Howard Street.

The 15-acre site near the shopping center was rezoned for business to special use multiple-family dwelling paving the way for a $4.5 million housing development for the elderly.

Rezoning from light industry to business was approved for a three-acre site off Busse Road purchased last week for a $1 million eight-court indoor tennis club.

Both the developers of the housing project and the tennis club must seek approval for the site and building plans before construction can begin.

LEWIS HANDLER, managing partner for developers of the tennis club, said construction is scheduled to start after the first of the year with completion anticipated early in the summer. Plans for the tennis club are being prepared by the architectural firm of Friedman Aischuler & Sincere of Chicago.

At a public hearing last month before the village plan commission, Alfred Aischuler said the tennis facility would have saunas, sun rooms, whirlpools and a pro shop in addition to eight courts.

Handler estimated 1,000 members would be joining the private tennis club. He said annual memberships would be about $30 to $40 for women, $60 to $75 for men and $100 to $125 for families. Court time would cost from $12 an hour for prime time to $8 at other hours.

The three other developers of the property with Handler are Marc and Henry Auerbach, and Theodore Oppenheim. The four also own and operate three bowling alleys, including Elk Grove Bowl in the Park 'N Shop center.

THE PROPOSED senior citizens' housing project is planned to include some 300 one-bedroom and efficiency townhouse apartments in clusters with parking around the perimeter. Persons must be at least 62 years old to be eligible to live in the development.

One-bedroom units would rent for about $195, and efficiency rentals would be about $165 per month. Marvin Myers, the developer, said a federal rent subsidy program would be incorporated in the project to help senior citizens with limited incomes pay the rent.

Board Votes To Remain In Ed-Red

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board has voted to continue membership in Ed-Red, a cooperative of suburban school districts with a lobbyist in Springfield.

Dist. 23 will pay $125 in dues to belong to Ed-Red for another year. Last year, High School Dist. 214 paid $1,800 in dues which covered the six elementary school districts that send students to 214. This year, however, Dist. 214 has offered to pay $900 and has asked the elementary districts to share half the cost.

Supt. Edward Grodsky recommended the district again support Ed-Red. "We do have input into Ed-Red during each legislative session," he said. "I feel we would be carrying our share along with the high school district if we paid part of the cost."

High School Dist. 211 and other districts in suburban Cook County also belong to Ed-Red.

The proposal does not discuss the problem of whether to provide bus transportation for students choosing a school, Grodsky said, but that issue would also have to be decided by the board.

BEGINNING IN August, the board has looked at proposals for Buffalo Grove boundaries and for changes in the Hersey High School boundaries to relieve crowding there. Residents of the Cambridge subdivision have appeared before the board asking to be placed in the new school while residents of other areas, particularly the Ivy Hill subdivision in Arlington Heights, have asked to remain at Hersey.

Grodsky said the proposal to provide optional areas "shows that it is not simple to give options when you think of fairness." He added, "I would not be surprised if when the board looks at what all is involved in making an option plan work that they might decide to establish firm boundaries."

The board has set a deadline of Dec. 1 for adopting boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School. The school is now under construction at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads in Buffalo Grove and is scheduled to open in the fall, 1973.

Students Sew Pillows For Elgin Elderly

Hand stitched and stuffed pillows made by two fifth grade classes for patients in a convalescent home, were part of the student's study of health.

Mrs. Barbara Oas, teacher at Dirksen School in Schaumburg, said the project started when her students discussed a unit on responsibility.

"The girls decided making pillows completely by hand for the Day Break Nursing Home in Elgin was a good idea," said Mrs. Oas.

Another fifth grade teacher, Miss Linda Covich and her students, joined the project. Together the students stitched 26 pillows which they delivered to the home this week. The pillows had smiling Raggedy Ann faces embroidered on them.

Mrs. Oas said both patients and students enjoyed the visit.

Rolling Meadows Precinct 13, designated by ABC-TV as one of 100 key precincts in the state, did indeed prove to be a key precinct election night.

Precinct 13 was the only precinct in strongly Republican Palatine Township carried by gubernatorial candidate Dan Walker.

The final tally reflected the closeness of the gubernatorial race as voters gave 218 votes to Walker and 215 to Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

A Walker victory was predicted by Richard Mugalian, Democratic committee chairman in the township, at 7:50 p.m. when the returns from precinct 13 were posted.

Walker is going to carry the state. Any time a Democratic candidate can carry a precinct in this township he is going to win, said Mugalian, as he watched his own returns in the state representative race.

TICKET SPLITTING in the precinct was evident as voters followed the national trend and gave President Nixon a 2 to 1 margin over Sen. George McGovern. The vote was 283 for Nixon and 146 for McGovern.

Returns from the precinct show voters voted mainly Republican in the state and county races.

Precinct 13 returns in the state races were: U.S. Senate: 184 for Sen. Charles Percy (R) and 136 for Roman Pucinski (D); attorney general: 250 for Atty. Gen. William Scott (R) and 103 for Thomas Lyons (D); secretary of state: 223 for Edward Kucharski (R) and 188 for Michael Howlett (D); state comptroller: 171 for Dean Barringer (D) and 240 for George Lindberg (R); and U.S. representative: 179 for Phil Crane (R) and 138 for Edwin Frank (D).

In the state Senate race voters gave 367 votes to David Regner (R) and 171 to Donald Rose (D). In the race for the state House Eugenia Chapman (D) received 217½ votes, John Kelley (D) 112, Donald Totten (R) 201 and Virginia Macdonald (R) 209½.

Bernard Carey (R), in his race for state's attorney, received 233 votes in the precinct and his opponent Edward Hanrahan (D) received 181.

New High School Boundary Talks Resume Monday

by WANDALYN RICE

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education will resume discussion of attendance boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School at its regular board meeting Monday.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district's administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

The board will be presented with a proposal drawn up by the district's administration which would give students in the Cambridge subdivision of Buffalo Grove the choice of whether to attend the new school or to attend at Wheeling High School where students from the area are presently enrolled.

At the same time, the proposal would allow students in three areas now attending Hersey High School the choice to continue to attend Hersey or to go to other schools.

Supt. EDWARD Gilbert said yesterday he does not expect the board to take official action on the boundary question Monday and added that he was not necessarily recommending the plan.

At the last meeting where the boundaries were discussed, the board asked Gilbert to work out some way that some areas that had expressed preferences could be given their choice of schools.

Under the proposal to be presented Monday, the basic boundaries for Buffalo Grove would include the present Cooper and Rand junior high school attendance areas as far south as Palatine Road. Students from Cambridge would be able to choose to attend Buffalo Grove or Wheeling and students from the Ivy Hill subdivision in Arlington Heights, would be able to remain at Hersey or attend Buffalo Grove.

In addition, two optional areas would be set up on the eastern edge of the present Hersey High School attendance area. Students in Prospect Heights south of Palatine Road now attending Hersey High School would be able to choose between Wheeling and Hersey. Students now attending Hersey living south of Kensington Road in Mount Prospect would be able to choose between Hersey and Prospect high schools.

THE PROPOSAL would require the board to adopt priorities to determine in what order students would be accepted at a school. Maximum enrollment of 2,900 students at Buffalo Grove and 2,750 at Hersey would be set and students could exercise their option as long as space remained in the building.

Since Hersey now has about 400 students more than its capacity, Gilbert said, only about half the nearly 800 students who would be given an option of attending Hersey under the plan would be able to get into the school.

The proposal does not discuss the problem of whether to provide bus transportation for students choosing a school, Gilbert said, but that issue would also have to be decided by the board.

BEGINNING IN August, the board has looked at proposals for Buffalo Grove boundaries and for changes in the Hersey High School boundaries to relieve crowding there. Residents of the Cambridge subdivision have appeared before the board asking to be placed in the new school while residents of other areas, particularly the Ivy Hill subdivision of Arlington Heights, have asked to remain at Hersey.

Gilbert said the proposal to provide optional areas "shows that it is not simple to give options when you think of fairness." He added, "I would not be surprised if when the board looks at what all is involved in making an option plan work that they might decide to establish firm boundaries."

Rainy weather once again is holding up work on several village projects, including the sidewalk replacement program and the realignment of Wheeling Road.

Larry Oppenheimer, director of public works, said bad weather is slowing Commonwealth Edison Co.'s work on moving utility poles on the north side of Dundee Road. "They're moving slowly, the same as everyone else, because of the weather conditions," he said.

The poles must be moved back from the road to allow for widening at the intersection of Dundee Road and the new Wheeling Road. Oppenheimer said that because of the delay in moving the poles, it was unlikely that work on the north side of Dundee Road could begin this year.

OPPENHEIMER said he originally had hoped that work on the north side of the road could be substantially completed before winter weather made construction work impossible. He said that at this late date there was too much danger that snow and cold weather would set in while the road was being excavated, causing traffic hazards for people using Lynn Plaza.

"Once you excavate for the pavement and it gets wet, there's no way you can do the job properly," Oppenheimer said.

The wet weather also has slowed work on the realignment on the south side of Dundee Road. Oppenheimer said the contractors have not been able to do any judgments and are still grading the roadbed.

Refreshments will be served in the board room throughout the program.

WHAT STUDENTS WILL fill the halls of Buffalo Grove High School when it is completed next fall? That question may be answered at the Dist. 214 board meeting Monday night, when the attendance boundary proposal is presented to the board. This photo is from Rolling Meadows High School, designed similar to Buffalo Grove High School, although the new building will include several improvements.

New Vehicle Sticker Applications Mailed

Applications for 1973 village vehicle stickers were mailed to Wheeling residents this week, to be returned before the end of the month.

Although stickers will not go on sale until Dec. 1, people can use the applications to request special numbers or to avoid waiting in line at the village hall.

Vehicle stickers are to be displayed on the windshield of vehicles by Jan. 2, 1973. Owners of cars or trucks can obtain stickers by either using the application or going to the village hall.

Fees for the vehicle stickers are the same as last year. A car sticker costs $8, a recreational vehicle sticker is $5 and costs for other vehicles are determined by weight. The maximum price for a vehicle sticker is $20 for a trailer or semi-trailer weighing between 10,000 and 20,000 pounds.

If a vehicle is leased or company-owned, the vehicle sticker application should be filled out by the operator of the vehicle.

Applications may be sent through the mail or placed in the 24-hour depository in the lobby of the village hall. When applying for a village sticker, it is not necessary to have state license plates.

Open House Sunday

There will be an open house at the Dist. 21 Administrative Center, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling, Sunday. The two-hour open house will begin at 2:30 p.m.

The school board and administrators invite all residents of the district to come to the open house and see the new center that was completed earlier this year.

Refreshments will be served in the board room throughout the program.

Dundee Road Utility Pole Work Also Slowed

Rain Delays Sidewalk, Road Projects

Rainy weather once again is holding up work on several village projects, including the sidewalk replacement program and the realignment of Wheeling Road.

Larry Oppenheimer, director of public works, said bad weather is slowing Commonwealth Edison Co.'s work on moving utility poles on the north side of Dundee Road. "They're moving slowly, the same as everyone else, because of the weather conditions," he said.

The poles must be moved back from the road to allow for widening at the intersection of Dundee Road and the new Wheeling Road. Oppenheimer said that because of the delay in moving the poles, it was unlikely that work on the north side of Dundee Road could begin this year.

OPPENHEIMER said he originally had hoped that work on the north side of the road could be substantially completed before winter weather made construction work impossible. He said that at this late date there was too much danger that snow and cold weather would set in while the road was being excavated, causing traffic hazards for people using Lynn Plaza.

"Once you excavate for the pavement and it gets wet, there's no way you can do the job properly," Oppenheimer said.

The wet weather also has slowed work on the realignment on the south side of Dundee Road. Oppenheimer said the contractors have not been able to do any judgments and are still grading the roadbed.

Because of the rain, however, the contractors have not been able to do any paving. Oppenheimer said that if the weather clears there will be some work done on the curbs, gutters and pavement in the next two weeks.

"One way or another they'll get that done," he said. "There is no way they can leave that open for the winter."

The sidewalk replacement program also has been slowed by wet weather, forcing contractors to work on Saturdays. Oppenheimer said work on the project is about 80-85 per cent complete, not including cleanup operations.

Work on the sidewalks has been completed in the Dunburst area, and the contractors are now finishing up in Meadowbrook West. According to Oppenheimer, the rest of the work can be completed in a little more than a week if the weather clears.

Nixon Won Even Bigger In Township

President Nixon's landslide victory in the national elections was even further evidenced in Wheeling Township where voters selected him over George McGovern by 41,847 to 12,912. In the village of Wheeling, McGovern did not carry a single precinct.

Totals for Sen. Charles Percy were of equal proportion as he took Wheeling township, 40,978 to 12,846. Gov. Richard Ogilvie would have been happier if his totals for the state would have followed the Republican vote in the township. He received 35,129 votes compared to Daniel Walker's 18,464.

Carey also enjoyed a wide margin, 37,928 to 16,078. All vote totals are unofficial until the canvass has been done, but with such a clear Republican majority in the township, there is little doubt the results will stay substantially the same.

Another Republican winner, Atty. Gen. William Scott, maintained a wide margin over Thomas Lyons with a total of 44,612 to 9,102. Other, less hotly contested state races showed equal vote spreads.

STATE 3RD District senate candidate David Regner had an 11,107 vote total over his opponent's 2,783. He was running against William Rose.

Republicans Donald Totten and Virginia McDonald also claimed two of the House Seats, along with Democrat Eugenia Chapman. Totten was the top vote getter in that race, but in the township he ran second to Mrs. McDonald.

For the 4th District in Wheeling Township, Republican John Nimrod buried Thomas Flynn almost 3 to 1, and Eugene Schleckman and Robert S. Juckett carried top votes for the House. Democrat Aaron Jaffe ran third in that race, leaving Ed Warman out in the cold. That was the same way the votes turned out for the entire 4th District.

It was confusing for Wheeling Township vote counters this year as three districts were represented. Wheeling and Buffalo Grove were included in the 1st District, but the 3rd and 4th districts still claimed part of the township, particularly in the Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights portions.

Veterans To Observe Their Day Tomorrow

Veteran's Day will be observed by Wheeling veteran organizations Saturday, when they place flowers at the memorial in Heritage Park.

Amvets Post 66, VFW Post 7178 and American Legion Post 1668 are expected to take part in memorial ceremonies at 11 a.m. in the park. Coffee and doughnuts will be served in the park building afterwards.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Savoring a landslide mandate, President Nixon met in Florida with his top advisers for a weekend retreat that could shape the nation's policies until 1976. At the same time Democratic leaders around the country have begun the arduous task of reshaping their party's leadership to put it in contention for 1976.

With more plentiful supplies of meat, particularly pork, increases in the price of food will probably slow for the rest of the year, Agriculture Department experts predicted.

Divers, groping through silt and buffeted by treacherous tides, searched for at least a half dozen vehicles that plunged into the Brunswick River at Brunswick, Ga. with their screaming occupants when a ship slammed into a drawbridge. It is unknown how many persons and cars plunged into the murky waters.

The State

One man was shot to death and two were wounded in a shooting at the Black Muslim Temple on Chicago's South Side. All were employees of an elementary school and library attached to the continuing warfare.

Francis T. Mayo, Region 5 administrator for the Environmental Protection Agency, suggested that each of the four states in the region name two representatives to a technical committee to make recommendations on problems of cooling water around Lake Michigan's shores.

The World

The United States said it believes the Vietnam peace negotiations are entering their final stage. But North Vietnam said "peace is not for tomorrow." The reason is simple — the United States refused to sign the peace agreement it has already "agreed to," a Hanoi negotiator said in Paris.

A huge bomb exploded in a downtown Belfast parking garage and a series of gunbattles wounded at least six persons in the Northern Ireland capital. An Irish Republican Army leader was captured and a Protestant girl was tortured and her head shaved by Catholics in their continuing warfare.

Cuban police first had to prove to hijackers of a Mexican Airline Boeing 727 that they were really in Havana before allowing themselves to be disarmed and their $20,000 cash ransom confiscated, passengers told authorities upon return to Mexico.

The War

Both sides in the Vietnam War are waging a battle of supplies, reinforcing their own stocks and attacking those of the other side, in an all-out race to beat a promised cease-fire agreement. Seventeen American servicemen were killed in South Vietnam last week, highest total in a month.

WORKMEN FOR THE LAMON Construction Co. are now installing sanitary sewers in Prospect Heights as part of the $1.1 million sewer system being built by the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District (OTSD). Work is now about five months behind schedule because of rainy weather, according to OTSD Supt. Richard Schuld. Completion may be delayed further because of legal action.

Suit May Delay Completion Of Sanitary Sewer System

A condemnation suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court may delay completion of a $1.1 million sanitary sewer system being built by the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District.

OTSD filed the suit against George Frankenberger, 402 Willow Rd., because he refused to permit sewer construction on his property according to OTSD Supt. Richard Schuld. Schuld said Frankenberger's refusal will probably delay completion which had been expected in about two months.

A hearing on the suit is scheduled Dec. 11.

Frankenberger said Monday he is afraid OTSD will damage his septic system, thus causing sewage back-up on his property, while a sewer is installed. He claims OTSD has altered its original plans, which he favored. "I'm not against the sewer," he said. "But OTSD has other alternatives to coming onto my property."

SCHULD ADMITTED that Frankenberger's septic system might be damaged during sewer installation. "But we've had the same situation in other areas," he said. "We told Frankenberger we would pump out his septic tank and repair any damage within 72 hours. We've tried talking to him, but it hasn't worked. What he's saying is 'Change the design. Build on other people's property, but not on mine.'"

OTSD has not altered the original plans, according to Schuld. He said the plans cover Phase Two, the last half of the sewer project that will serve 950 residences north of Willow Road. Phase One, completed last year, serves 750 homes south of Willow Road.

Frankenberger is creating "a health hazard," according to Schuld. He said residents living in an area bounded by Schoenbeck, Palatine and Willow roads and Waterman Avenue. The area, known as Contract C of Phase Two, also includes Lancaster, Marion and Dorset streets and West Circle. Sewers in the area could have been in service two months ago, Schuld said.

"The lines are in except for a connecting line across Frankenberger's property. These people cannot tie in until the line is completed," Schuld said. "Many of these people have leaking septic systems and need the sanitary sewers now."

Richardson A Marine

Marine Lance Corporal Patrick C. Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac E. Richardson Jr., 343 Regent Dr., Buffalo Grove, has completed a training course on the operation of a new amphibious tractor. Richardson is stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Elgin Authorities Aided; Flowers Charged For 'Pot'

While Wheeling police were helping Elgin police arrest a man wanted in that city, they came up with an arrest of their own Wednesday night.

Wheeling police arrested Steven Flowers, 20, on charges of driving with a revoked license and possession of marijuana.

Flowers was living at the Wishing Well Motel in Wheeling, where police accompanied Elgin authorities to arrest Daniel Niewire, who was also living at the motel. Niewire was wanted on a deceptive practice charge in Elgin.

WHEN POLICE went to the motel, they learned that both men had checked into separate rooms on the same day during October. Police said neither man was at home when they arrived.

About an hour later, however, police stopped the two men in a car at Milwaukee Avenue and Edgewood Drive. When police arrested Niewire, they reportedly asked Stevens for identification. He could not produce a driver's license.

Police reportedly arrested him for operating a vehicle without a license. Authorities allegedly found marijuana in Stevens' possession when he was searched before going to the station.

Police also said Stevens is wanted by Elk Grove police and that three warrants for his arrest have been issued by Cook County authorities.

Woman's Club Sets Holiday Auction

A holiday auction for Christmas shoppers will be conducted Thursday by the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club to raise funds for community service projects.

The auction will begin at 8 p.m. at Kingswood Methodist Church. All items will be handmade by club members, including crocheted hats, scarves and shrinks, ceramic pieces, crewel work, fruit cakes and Christmas ornaments.

Mrs. Norman Katz will be auctioneer, with bidding beginning at $1.50. The public is welcome. For more information, phone 537-0053 or 537-4503.

New High School Boundary Talks Resume Monday

by WANDALYN RICE

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education will resume discussion of attendance boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School at its regular board meeting Monday.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district's administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

The board will be presented with a proposal drawn up by the district's administration which would give students in the Cambridge subdivision of Buffalo Grove the choice of whether to attend the new school or to attend at Wheeling High School where students from the area are presently enrolled.

At the same time, the proposal would allow students in three areas now attending Hersey High School the choice to continue to attend Hersey or to go to other schools.

Supt. EDWARD Gilbert said yesterday he does not expect the board to take official action on the boundary question Monday and added that he was not necessarily recommending the plan.

At the last meeting where the boundaries were discussed, the board asked Gilbert to work out some way that some areas that had expressed preferences could be given their choice of schools.

Under the proposal to be presented Monday, the basic boundaries for Buffalo Grove would include the present Cooper and Rand junior high school attendance areas as far south as Palatine Road. Students from Cambridge would be able to choose to attend Buffalo Grove or Wheeling and students from the Ivy Hill subdivision in Arlington Heights, would be able to remain at Hersey or attend Buffalo Grove.

In addition, two optional areas would be set up on the eastern edge of the present Hersey High School attendance area. Students in Prospect Heights south of Palatine Road now attending Hersey High School would be able to choose between Wheeling and Hersey. Students now attending Hersey living south of Kensington Road in Mount Prospect would be able to choose between Hersey and Prospect high schools.

THE PROPOSAL would require the board to adopt priorities to determine in what order students would be accepted at a school. Maximum enrollments of 2,500 students at Buffalo Grove and 2,750 at Hersey would be set and students could exercise their option as long as space remained in the building.

Since Hersey now has about 400 students more than its capacity, Gilbert said, only about half the nearly 800 students who would be given an option of attending Hersey under the plan would be able to get into the school.

The proposal does not discuss the problem of whether to provide bus transportation for students choosing a school, Gilbert said, but that issue would also have to be decided by the board.

BEGINNING IN August, the board has looked at proposals for Buffalo Grove boundaries and for changes in the Hersey High School boundaries to relieve crowding there. Residents of the Cambridge subdivision have appeared before the board asking to be placed in the new school while residents of other areas, particularly the Ivy Hill subdivision of Arlington Heights, have asked to remain at Hersey.

Gilbert said the proposal to provide optional areas "shows that it is not simple to give options when you think of fairness." He added, "I would not be surprised if when the board looks at what is involved in making an option plan work that they might decide to establish firm boundaries."

The board has set a deadline of Dec. 1 for adopting boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School. The school is now under construction at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads in Buffalo Grove and is scheduled to open in the fall, 1973.

WHAT STUDENTS WILL fill the halls of Buffalo Grove High School when it is completed next fall? That question may be answered at the Dist. 214 board meeting Monday night, when the attendance boundary proposal is presented to the board.

designed similar to Buffalo Grove High School, although the new building will include several improvements.

Kilmer PTA's 'Fun Fair' Has Something For Everyone

The Joyce Kilmer School PTA will sponsor its annual "Fun Fair" between 5 and 9 p.m. today. Various booths and concessions will be set up at the fair, which will be at the school on Golf View Terrace in Buffalo Grove.

This year, students have helped plan and prepare the various activities of the fair. The Campfire Girls have made a haunted house, the Indian Guides will conduct a cake walk, and the Girl Scouts will have an auction.

In conjunction with a "Country Store," a boutique will be set up with miscellaneous handmade items on sale.

A movie will also be shown that consists of three cartoons, and popcorn and candy will be sold during the show. Hot dogs will also be served during the fair.

Open House Sunday

There will be an open house at the Dist. 21 Admin. Center, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling, Sunday. The two-hour open house will begin at 2:30 p.m.

The school board and administrators invite all residents of the district to come to the open house and see the new center that was completed earlier this year.

Refreshments will be served in the board room throughout the program.

Levitt & Sons, Inc. crossed the first hurdle in its new annexation process Wednesday night, receiving approval of the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission on plans to develop two parcels of land north of Mundelein Road.

Surprisingly, no village residents showed up to protest the almost unanimous decision of the commission to recommend that the village board approve Levitt's request for annexation and zoning. A capacity crowd was on hand for the public hearing on the proposals last month.

Levitt plans to build townhouse condominiums, apartment condominiums and single-family homes on a 50-acre plot known as the Koelpner-Demuth parcel. Recreation facilities planned include a public neighborhood park and a private retention area.

THE FIRM also proposes to develop another 61-acre site known as the Wagner parcel, just south of Aptakisic Road. It plans to build townhouse condominiums and a private swim club. A school and a neighborhood park are planned for this development, in addition to baseball and football fields and a private recreation area.

Levitt's request that the plan commission recommend that the village board waive a setback requirement contained in the village floodplain ordinance was turned down. The firm asked to be released from a provision demanding 100-foot setbacks from lakes or retention ponds.

Ken Campbell, representing Levitt, said his company would comply with a 10-foot setback suggested by Village Plan Consultant Norman Drummond.

Although some members of the plan commission said they felt the 100-foot requirement was exorbitant, the commission agreed the decision to waive the requirement should be made by the village board.

THE DECISION to require Levitt to put in screening, sidewalks or both along Arlington Heights Road and Aptakisic Road was also left entirely to the village board. Levitt has indicated it will do whatever the trustees ask.

According to the annexation agreement, Levitt has also agreed to construct buildings higher than three stories, to provide a site for an underground well and storage facility, and to pay 20 percent of their $28,000 water tap-on fees at the time of annexation. This money is to provide working funds to make service improvements that will be required by the development.

Levitt will also cooperate in the installation of a traffic signal at Arlington Heights Road and Ill. Rte. 83.

According to Village Mgr. Dan Larson, the village board will probably consider the plan commission recommendation in about two weeks.

Nixon Won Even Bigger In Township

President Nixon's landslide victory in the national elections was even further evidenced in Wheeling Township where voters selected him over George McGovern by 41,847 to 12,912. In the village of Wheeling, McGovern did not carry a single precinct.

Totals for Sen. Charles Percy were of equal proportion as he took Wheeling township, 40,976 to 12,546. Gov. Richard Ogilvie would have been happier if his totals for the state would have followed the Republican vote in the township. He received 35,129 votes compared to Daniel Walker's 19,464.

Carey also enjoyed a wide margin, 37,223 to 16,078. All vote totals are unofficial until the canvass has been done, but with such a clear Republican majority in the township, there is little doubt the results will stay substantially the same.

Another Republican winner, Atty. Gen. William Scott, maintained a wide margin over Thomas Lyons with a total of 44,812 to 9,102. Other, less hotly contested state races showed equal vote spreads.

STATE 3RD District senate candidate David Regner had an 11,107 vote total over his opponent's 2,788. He was running against William Rose.

Republicans Donald Totten and Virginia McDonald also claimed two of the House Seats, along with Democrat Eugenia Chapman. Totten was the top vote getter in that race, but in the township he ran second to Mrs. Macdonald.

For the 4th District in Wheeling Township, Republican John Nimbrol buried Thomas Flynn almost 3 to 1, and Eugene Schlickman and Robert S. Juckett carried top votes for the House. Democrat Aaron Jaffe ran third in that race, leaving Ed Warman out in the cold. That was the same way the votes turned out for the entire 4th District.

It was confusing for Wheeling Township vote counters this year as three districts were represented. Wheeling and Buffalo Grove were included in the 1st District, but the 3rd and 4th districts still claimed part of the township, particularly in the Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights portions.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Savoring a landslide mandate, President Nixon met in Florida with his top advisers for a weekend retreat that could shape the nation's policies until 1976. At the same time Democratic leaders around the country have begun the arduous task of reshaping their party's leadership to put it in contention for 1976.

With more plentiful supplies of meat, particularly pork, increases in the price of food will probably slow for the rest of the year, Agriculture Department experts predicted.

Divers, groping through silt and buffeted by treacherous tides, searched for at least a half dozen vehicles that plunged into the Brunswick River at Brunswick, Ga. with their screaming occupants when a ship slammed into a bridge. It is unknown how many persons and cars plunged into the murky waters.

The State

One man was shot to death and two were wounded in a shooting at the Black Muslim Temple on Chicago's South Side. All were employees of an elementary school and library attached to the temple.

Francis T. Mayo, Region 5 administrator for the Environmental Protection Agency, suggested that each of the four states in the region name two representatives to a technical committee to make recommendations on problems of cooling water around Lake Michigan's shores.

The World

The United States said it believes the Vietnam peace negotiations are entering their final stage. But North Vietnam said "peace is not for tomorrow." "The reason is simple — the United States refused to sign the peace agreement it has already agreed to," a Hanoi negotiator said in Paris.

A huge bomb exploded in a downtown Belfast, parking garage and a series of gunbattles wounded at least six persons in the Northern Ireland capital. An Irish Republican Army leader was captured and a Protestant girl was tortured and her head shaved by Catholics in their continuing warfare.

Cuban police first had to prove to hijackers of a Mexicana Airline Boeing 727 that they were really in Havana before allowing themselves to be disarmed and their $320,000 cash ransom confiscated, passengers told authorities upon return to Mexico.

The War

Both sides in the Vietnam War are waging a battle of supplies, reinforcing their own stocks and attacking those of the other side, in an all-out race to beat a promised cease-fire agreement. Seventeen American servicemen were killed in South Vietnam last week, highest total in a month.

The Market

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange closed slightly higher on a late session rally sparked by the sharp rise of several blue chip stocks, notably American Telephone and Telegraph. The Dow Jones Average climbed 4.52 to 988.24, a new high for the year. Advances edged declines, 748 to 703, among 1,602 issues on the tape. Volume came to 17,040,000 compared with 24,620,000 a day earlier.

Elgin Authorities Aided; Flowers Charged For 'Pot'

While Wheeling police were helping Elgin police arrest a man wanted in that city, they came up with an arrest of their own Wednesday night.

Wheeling police arrested Steven Flowers, 20, on charges of driving with a revoked license and possession of marijuana.

Flowers was living at the Wishing Well Motel in Wheeling, where police accompanied Elgin authorities to arrest Daniel Niewire, who was also living at the motel. Niewire was wanted on a deceptive practice charge in Elgin.

WHEN POLICE went to the motel, they learned that both men had checked into separate rooms on the same day during October. Police said neither man was at home when they arrived.

About an hour later, however, police stopped the two men in a car at Milwaukee Avenue and Edgewood Drive. When police arrested Niewire, they reportedly asked Stevens for identification. He could not produce a driver's license.

Police reportedly arrested him for operating a vehicle without a license. Authorities allegedly found marijuana in Stevens' possession when he was searched before going to the station.

Police also said Stevens is wanted by Elk Grove police and that three warrants for his arrest have been issued by Cook County authorities.

Woman's Club Sets Holiday Auction

A holiday auction for Christmas shoppers will be conducted Thursday by the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club to raise funds for community service projects.

The auction will begin at 8 p.m. at Kingswood Methodist Church. All items will be handmade by club members, including crocheted hats, scarves and shrinks, ceramic pieces, crewel work, fruit cakes and Christmas ornaments.

Mrs. Norman Katz will be auctioneer, with bidding beginning at $1.50. The public is welcome. For more information, phone 537-4063 or 537-4503.

WORKMEN FOR THE LAMON Construction Co. are now installing sanitary sewers in Prospect Heights as part of the $1.1 million sewer system being built by the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District (OTSD). Work is now about five months behind schedule because of rainy weather, according to OTSD Supt. Richard Schuld. Completion may be delayed further because of legal action.

Suit May Delay Completion Of Sanitary Sewer System

A condemnation suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court may delay completion of a $1.1 million sanitary sewer system being built by the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District.

OTSD filed the suit against George Frankenberger, 402 Willow Rd., because he refused to permit sewer construction on his property according to OTSD Supt. Richard Schuld. Schuld said Frankenberger's refusal will probably delay completion which had been expected in about two months.

A hearing on the suit is scheduled Dec. 11.

Frankenberger said Monday he is afraid OTSD will damage his septic system, thus causing sewage back-up on his property, while a sewer is installed. He claims OTSD has altered its original plans, which he favored. "I'm not against the sewer," he said. "But OTSD has other alternatives to coming onto my property."

SCHULD ADMITTED that Frankenberger's septic system might be damaged during sewer installation. "But we've had the same situation in other areas," he said. "We told Frankenberger we would pump out his septic tank and repair any damage within 72 hours. We've tried talking to him, but it hasn't worked. What he's saying is 'Change the design. Build on other people's property, but not on mine.'"

OTSD has not altered the original plans, according to Schuld. He said the plans cover Phase Two, the last half of the sewer project that will serve 950 residences north of Willow Road. Phase One, completed last year, serves 750 homes south of Willow Road.

Frankenberger is creating "a health hazard," according to Schuld, for residents living in an area bounded by Schoenbeck, Palatine and Willow roads and Waterman Avenue. The area, known as Contract C of Phase Two, also includes Lancaster, Marlon and Dorset streets and West Circle. Sewers in the area could have been in service two months ago, Schuld said.

"The lines are in except for a connecting line across Frankenberger's property. These people cannot tie in until the line is completed," Schuld said. "Many of these people have leaking septic systems and need the sanitary sewers now."

No New Hearing On LWV-Twp. Suit Before '73

An Appellate Court hearing on the township government-League of Women Voters suit probably will not come up before Jan. 1, LWV Atty. Richard J. Troy said yesterday.

"We're just going to have to file briefs now," Troy said. He and attorneys for Palatine, Maine and Niles townships will plead the case before three First District Appellate Court justices when the hearing is called.

A frantic attempt to force a referendum on the Nov. 7 ballot failed in those three townships. The referendum would have offered voters the choice of abolishing or keeping township government.

LWV MEMBERS statewide have determined to get township governments abolished, particularly in highly-populated suburban areas. In these regions, the original intent of a rural, grassroots government has been taken over by local villages and cities, LWV members argue.

Township officials basically disagree with the LWV argument. In the latest clash, they refused to allow an abolition referendum because the state legislature has not approved a bill naming a substitute level of government to take over for the township.

The first abolition referendum in the state was held in Northfield Township Tuesday. That issue failed, and another referendum may not legally be submitted for that township for another 23 months.

Members of the LWV in Maine, Niles and Palatine townships are aiming for the next election in April, when township officials will be up for reelection. Some candidates who believe township government should be abolished may run for a position of township in April to work toward a referendum vote, according to LWV member Ann Scollay.

MSD Suit Threat Against Village Firm For Pollution

A Palatine company has been ordered to stop polluting Metropolitan Sanitary District sewers by Nov. 20.

The MSD Board of Trustees yesterday threatened to file suit against Arlington Plating Co., Inc., 154 W. Wilson St., Palatine, if the company fails to meet the MSD pollution standards by the deadline.

MSD officials said the plating company is emptying "excessive concentrations of cadmium, nickel, and free cyanide," into MSD sewers.

The effluent from the plant also is "excessively acidic," the MSD charged.

THE DISTRICT originally had also charged the company with dumping excessive quantities of copper into the sewer, but that condition reportedly was corrected in June.

The MSD board ordered the plating company to submit reports twice a week to the MSD Industrial Waste Division on its progress in correcting the problems.

Samples of the effluent from the plant are to be collected every five days and reports of an analysis of the effluent must be submitted to the MSD, the order said.

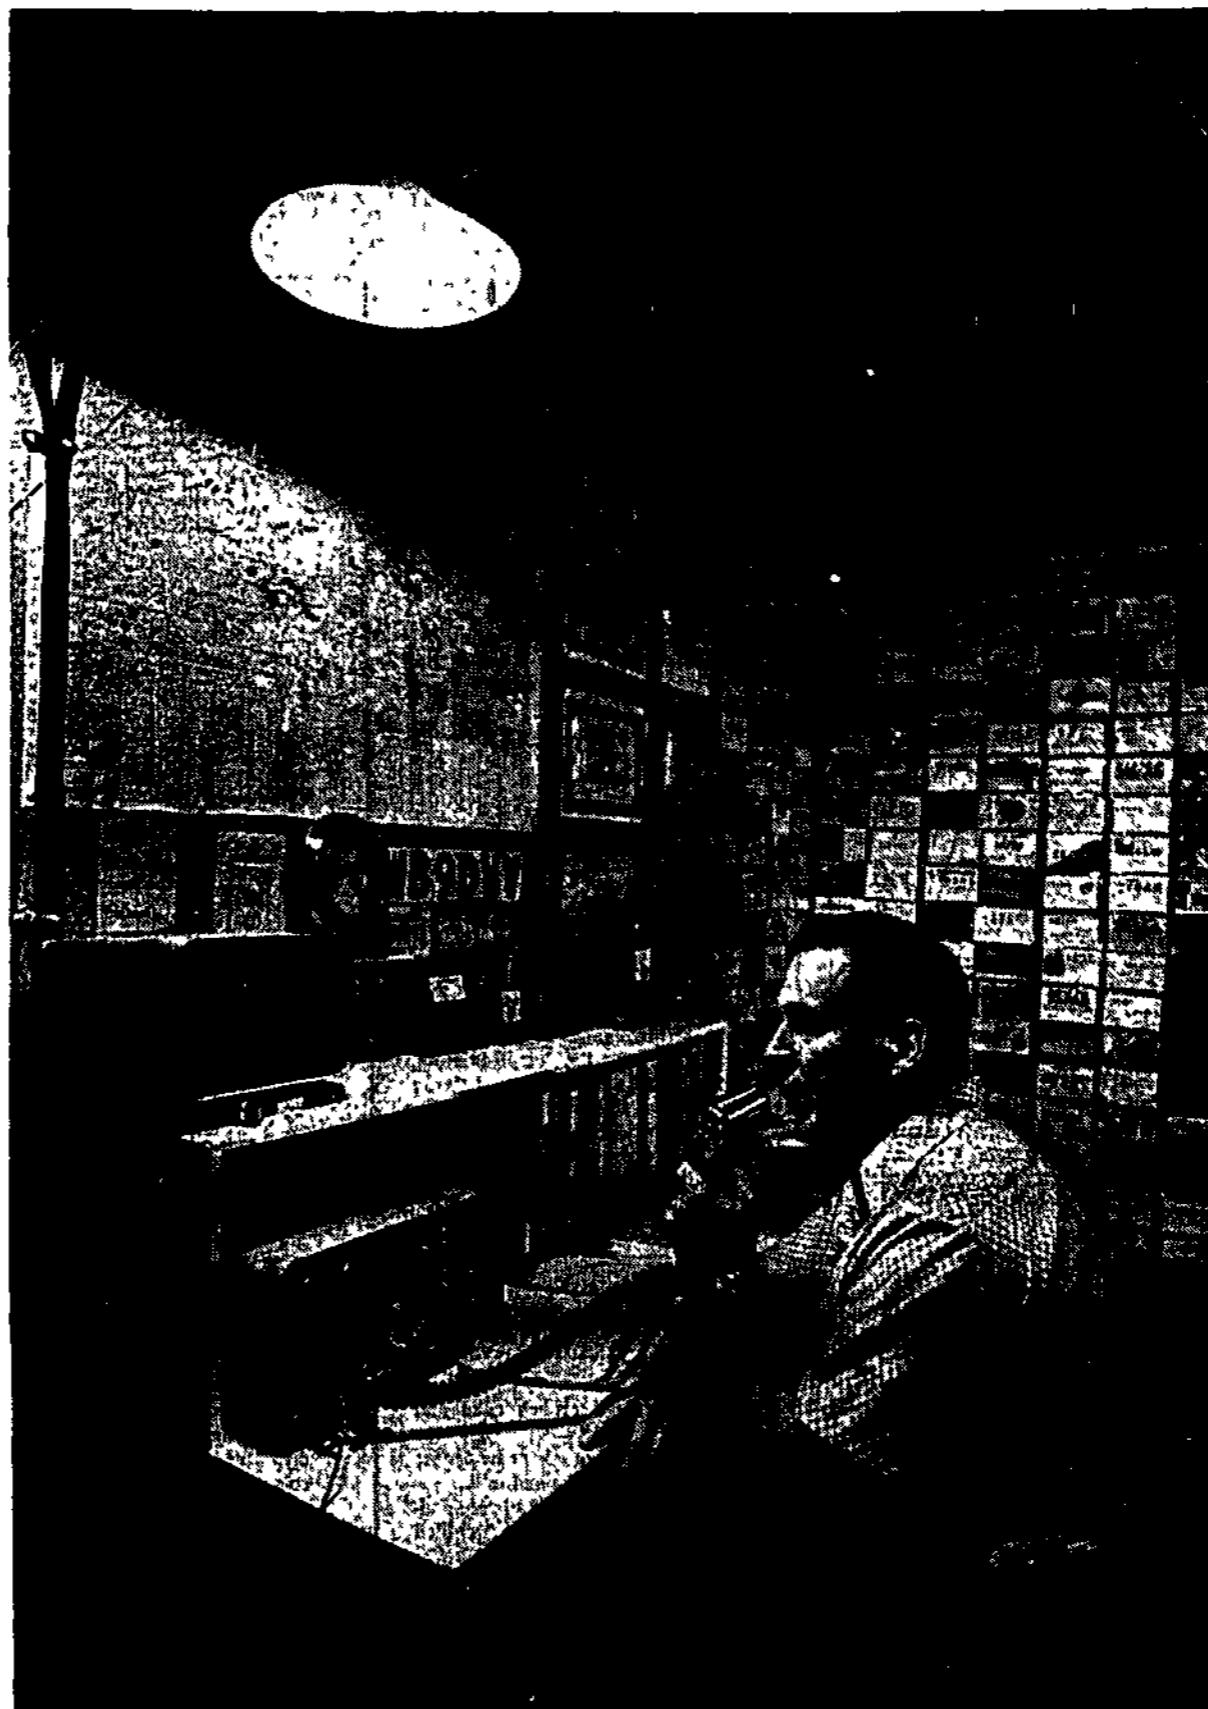

The district first cited the plant for violations in January. If the district takes the company to court it will seek an injunction to stop the firm from dumping into MSD sewers and will fine the company from $100 to $1,000 a day for each day the company violates MSD ordinances, according to the order.

Harold Chamberlain, controller of Arlington Plating Co., said yesterday the firm "is definitely complying" with the GOING ONE, GOING TWICE . . . The Village of Palatine has finally dumped its old accounting machine which was replaced by punch-card data processing equipment some three years ago. The old machine was purchased for $12,000 in 1966, and since its replacement, the village has made valiant attempts to sell it. The numerous contacts with other municipalities proved fruitless and extensive advertisements proved useless. Finally, the manufacturer agreed to take the machine off the village's hands for $1250, and the village was quick to accept the offer. In fact, Mayor Jack Moodie couldn't resist remarking: "The selling price is a better indication of its worth than what we paid for it."

DOUBLE YOUR PLEASURE, double your food? While Richard M. Nixon was beating McGovern two to one Tuesday, the Palatine Republicans realized they had a problem of plenty. Somehow, the food orders got mixed up, and a double amount of salami, bologna, potato salad and other goodies was delivered to the group. Despite a valiant effort, the Republicans couldn't overcome the surplus, and somebody's freezer is well stocked . . . for the next election.

Highest Award State Organization Gives

Jaycees Receive Gold Chip Award

The Palatine Jaycees last night received the highest award the Illinois Jaycees organization gives to its member chapters.

The Gold Chip award, signifying five consecutive years of outstanding service, was presented by Reg Wills, Illinois Jaycees president.

The plaque was given to Jim Blaeser, who served as president of the local chapter in 1971-72.

Other presidents during the award-winning years were David H. George, 1970-71; Kent Bradley, 1969-70; Terry L. Leighty, 1968-69; and Charles Simons, 1967-68.

Each of those officers received a "blue chip" award from the Illinois Jaycees during his term in office.

Five straight "blue chip" plaques quality in regional and state Jaycees programs are based on a chapter's growth; activity in its community; activity in regional and state Jaycees programs; and organization.

Arlington May Be Next Target For Policemen's Union

Arlington Heights patrolmen may be one of the next targets of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA), an organization that already is the bargaining agent for patrolmen on several area police departments.

CCPA Pres. John Flood says he would like to organize patrolmen on the Arlington Heights police force, although he hasn't yet taken the matter up with the CCPA executive board or with village police themselves.

The CCPA already has chapters in Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect, Wheeling and Des Plaines. The Cook County Sheriff's Police also is represented by the CCPA.

"I think Arlington Heights patrolmen want to be with other area patrolmen," Flood said recently. "But I think there would be a fear on their part of organizing. This fear is a result of attitudes of such men as English and McDougall."

FLOOD WAS REFERRING to Maury English and Irwin McDougall, captains in the village police department. Flood contends that these police administrators would "intimidate" any patrolmen who express an interest in CCPA, by threatening them with loss of their jobs.

English, however, disputed Flood's charges. He said his men have to see for themselves if the CCPA has anything to offer and then can make the decision to join or not.

Flood, too, admits that any fears patrolmen might have about joining the CCPA are unfounded, but not because of anything English might say. Rather, he says, the Arlington Heights Village Board "wouldn't try to beat the men down for seeking proper organization."

He did not have such kind words for some other municipalities, Rolling Meadowows in particular. When the CCPA first entered Rolling Meadows last year, a clear majority of the patrolmen there voted to join the organization. Now the CCPA is "dormant" in Rolling Meadows, Flood said.

Last January, charges flew in Rolling Meadows that Police Chief Lewis Case, backed by Mayor Roland Meyer, intimidated the city's CCPA members, threatening them with loss of their jobs. Meyer denied the charges, and several Rolling Meadows policemen backed him. But Flood still is not convinced.

FLOOD DOES NOT SEE the Arlington Heights village administration in the same light. He said that the local board is "sophisticated enough to deal with the CCPA on a sophisticated level." And Flood added that he has the greatest respect for Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood as a man the CCPA could deal with should the organization come into Arlington Heights.

Still, Flood says he sees the CCPA cause hindered by the likes of English and McDougall, who he claims fear that the CCPA would "remove their power to deal arbitrarily with the men."

English does say that he disagrees with Flood on the way to accomplish goals. He doesn't like the idea of strikes, he said, adding that he thinks many of Flood's beliefs are "not practical."

"I just don't believe in a union for police officers," English said.

But Flood contends that he doesn't believe in police strikes, either, even though the CCPA has led more police strikes than any police organization in the country. He says the CCPA has done as much to stop potential strikes as well.

"I don't think a police organization can tell the men to do anything," Flood said.

JOHN FLOOD...CCPA president.

"Anything they do (such as strike), they do of their own volition."

STILL, SOME Arlington Heights patrolmen themselves are afraid that a CCPA chapter in their department could pull them into an unwanted strike. They point to Waukegan, where a large number of patrolmen went on strike and subsequently were fired, as an example of the CCPA in action. But Flood contends neither he nor his organization had anything to do with calling that strike, that the Waukegan police had decided to strike before joining the CCPA.

The strike issue aside, Flood says the CCPA has a lot to offer local police officers. He called his organization a "professional catalyst." He said the CCPA would demand for the patrolmen what's been promised by the police administration for a long time. The CCPA would give the patrolmen a voice in their careers, Flood said.

"I think the longer Arlington Heights patrolmen stay out (of the CCPA), the more they are hurting themselves," Flood said. "The CCPA is the only police organization in the state that has the courage to fight for what's right."

But Chief Calderwood and Capt. English say their men don't have anything to fight for. They said the police administrators have always had an open-door policy and are ready to listen and do something about any man's complaints.

And the patrolmen talked to by the Herald agreed with their superiors. They say there are really no major dissatisfactions in their department. One officer mentioned that the Arlington Heights Patrolman's Association, an organization set up for the good of the patrolmen and encouraged by Calderwood, was recently dissolved. There was just no interest, and that was largely attributed to the fact that there were no complaints.

"Working conditions and salary here are equal or better than any around," English said.

BUT FLOOD ATTRIBUTED those good working conditions and salaries to the work of the CCPA in other communities. He added that the CCPA, with its attorneys and expertise in labor relations and negotiations, could help village patrolmen even more if they would start a local CCPA chapter. And as for being able to go to the chief with their problems, Flood said the chief is a representative of the village board, not of the patrolmen.

"Throughout the U.S., police are organizing," Flood said. "Chiefs have always maintained authoritarian control of their departments. But today, policemen are better educated, more apt to ask questions than follow blindly. Chiefs have no idea, in most cases, about labor relations..."

Channel 11 (WTTW) also plans to install temporary antennas on the Sears Tower next fall. Area residents have reported interference on Channel 11, but not as severe as on Channel 7.

The Sears Tower will be the world's tallest building when completed. Permanent television antennas will not be installed on the massive structure until late in 1974.

BUT AS THE Sears Tower continues to rise — the building now is at the 86th floor — the other two major stations will also have interference difficulties. The two stations have not determined whether they will relocate their signals on the Sears Tower.

Channel 11 (WTTW) also plans to install temporary antennas on the Sears Tower next fall. Area residents have reported interference on Channel 11, but not as severe as on Channel 7.

WLS To Put Up Antennas Next Fall

TV Reception To Get Better

Channel 7 (WLS-TV) will construct temporary antennas on the Sears Tower in Chicago next fall, which will eliminate poor television reception in the Northwest suburbs.

Meanwhile, Channel 7 officials contend the severe ghosting or double images being received on Channel 7 by local viewers "will not get any worse."

Spokesmen for the ABC-owned and operated Chicago station said "People in your area right now have all the adverse effect they will ever have."

He added the Northwest suburbs have been hardest hit by the rising Standard Oil Building, which has blocked the signal of Channel 7's antenna. He said the Standard Oil Building and the Sears Tower are at such a height now that reception cannot become any worse.

The Channel 7 transmitter is located atop the Marina Towers office building, a much smaller structure than the towering skyscrapers now being constructed downtown.

Local residents began receiving ghosting on Channel 7 last March and the problem became more severe as construction of the Standard Oil building continued. Channel 7 is the lone major Chicago network affected by the Loop construction. Channel 5 (NBC) and Channel 2 (CBS) transmitters are on the John Hancock Center and thus far there has been little interference.

Channel 11 (WTTW) also plans to install temporary antennas on the Sears Tower next fall. Area residents have reported interference on Channel 11, but not as severe as on Channel 7.

Feminique Schedules Loop Shopping Spree

A shopping spree in Chicago's Loop is the next excursion on the Palatine Park District Feminique schedule. Registration begins at 9 a.m. today for the Dec. 14 event.

Women may write the park district office, 262 E. Palatine Rd., or phone 359-0332. Phone reservations must be paid within a week after the office is contacted.

Events set for Dec. 14 include a luncheon in the East Walnut Room of Marshall Field and an afternoon open for shopping in the Loop. The bus will leave from the park district office at 11 a.m. and will return to Palatine at approximately 4:30 p.m.

The trip costs $6.50, including luncheon, tax, gratuities and bus fare.

"There's no doubt in my mind that if I could speak to Arlington Heights patrolmen as a group, we could organize them," he said. "Right now, they have a lot of fear because of lack of knowledge about the CCPA. I would be happy to debate English, McDougall or Calderwood before their own men on police organization. At the end of the debate, there is no question that they would come with us."

English agreed that Flood just might be able to win a debate with him over the CCPA, but not because the CCPA can really do anything for local patrolmen.

"Flood is an idealist. I'm a realist," English said. "No realist can argue with an idealist and win. But try and see if he can deliver what he promises. That's another story."

SOME VILLAGE patrolmen have expressed an interest in hearing what Flood has to say about the merits of the CCPA. A newspaper story about Mount Prospect police voting to join the CCPA hangs in the lounge of the Arlington Heights police department. The men know it's out there.

But whether they are ready to organize behind Flood is another matter. At the same time, Flood will not say definitely that the CCPA will try to organize the village patrolmen.

"Whether or not we make an organizational drive has not been discussed by the executive board (of the CCPA)," Flood said. "I want to do it, but only if they (the executive board) think the Arlington Heights patrolmen have the intestinal fortitude to withstand pressures from the administration."

Flood says it is inevitable that the village patrolmen will organize sooner or later. And he has his sights set on soon-

Youth Injured In Auto Crash

A Palatine youth is in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital as a result of a three-car accident at Smith Street and Northwest Highway in Palatine Wednesday night.

Mark Randolph, 14, is in the intensive care unit. He was a passenger in a car driven by his brother, Michael, 22, of 778 Stephen Dr., in unincorporated Palatine Township.

According to police reports, the Randolph auto was struck by a car driven by Marion J. Delianis, 118 Cunningham Dr. in unincorporated Palatine Township. The accident occurred when the Delianis auto pulled across Northwest Highway heading south on Smith Street into the path of the Randolph vehicle.

From the impact of the collision, the Randolph auto was thrown into another vehicle waiting at the stop sign on northbound Smith Street. The driver of the third auto, Nancy A. Martin, 22, of 337 Lilly Ln., Palatine Township, was un-hurted.

Both Randolph brothers were taken in ambulances to the hospital. Mark suffered cuts and head injuries in the accident, and Michael minor head cuts.

Injunction Sought To Stop 'False' Divinity Degrees

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott is seeking an injunction to prohibit Gordon L. Cruikshank of Rolling Meadows from issuing doctor of divinity degrees from his Life Science College.

Life Science College is a nonresident religious college which confers doctor of divinity degrees and ordains ministers by mail.

Cruikshank, who refers to himself as an archbishop, is the president of Life Science College and uses his home at 2207 Cardinal Dr. as its headquarters.

A suit filed in Circuit Court by the attorney general's office alleges Cruikshank sends a certificate or ordination and doctor of divinity degree to persons who fill out an application and send in $25. The suit alleges no instruction or test is necessary to receive the doctor of divinity degree.

THE ATTORNEY general's office feels this is in violation of the Illinois Degree, Diploma and Certificate Act which requires degree granting colleges to be certified by the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction. The maximum penalty of $10,000 is being sought against Cruikshank.

The suit further alleges Cruikshank did not comply with a subpoena from the consumer fraud division of the attorney general's office to let them see his books and files. A court order enjoining Cruikshank from issuing degrees is being sought.

A spokesman for the attorney general's office said the suit is against Cruikshank personally and is not in any way related to his religion. No attempt is made in the suit to say if the religion of the Life Science Church is legitimate or not.

Cruikshank was served with a summons on Wednesday. He responded to it yesterday by certified mail stating he refused to dignify what the attorney general had said.

"THIS IS JUST a political thing. He (the attorney general) uses trial by publication to get votes and encourage the favor of predominant religions," said Cruikshank.

"He is trying to get the public to think the superintendent of instruction has control over religious schools but he can't because this would be a violation of the constitution," said Cruikshank.

It would appear that the 124 production employees of the company, already idled for six weeks by the strike, may be marching picket lines for some time. While no official comment from either side is being made on the status of the contract talks, one union spokesman said "it seems we're farther apart now than we were at the beginning."

The stumbling block involves a union demand that wages for new employees and employees with seniority be equalized. The complaint stems from a union charge that new employees are being hired at higher pay rates than veteran employees.

THE UNION is also asking for a 7 percent hourly wage increase which it says is well within the federal pay board's allowable guidelines.

The company is reluctant to negotiate on the first point, the union says, and is offering instead a 10 1/2-cent hourly increase plus additional fringe benefits.

The walkout at General Time is the second major labor action to affect a plant in the area this year. A nine-week strike by employees at Honeywell Inc. in Arlington Heights was settled in May when members of Local 1114 of the United Electrical Union accepted the company's contract offer calling for improved fringe benefits.

The negotiations between the IBEW and General Time are the first being conducted since workers at the plant first voted to become a union shop in May.

Religious schools are not exempt from the Degree, Diploma and Certificate Act, according to a spokesman for the attorney general's office.

When he first learned an injunction would be sought Cruikshank said he was not worried because it was quite possible the college was incorporated under five or six different names.

Since the suit is filed against Cruikshank individually if he is found guilty he would not be able to issue degrees under any name, said a spokesman for the attorney general's office.

City Hall Offices Will Be Open Today

Governmental offices in Rolling Meadows will be open today even though the state of Illinois will be observing Veterans Day tomorrow.

The city hall, located at 3600 Kirchhoff, will conduct business as usual as will the city park district and schools. Palatine Township offices at 37 N. Plum Grove will also be open.

FROM THE LOOK on Jack Fetke's face, it appears it may be easier to succumb to an attack than learn to fall. Men and women ranging from early teens to adult are learning the proper methods of falling, rolling and defend one's self. Self defense is the most popular program offered by the Rolling Meadows Park District this fall.

Needs City Council Approval

Urge Annexation For Furniture Store

A recommendation to approve the annexation of 11 acres on Rolling Road and Northwest Highway and rezone it for a furniture store was issued at a special meeting of the Rolling Meadows Plan Commission Wednesday.

The property, which is currently located in unincorporated Cook County, is owned by the Madison Square Garden Corp., owners of the Arlington Park Race Track. The corporation is seeking the annexation in order to finalize a long-term lease with the Lewitz Furniture Co., which wants to build a retail show-room-warehouse facility on the site.

Final approval of the plan must come from the city council.

The proposed store structure would be a concrete, steel reinforced twin T building occupying 167,000 square feet on the site, according to Stephen Nardi, president of Nardi Development Co., architects for the plan. Although the C-2 zoning classification for the site calls for a maximum building height of 30 feet, the commission granted the corporation's variation request of a 38-foot high structure.

Tom Pipkin, regional operations manager of the Lewitz Co., told the commission the company plans to sell name brand furniture to the general public on a strictly retail basis. The store will maintain a large inventory of stock on hand for immediate delivery or pick up.

PIPPIKIN SAID the company has conducted a market analysis of the area and expects its sales volume to amount to $800,000 to $1 million per month, despite the fact that there are a number of other furniture stores in the area. He said the firm expects to draw customers from Chicago as well as the suburbs.

When asked by Mrs. Harold Brissen- den commission member if the company was confident it could successfully compete with other stores in the area, Pipkin said the Pennsylvania-based firm had "never had an unsuccessful venture yet." He added his firm has a chain of 47 stores located throughout the country.

Nardi then told the commission that while the owners of the property were confident of the store's ability to compete in the area, the building could easily be adapted to other uses should Lewitz be forced to leave.

While the commission approved the recommendation for the annexation and zoning change, it opposed the proposal by Madison Square Garden to dedicate a gravel road along the north end of the property to the city. Commission Chr. Robert Byrnes pointed out that the road could only be used as an entrance to the race track and to service the proposed store, providing no practical use as a public thoroughfare for the city.

If the road was accepted by the city, maintenance and improvements would become the responsibility of the city.

ANIMAL KINGDOM . . . It seems that the Rolling Meadows police department is having more than its share of trouble with stray animals lately. Last week it was a woodchuck, a bat, a shrew, an opossum, and a goose. This week Officer Al Jurs had to figure out a way to get rid of a skunk who decided to make his home in a window well on Vermont Street. When food failed to entice the skunk into capture, the department decided to fight odor with odor and shoed it away with moth balls.

Arlington May Be Next Target For Policemen's Union

Arlington Heights patrolmen may be one of the next targets of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA), an organization that already is the bargaining agent for patrolmen on several area police departments.

CCPA Pres. John Flood says he would like to organize patrolmen on the Arlington Heights police force, although he hasn't yet taken the matter up with the CCPA executive board or with village police themselves.

The CCPA already has chapters in Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect, Wheeling and Des Plaines. The Cook County Sheriff's Police also is represented by the CCPA.

"I think Arlington Heights patrolmen want to be with other area patrolmen," Flood said recently. "But I think there would be a fear on their part of organizing. This fear is a result of attitudes of such men as English and McDougall."

FLOOD WAS REFERRING to Maury English and Irwin McDougall, captains in the village police department. Flood contends that these police administrators would "intimidate" any patrolmen who express an interest in CCPA, by threatening them with loss of their jobs.

English, however, disputed Flood's charges. He said his men have to see for themselves if the CCPA has anything to offer and then can make the decision to join or not.

Flood, too, admits that any fears patrolmen might have about joining the CCPA are unjustified, but not because of anything English might say. Rather, he says, the Arlington Heights Village Board "wouldn't try to beat the men down for seeking proper organization."

He did not have such kind words for some other municipalities, Rolling Meadows in particular. When the CCPA first entered Rolling Meadows last year, a clear majority of the patrolmen there voted to join the organization. Now the CCPA is "dormant" in Rolling Meadows, Flood said.

Last January, charges flew in Rolling Meadows that Police Chief Lewis Case, backed by Mayor Roland Meyer, intimidated the city's CCPA members, threatening them with loss of their jobs. Meyer denied the charges, and several Rolling Meadows policemen backed him. But Flood still is not convinced.

FLOOD DOES NOT SEE the Arlington Heights village administration in the same light. He said that the local board is "sophisticated enough to deal with the CCPA on a sophisticated level." And Flood added that he has the greatest respect for Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood as a man the CCPA could deal with, should the organization come into Arlington Heights.

Still, Flood says he sees the CCPA cause hindered by the likes of English and McDougall, who he claims fear that the CCPA would "remove their power to deal arbitrarily with the men."

English does say that he disagrees with Flood on the way to accomplish goals. He doesn't like the idea of strikes, he said, adding that he thinks many of Flood's beliefs are "not practical."

"I just don't believe in a union for police officers," English said.

But Flood contends that he doesn't believe in police strikes, either, even though the CCPA has led more police strikes than any police organization in the country. He says the CCPA has done as much to stop potential strikes as well.

"I don't think a police organization can tell the men to do anything," Flood said. "Anything they do (such as strike), they do it of their own volition."

STILL, SOME Arlington Heights patrolmen themselves are afraid that a CCPA chapter in their department could pull them into an unwanted strike. They point to Waukegan, where a large number of patrolmen went on strike and subsequently were fired, as an example of the CCPA in action. But Flood contends neither he nor his organization had any thing to do with calling that strike, that the Waukegan police had decided to strike before joining the CCPA.

The strike issue aside, Flood says the CCPA has a lot to offer local police officers. He called his organization a "professional catalyst." He said the CCPA would demand for the patrolmen what's been promised by the police administration for a long time. The CCPA would give the patrolmen a voice in their careers, Flood said.

"Throughout the U.S., police are organizing," Flood said. "Chiefs have always maintained authoritarian control of their departments. But today, policemen are better educated, more apt to ask questions than follow blindly. Chiefs have no idea, in most cases, about labor relations...

"There's no doubt in my mind that if I could speak to Arlington Heights patrolmen as a group, we could organize them," he said. "Right now, they have a lot of fear because of lack of knowledge about the CCPA. I would be happy to debate English, McDougall or Calderwood before their own men on police organization. At the end of the debate, there is no question that they would come with us."

English agreed that Flood just might be able to win a debate with him over the CCPA, but not because the CCPA can really do anything for local patrolmen even more if they would start a local CCPA chapter. And as for being able to go to the chief with their problems, Flood said the chief is a representative of the village board, not of the patrolmen.

"I think the longer Arlington Heights patrolmen stay out (of the CCPA), the more they are hurting themselves," Flood said. "The CCPA is the only police organization in the state that has the courage to fight for what's right."

But Chief Calderwood and Capt. English say their men don't have anything to fight for. They said the police administrators have always had an open-door policy and are ready to listen and do something about any man's complaints.

And the patrolmen talked to by the Herald agreed with their superiors. They say there are really no major dissatisfaction in their department. One officer mentioned that the Arlington Heights Patrolmen's Association, an organization set up for the good of the patrolmen and encouraged by Calderwood, was recently dissolved. There was just no interest, and that was largely attributed to the fact that there were no complaints.

"Working conditions and salary here are equal or better than any around," English said.

BUT FLOOD ATTRIBUTED those good working conditions and salaries to the work of the CCPA in other communities. He added that the CCPA, with its attorneys and expertise in labor relations and negotiations, could help village pa-

Report Boxes Of Cosmetics Stolen

Three boxes of cosmetic products were reported taken from outside the apartment of Barbara A. Skelton, 4710 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows. Police said the boxes were apparently taken to Miss Skelton's residence and left in the hallway.

Police say it is possible that the cosmetics, valued at $400 according to Miss Skelton's report, were not stolen but were picked up by another tenant in the building to hold until Miss Skelton returned to her apartment.

Residents Win Bid To Halt New Store—For Now

Residents of the Louis Street area in Mount Prospect have won again in their battle to prevent Century Tile Co. from building a new store in their neighborhood.

But the victory is expected to be a short-lived one because a majority of the village board favors signing a court consent decree that would allow construction of the store.

The motion to sign the decree failed Wednesday night by a 3-3 vote (in the event of a tie vote, a motion fails). But the one trustee who was absent Wednesday, Donald Furst, has said he will vote for signing the decree. His vote would break a tie and mean approval of the decree.

The consent decree calls for the structure to be built even though the site is residentially zoned. In return the village would win certain concessions as to building height and appearance. If both sides sign the decree, it will be forwarded to the circuit court where the agreement becomes binding.

FOR THE LAST six years, the tile company has been trying to relocate on the residentially zoned land along Rand Road, just north of Mulch Buick. The village board first defeated a proposal to rezone the property and then a proposal for a variance to allow the building despite the zoning. (A similar variance exists for Mulch Buick.)

A suit was filed in February 1970, by Century Tile owners Paul Spiewak and Frank Parks. They want the court to force the village to allow the structure. The proposed consent decree was drawn up by their attorneys and has been discussed in several village board closed executive sessions. It is a final effort to avert an actual court hearing.

After the voting, in which he voted against the consent decree, Mayor Robert D. Telchert said the matter failed "for now" but could be brought up again at the petitioner's request. "In all candor, the presence of Mr. Furst would change the matter," he said.

Telchert had earlier read a letter from Furst which said Furst had "always felt the property should be zoned B-3 (commercial)." Furst said increased construction costs and the like for the company will be the result of "undue and irresponsible delay on the board's part."

AS FOR THE RESIDENTS who are fighting the store, Furst wrote, "This is a selfish stand that is completely understandable."

Like Furst, Trustee George B. Anderson favors the consent decree because of the guarantees built into the agreement that would not be available if the courts ordered the property simply rezoned commercial. Anderson mentioned the following "pluses": a 30-foot setback rather than the required 20-foot one; dedications of land along both Louis Street and Rand Road; a height of 25 feet at most; and a more pleasing rear wall.

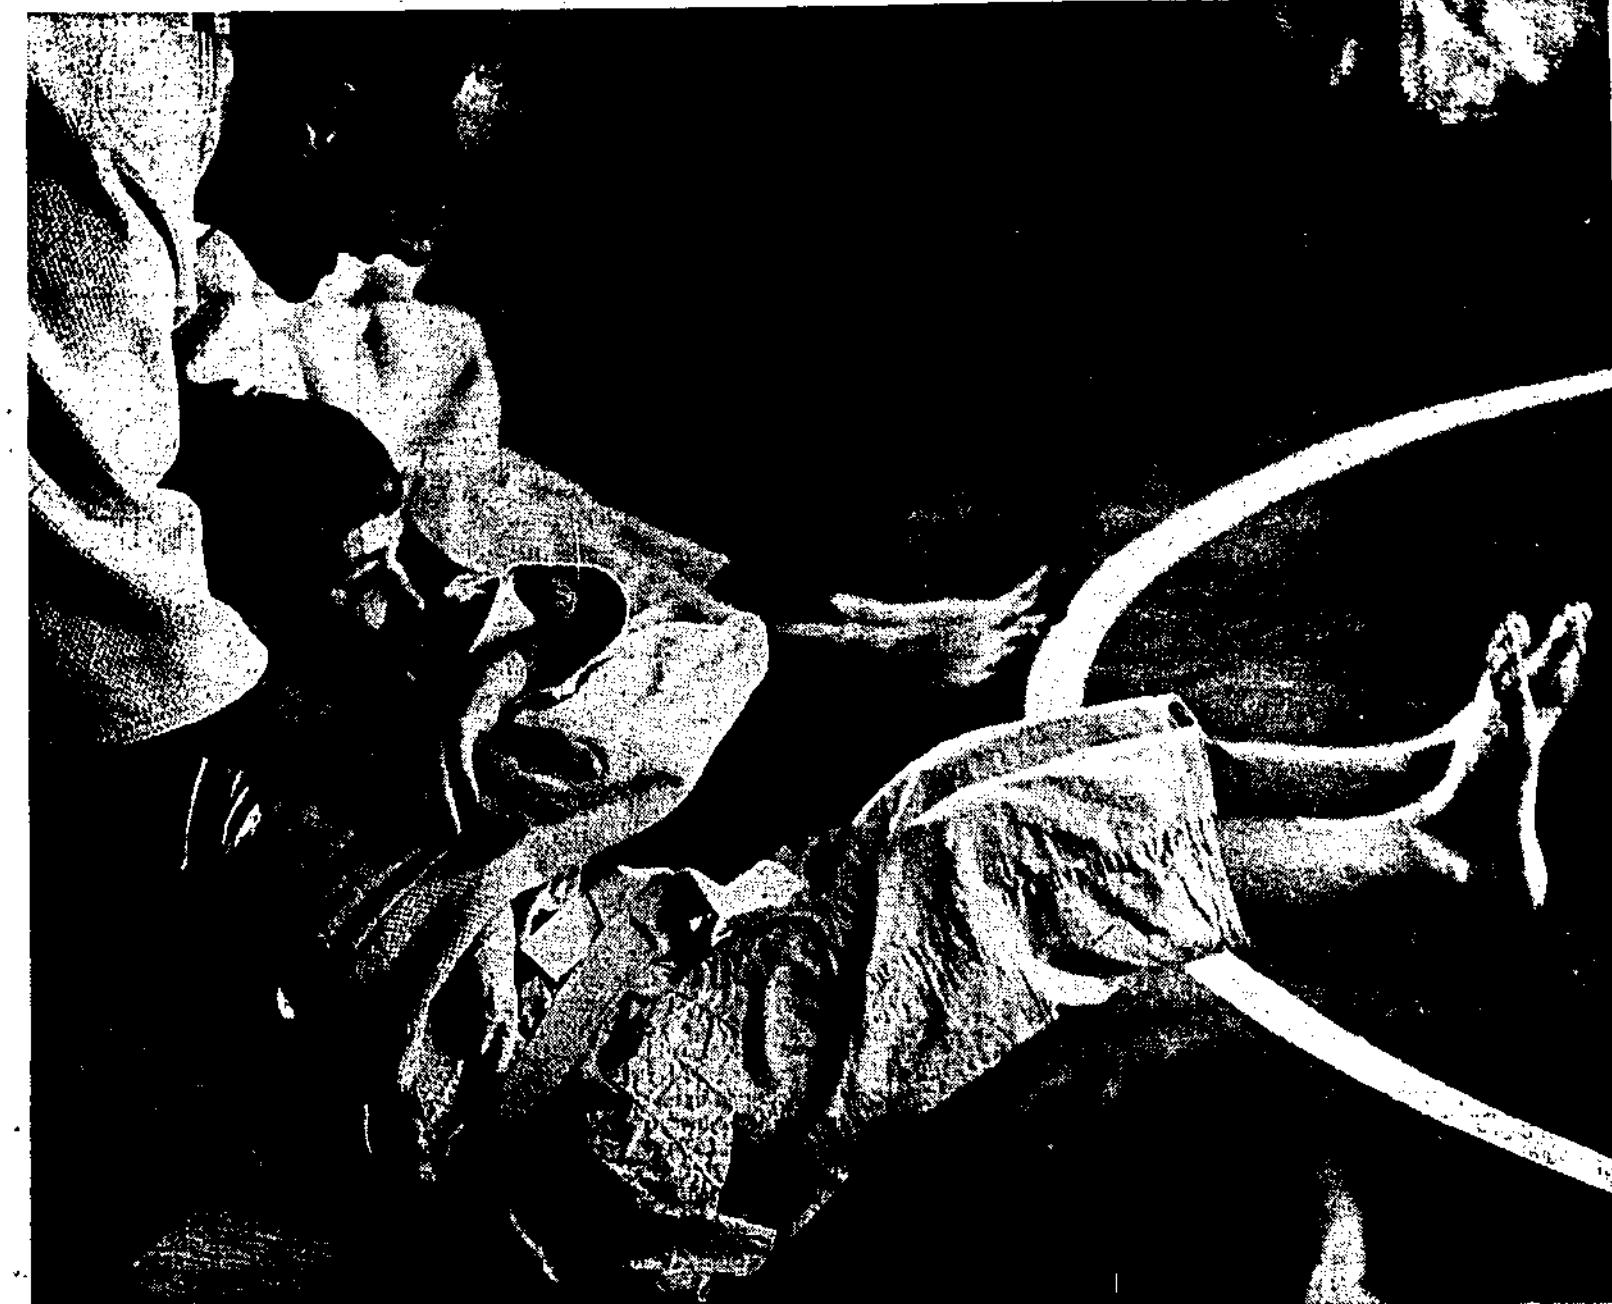

Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten, who voted for the consent decree as did Patrick Link, agreed with Anderson that keeping the height down was an important benefit of the consent decree. Under the residential zoning, he said, a building height of only 20 feet would be permitted. Scholten pointed out he represents the whole community "not just 200," alluding to those who oppose the building. He said the village would probably lose the costly court case.

COMPLETELY opposed to the consent decree was Trustee Bud Richardson. "I don't feel it is in the best interest of the village to allow a business here in opposition to several hundred residents."

Trustee Daniel Ahern voted against it also and said he had voted for the store in the past but could not now because the consent decree would "thwart" the victories already won by the residents.

Only six of the area residents showed up at the meeting. One of them, Mrs. Walter Jeschke, 107 N. Louis St., said, "I still don't want it. We've fought for six years now."

After Telchert said the matter could be reopened, the residents left with Louis Velasco, 208 N. Louis St., saying, "They'll (the board) bring it back."

School Board Adopts Official Drug Policy

The River Trails Dist. 28 school board has adopted an official drug policy for the district.

The policy calls for immediate suspension of a student who has "purchased, has used, or is under the influence of a behavior affecting drug on the school grounds or at a school-sponsored activity." After the student is suspended, his parents will be requested to meet with the school principal.

If the principal feels it necessary, the youngster and his parents will also be requested to meet with the district superintendent.

The principal condition for readmission to school is that the student obtain confirmation in writing that he has discussed his drug involvement with a physician.

In the case of a student who distributes or sells "behavior affecting drugs" on school grounds or at a school-sponsored activity, the student will be suspended immediately and expulsion proceedings initiated. The superintendent of the district will then meet with the president of the board of education to consider the student's behavior.

The principal condition for readmission to school is that the student obtain confirmation in writing that he has discussed his drug involvement with a physician.

The new drug policy was initiated, according to Asst. Supt. James Retzlaff, because "with the availability of drugs and the ease with which students can get them, we have to conclude that they're probably being used (in the district)." Also, Retzlaff said, several other districts in the area have been adopting this kind of policy.

The policy covers students involved in purchasing, possession or use of "behavior affecting drugs" as well as those who sell or distribute such drugs. The policy defines "behavior affecting drugs" as marijuana, narcotics, hallucinogens or other dangerous drugs.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Savoring a landslide mandate, President Nixon met in Florida with his top advisers for a weekend retreat that could shape the nation's policies until 1976. At the same time Democratic leaders around the country have begun the arduous task of reshaping their party's leadership to put it in contention for 1976.

With more plentiful supplies of meat, particularly pork, increases in the price of food will probably slow for the rest of the year, Agriculture Department experts predicted.

Contrary to what you may think, an African is not likely to stroll out his front door and bump into an elephant.

This is one of the misconceptions about Africa that two visitors recently discussed with fourth and fifth year students at John Muir School in Prospect Heights. Elephants, they explained, live only in the jungles.

The two Liberians, part of a missionary team touring the United States, showed color slides and answered questions about their country. Children were especially interested in a shot of Africans living in a hut. It looked just like the life-size model they had built while studying black Americans and African customs.

The visitors also demonstrated several African instruments. One, a belly harp, is played by bouncing the large gourd on the stomach while plucking the strings.

The two missionaries, members of the Kpelle tribe in Liberia, are currently involved in translating the Bible into their tribal language. It is one of 20 languages spoken in Liberia, a country about the size of Ohio.

CHURCHES IN THE NEWS ... St. Mark Lutheran Church will be the subject of an article in a forthcoming issue of "The Lutheran Standard." In response to an invitation from the magazine, someone nominated it as "an outstanding congregation." The article will be written by Wilson Egbert, associate editor of "The Lutheran Standard," following his visit to Mount Prospect.

Cardamom coffee cakes and other Scandinavian baked goods will be on sale tomorrow as part of the Northwest Covenant Church's "Old Curiosity Shoppe" bazaar. Some of the other booths will be Urcin's Utopia (children's shop), The Sweet Shoppe (homemade candy), Oliver Twist's Castoffs (clothes, toys, household items), and Tis Yuletide (Christmas shop).

Chairmen for the bazaar, sponsored by the Women's Fellowship, are Darlene Anderson and Ingrid Ecklund. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the church, 300 N. Elmhurst Ave.

Choir members from Emerald Avenue Presbyterian Church of Chicago and Community Presbyterian Church of Mount Prospect will exchange places Sunday. Families in the local church will join the visiting choir for a potluck luncheon following the second service.

Men's Club members will be serving a spaghetti dinner from noon to 3 p.m. Sunday at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 304 W. Palatine Rd. in Prospect Heights. Tickets will be sold at the door at $1.50 for adults; 75 cents for children 7 to 12 years; with children 6 years and under admitted free.

WANT TO KNOW ABOUT microwave ovens, passenger car braking performance, or wise money management? Just ask the U.S. government.

Trouble is, more than a million government publications have been published since 1789. Sometimes it's hard to track down the one you want.

A former Prospect Heights woman and her husband have helped make this task easier. Marilyn Lester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Guthrie of 103 W. Kenilworth Ave., and her husband, Dan, have compiled a five-volume and microfilm set listing 8,312 government agencies and 1,160,000 publications. The computer-produced "Checklist of U.S. Publications 1789-1970" has now been published by the U.S. Historical Documents Institute in Washington, D.C.

"We saw the need for these indexes while working in the Northern Illinois University Library," they explained. "That was where we got the idea to compile the indexes ourselves."

Marilyn and Dan met and married while they were students at the university. Dan earned his M.A. degree in library science there.

Now the Lesters are employed at the Mankato (Minn.) State College Library. Dan is associate director of libraries for systems and automation, and Marilyn is a government publications library technician. She received her B.A. degree from the college in August.

PTA Notes

Tickets are on sale for a fashion show Nov. 15 sponsored by the Ross-Sullivan Schools PTA.

"Harvest of Fashions," which will begin at 7:30 p.m., will be held in the Sullivan gym, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd. The show will feature clothes from Marge's Apparel Shop in Arlington Heights and will be modeled by PTA members. Both girls' and women's fashions will be shown.

Tickets are $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children. They can be purchased at either school, at the door or by calling Beth Caneva at 394-2166.

The Fine Arts Puppeteers, all members of the Northwest chapter of the Lyric Opera Guild of Chicago, will present a puppet opera, "Hansel and Gretel" for the students of Lions Park School at 1:15 and 2 p.m. Tuesday, at Lions Park School. The Northwest Chapter of the Lyric Opera Guild chooses puppets and a familiar story to introduce opera to children at an early age. Puppets, costumes, and settings are all designed and created by members of the guild.

PLEASE DON'T CALL the El the Subway," a musical history of Chicago, will be presented at 1:15 p.m. Thursday at Busse School, 101 N. Owen St. in Mount Prospect.

The musical, sponsored by the Busse School PTA, is being presented by the Evanston Children's Theatre. Members of the cast will visit with the students in their classrooms after the presentation.

A LEARNING FESTIVAL, including educational games, models and other curriculum related materials, will be presented Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at Foothill School, 1400 E. Kensington Road. Materials will be for sale between 11:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Monday, 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. and 7 and 9 p.m. Tuesday, and 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Games on display will include such things as a "build your own camera" kit, an ant farm, and microscopes. There will be materials for all ages, from preschool on up. A used book sale will also be held. All profits from the learning festival will go for the needs of the school.

"GOALS OF THE Dist. 59 School Board" will be the topic of discussion at the Dempster Junior High School PTA meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday. Dist. 59 Board Pres. Harry Peterson and Al Domanico, chairman of the Goals Committee will make the presentation. A question and answer session will follow the presentation.

The Indian Grove PTA will present a series of reports on the purpose of selected curriculum programs at 8 p.m. on Wednesday at the school, 1708 Burning Bush Ln. in Mount Prospect.

A question and answer period will follow the presentations.

"TAKE TIME TO MEET Your Faculty," an open house for parents of Lincoln Junior High School students will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the school. Parents will be able to visit their child's classrooms and follow his daily schedule. Refreshments and a short PTA business meeting will begin the program. The school is at 700 W. Lincoln.

A MEAT DEMONSTRATION by representatives of the Jewel Tea Co. will be the featured presentation at the general meeting of the Forest View Elementary School PTO Thursday. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the school at 1901 Estates Drive in Mount Prospect. The display is part of a Korean Art Exchange between children at Westbrook and children in Korea. Grades one through six participated in the exchange.

THE PAINTINGS of 50 Korean children are now on display in the resource center of Westbrook School, 105 S. Busse Road in Mount Prospect. The display is part of a Korean Art Exchange between children at Westbrook and children in Korea. Grades one through six participated in the exchange.

Kathleen Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kelly of Mount Prospect, has been elected vice president of the senior class at Rosary College in River Forest. Miss Kelly is an English major and co-chairman of the communications committee of the Student Government Association.

Board Votes To Remain In Ed-Red

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board has voted to continue membership in Ed-Red, a cooperative of suburban school districts with a lobbyist in Springfield.

Dist. 23 will pay $125 in dues to belong to Ed-Red for another year. Last year, High School Dist. 214 paid $1,800 in dues which covered the six elementary school districts that send students to 214. This year, however, Dist. 214 has offered to pay $900 and has asked the elementary districts to share half the cost.

Supt. Edward Grodsky recommended the district again support Ed-Red. "We do have input into Ed-Red during each legislative session," he said. "I feel we would be carrying our share along with the high school district if we paid part of the cost."

High School Dist. 211 and other districts in suburban Cook County also belong to Ed-Red.

In other action, the board hired Maureen Sandstrom as a part-time physical education teacher at Ross School, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., at a salary of $3,057. Mrs. Sandstrom, who has been a full-time and a substitute teacher in the district, will work two days a week at the school.

Channel 7 (WLS-TV) will construct temporary antennas on the Sears Tower in Chicago next fall, which will eliminate poor television reception in the North-west suburbs.

Meanwhile, Channel 7 officials contend the severe ghosting or double images being received on Channel 7 by local viewers "will not get any worse."

Spokesmen for the ABC-owned and operated Chicago station said "People in your area right now have all the adverse effect they will ever have."

He added the Northwest suburbs have been hardest hit by the rising Standard Oil Building, which has blocked the signal of Channel 7's antenna. He said the Standard Oil Building and the Sears Tower are at such a height now that reception cannot become any worse.

The Channel 7 transmitter is located atop the Marina Towers office building, a much smaller structure than the towering skyscrapers now being constructed downtown.

Local residents began receiving ghosting on Channel 7 last March and the problem became more severe as construction of the Standard Oil building continued. Channel 7 is the lone major Chicago network affected by the Loop construction. Channel 5 (NBC) and Channel 2 (CBS) transmitters are on the John Hancock Center and thus far there has been little interference.

The Sears Tower will be the world's tallest building when completed. Permanent television antennas will not be installed on the massive structure until late in 1974.

WORKMEN FOR THE LAMON Construction Co. are now installing sanitary sewers in Prospect Heights as part of the $1.1 million sewer system being built by the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District (OTSD).

Work is now about five months behind schedule because of rainy weather, according to OTSD Supt. Richard Schuld. Completion may be delayed further because of legal action.

Remodeling Weighed For Two Schools

Members of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 School Board and administration will inspect Grove Junior High School, Elk Grove Village, and Dempster Junior High School, Mount Prospect, tomorrow to discuss a possible $2.3 million remodeling plan for the two schools.

A question and answer period will follow the presentations.

"TAKE TIME TO MEET Your Faculty," an open house for parents of Lincoln Junior High School students will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the school. Parents will be able to visit their child's classrooms and follow his daily schedule. Refreshments and a short PTA business meeting will begin the program. The school is at 700 W. Lincoln.

A question and answer period will follow the presentations.

A MEAT DEMONSTRATION by representatives of the Jewel Tea Co. will be the featured presentation at the general meeting of the Forest View Elementary School PTO Thursday. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the school at 1901 Estates Drive in Mount Prospect. The display is part of a Korean Art Exchange between children at Westbrook and children in Korea. Grades one through six participated in the exchange.

THE PAINTINGS of 50 Korean children are now on display in the resource center of Westbrook School, 105 S. Busse Road in Mount Prospect. The display is part of a Korean Art Exchange between children at Westbrook and children in Korea. Grades one through six participated in the exchange.

Senior Class Leader

Kathleen Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kelly of Mount Prospect, has been elected vice president of the senior class at Rosary College in River Forest. Miss Kelly is an English major and co-chairman of the communications committee of the Student Government Association.

Board Votes To Remain In Ed-Red

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board has voted to continue membership in Ed-Red, a cooperative of suburban school districts with a lobbyist in Springfield.

Dist. 23 will pay $125 in dues to belong to Ed-Red for another year. Last year, High School Dist. 214 paid $1,800 in dues which covered the six elementary school districts that send students to 214. This year, however, Dist. 214 has offered to pay $900 and has asked the elementary districts to share half the cost.

Supt. Edward Grodsky recommended the district again support Ed-Red. "We do have input into Ed-Red during each legislative session," he said. "I feel we would be carrying our share along with the high school district if we paid part of the cost."

High School Dist. 211 and other districts in suburban Cook County also belong to Ed-Red.

In other action, the board hired Maureen Sandstrom as a part-time physical education teacher at Ross School, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., at a salary of $3,057. Mrs. Sandstrom, who has been a full-time and a substitute teacher in the district, will work two days a week at the school.

Channel 7 (WLS-TV) will construct temporary antennas on the Sears Tower in Chicago next fall, which will eliminate poor television reception in the North-west suburbs.

Meanwhile, Channel 7 officials contend the severe ghosting or double images being received on Channel 7 by local viewers "will not get any worse."

Spokesmen for the ABC-owned and operated Chicago station said "People in your area right now have all the adverse effect they will ever have."

He added the Northwest suburbs have been hardest hit by the rising Standard Oil Building, which has blocked the signal of Channel 7's antenna. He said the Stanford figure was a maximum cost estimate.

On Oct. 30, a member of the Berger Kelly & Associates architectural firm presented a plan for remodeling the schools to the board.

THE PLAN CALLS for a rearrangement and expansion of classrooms, a small addition to the existing buildings and repair work on the schools' heating and ventilation systems.

Erviti said that if the board decided to have only part of the remodeling done or had the work done as quickly as possible.

The architect's report that was submitted to the board estimated that work on each school would require at least 14 months. The schools would have to be closed during the construction period if the work was to be done in the minimum amount of time.

Erviti said needed repair work on the schools' heating and ventilation systems "made up a very large portion, 30 to 40 per cent" of the total remodeling cost.

THE COMPLETE remodeling, if undertaken, would bring Grove and Dempster up to the standards of the other, newer junior high schools in the district in terms of facilities, arrangement, and learning center size, said Erviti.

Grove and Dempster schools were built in sections constructed over several years. The two were first opened in 1960. They are the district's two oldest junior high schools.

'But Patrolmen Fear Intimidation': Flood

Police Here Next Target For CCPA?

Arlington Heights patrolmen may be one of the next targets of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA), an organization that already is the bargaining agent for patrolmen on several area police departments.

CCPA Pres. John Flood says he would like to organize patrolmen on the Arlington Heights police force, although he hasn't yet taken the matter up with the CCPA executive board or with village police themselves.

The CCPA already has chapters in Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect, Wheeling and Des Plaines. The Cook County Sheriff's Police also is represented by the CCPA.

"I think Arlington Heights patrolmen want to be with other area patrolmen," Flood said recently. "But I think there would be a fear on their part of organizing. This fear is a result of attitudes of such men as English and McDougall."

FLOOD WAS REFERRING to Maury English and Irwin McDougall, captains in the village police department. Flood contends that these police administrators would "intimidate" any patrolmen who express an interest in CCPA, by threatening them with loss of their jobs.

English, however, disputed Flood's charges. He said his men have to see for themselves if the CCPA has anything to offer and then can make the decision to join or not.

Flood, too, admits that any fears patrolmen might have about joining the CCPA are unjustified, but not because of anything English might say. Rather, he says, the Arlington Heights Village Board "wouldn't try to beat the men down for seeking proper organization."

He did not have such kind words for some other municipalities, Rolling Meadows in particular. When the CCPA first entered Rolling Meadows last year, a clear majority of the patrolmen there voted to join the organization. Now the CCPA is "dormant" in Rolling Meadows, Flood said.

Last January, charges flew in Rolling Meadows that Police Chief Lewis Case, backed by Mayor Roland Meyer, intimidated the city's CCPA members, threatening them with loss of their jobs. Meyer denied the charges, and several Rolling Meadows policemen backed him. But Flood still is not convinced.

FLOOD DOES NOT SEE the Arlington Heights village administration in the same light. He said that the local board is "sophisticated enough to deal with the CCPA on a sophisticated level." And Flood added that he has the greatest respect for Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood as a man the CCPA could deal with, should the organization courage to fight for what's right."

But Chief Calderwood and Capt. English say their men don't have anything to fight for. They said the police administrators have always had an open-door policy and are ready to listen and do something about any man's complaints.

And the patrolmen talked to by the Herald agreed with their superiors. They say there are really no major dissatisfactions in their department. One officer mentioned that the Arlington Heights Patrolman's Association, an organization set up for the good of the patrolmen and encouraged by Calderwood, was recently dissolved. There was just no interest, and that was largely attributed to the fact that there were no complaints.

"Working conditions and salary here are equal or better than any around," English said.

BUT FLOOD ATTRIBUTED those good working conditions and salaries to the work of the CCPA in other communities. He added that the CCPA, with its attorneys and expertise in labor relations and negotiations, could help village patrolmen even more if they would start a local CCPA chapter. And as for being able to go to the chief with their problems, Flood said the chief is a representative of the village board, not of the patrolmen.

"Throughout the U.S. police are organizing," Flood said. "Chiefs have always maintained authoritarian control of their departments. But today, policemen are better educated, more apt to ask questions than follow blindly. Chiefs have no idea, in most cases, about labor relations..."

"There's no doubt in my mind that if I could speak to Arlington Heights patrolmen as a group, we could organize them," he said. "Right now, they have a lot of fear because of lack of knowledge about the CCPA. I would be happy to debate English, McDougall or Calderwood before their own men on police organization. At the end of the debate, there is no question that they would come with us."

English agreed that Flood just might be able to win a debate with him over the CCPA, but not because the CCPA can really do anything for local patrolmen.

"Flood is an idealist. I'm a realist," English said. "No realist can argue with an idealist and win. But try and see if he can deliver what he promises. That's another story."

SOME VILLAGE patrolmen have expressed an interest in hearing what Flood has to say about the merits of the CCPA. A newspaper story about Mount Prospect police voting to join the CCPA hangs in the lounge of the Arlington Heights police department. The men know it's out there.

But whether they are ready to organize behind Flood is another matter. At the same time, Flood will not say definitely that the CCPA will try to organize the village patrolmen.

"Whether or not we make an organizational drive has not been discussed by the executive board (of the CCPA)," Flood said. "I want to do it, but only if they (the executive board) think the Arlington Heights patrolmen have the intestinal fortitude to withstand pressures from the administration."

Flood says it is inevitable that the village patrolmen will organize sooner or later. And he has his sights set on sooner.

"IT ONLY LAUGHS when I hurt," is the plaintive cry of performers in the Arlington High School Reader's Theater, who will be presenting selected comedy and satire readings in a program today and Saturday. Cast members will present selections from Lewis Carroll, Woody Allen, James Thurber and Mike Royko. Curtain time is 8 p.m. each night.

Hersey Faces Elk Grove In MSL 'Super Bowl III'

North Division champion Hersey and Elk Grove, undefeated South Section titlist, will rekindle their burning rivalry tonight at 8 p.m. in the Mid-Suburban League's Super Bowl III championship playoff game at Hersey.

The clash will mark the fourth time over the past two years that these two teams have crossed paths. Elk Grove has triumphed in two of the decisions including a 7-3 Super Bowl II upset and a 20-8 victory earlier this year.

Elk Grove has survived eight games this season without a defeat and is ranked second in the Chicagoland area behind St. Viator, another Herald area exponent.

Hersey will carry a 5-3 overall record into the contest with two of its setbacks administered by Viator and Elk Grove. Tickets will be on sale in the main offices of both Hersey and Elk Grove from 4 p.m. today.

THE GATES of Hersey's stadium will open at 6:30 p.m. for advance ticket-holders while the actual sale of tickets will resume at 7 p.m. outside the main gate.

In anticipation of an overflow crowd, those planning to attend the game are urged to organize car pools or ride the buses from Elk Grove for 50 cents.

Statistically, Elk Grove ranks as one of the best teams ever assembled in the Herald area. The Grenadiers are paced by versatile quarterback Jeff Stewart and hard-driving fullback Jeff Schroeder. As opposed to Elk Grove's impressive rushing game, Hersey has proven a dangerous passing team headed by junior quarterback Mark Zukala and sure-handed end Marty Friel.

Both veteran head coaches — Joe Gliwa of Hersey and Elk Grove's Don Schnake — report that their teams are physically and mentally prepared for the classic prep windup.

Honeywell To Open 25 New Jobs Here

Officials of the Honeywell Corp. announced today that they planned to move a portion of the firm's manufacturing operation from Wabash, Ind., to its commercial division facilities in Arlington Heights.

The change will involve the move of about 30 employees who will be transferred to Arlington Heights and the creation of approximately 25 new jobs here, according to company vice president Robert Moe.

The transfer should be complete by Jan. 1, Moe said.

The new manufacturing operation will produce panels used in the assembly of automation systems.

— Coffee committee to set up coffees to explain the referendum in various neighborhoods.

— Mail, phone and office help committee to help with direct mailings to citizens.

— Public relations committee to make up posters and other handouts about the items in the referendum.

— Referendum day committee to include poll watchers, phone callers and people to provide transportation to the polls.

"We need a lot of workers to educate people on what is included in the referendum," said Tomaso. Anyone who wants to work on the referendum should call the park district.

Tomaso also suggested the possibility of having bus tours of the park district for interested citizens. He also hopes to have a few citizens' conferences at various park field houses in the district.

"We will have an answering service set up for day and night calls and we will provide answers to any questions within 48 hours," Tomase said.

The last part of the referendum to be clarified was building a $150,000 field-house adjacent to Dryden School, 722 N. Dryden. Last night the board of education of School Dist. 25 unanimously approved the transfer of land to the park district so the facility can be built if the referendum is approved.

Park district officials aren't saying how much the referendum will cost taxpayers in the district, but say it's a lot less than first predicted.

The State

One man was shot to death and two were wounded in a shooting at the Black Muslim Temple on Chicago's South Side. All were employees of an elementary school and library attached to the temple.

Francis T. Mayo, Region 5 administrator for the Environmental Protection Agency, suggested that each of the four states in the region name two representatives to a technical committee to make recommendations on problems of cooling water around Lake Michigan's shores.

The World

The United States said it believes the Vietnam peace negotiations are entering their final stage. But North Vietnam said "peace is not for tomorrow." The reason is simple — the United States refused to sign the peace agreement it has already agreed to," a Hanoi negotiator said in Paris.

A huge bomb exploded in a downtown Belfast parking garage and a series of gunbattles wounded at least six persons in the Northern Ireland capital. An Irish Republican Army leader was captured and a Protestant girl was tortured and her head shaved by Catholics in their continuing warfare.

Teachers See 'Fruits' Of Their Art

by CINDY TEW

Cabbage, apples, oranges and cauliflower were scattered across three long tables at an art workshop for area nursery school teachers at Village Nursery School, Arlington Heights.

The fruit and vegetables could have been used for an artistic salad or as models for the artists. But this food wasn't destined for such a conventional use. The fruits and vegetables soon became printing implements — red cauliflower prints dotted many a page.

"This is fascinating," said Audrie King, who has been teaching at Village Nursery School, 308 N. Evergreen, for three years. "The ideas we are picking up here should keep us going for quite a while."

THE THREE-DAY workshop was free to 50 members of the Northwest Association for Nursery Schools. The art consultant and all the materials were provided by Binney & Smith, Inc., manufacturers of school art supplies.

"We introduce teachers to different art techniques to promote art education," said Carol Durham, the art consultant. "Of course, we use Binney & Smith art supplies in the classes and hope the teachers will continue to use them in their own classes."

Whether or not the teachers will use the Binney & Smith products is questionable, but there's no doubt the teachers will use some of the new techniques they have learned.

"We're using the same old materials — clay, crayons and paint, but the ideas are new," said Claudia Builla of a Arlington Hills nursery school, who was up to her elbows in finger paints.

According to Miss Durham, the whole idea of the workshop is learning by doing. By the looks of the large auditorium with finger paintings, vegetable prints and fluorescent paintings drying in every conceivable corner of the room, the nursery school teachers were working hard learning the new art concepts.

"WE HAVE TO adapt all these new ideas to our 3 and 4-year-olds," said Mrs. King. Since most nursery schools in the area feature a lot of art projects, the teachers say they can use all the new ideas they can get.

"It's fun experimenting here and it's also a great place to trade ideas," said Mrs. Smith who represented one of 50 area nursery schools at the workshop.

Ironing crayon flakes between two pieces of wax paper was one new art form for many teachers. And some teachers caught on faster than others.

"Don't use too many colors — you get mud," said one teacher holding up a piece of waxed paper with a big brown spot in the middle.

"THIS IS REALLY unbelievable," said Sue Zulinskas, a teacher at Creative Nursery in Arlington Heights. "We're learning so many different uses of colors. We even learned a new easier way of making paper mache."

While some of the art forms may be too complicated for nursery school children, new ideas in fingerpainting will probably appeal. One of the new ideas is "the big brush" technique in which children will learn to use their entire arm to paint with.

And the more sophisticated art techniques won't go to waste, either. One teacher found the perfect technique for making her Christmas cards.

Buffalo Grove High School

Boundary Talks To Resume

by WANDALYN RICE

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education will resume discussion of attendance boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School at its regular board meeting Monday.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district's administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

The board will be presented with a proposal drawn up by the district's administration which would give students in the Cambridge subdivision of Buffalo Grove the choice of whether to attend the new school or to attend at Wheeling High School where students from the area are presently enrolled.

When they came out of the store the second time, police arrested Hinton on the Wisconsin warrant. When they searched Hinton, they found what they believe to be marijuana, police said. A subsequent search of the car Hinton was driving turned up 50 grams of alleged marijuana, 50 tablets of alleged amphetamines and several bottles of beer and liquor. Both men were arrested for illegal possession of marijuana, amphetamines and liquor.

Bond for Hinton was set at $10,000, and bond for Votaw is $2,000.

POLICE LATER called the owner of Monaco Drug Store, who sent William R. Votaw, 251 Lee, Mount Prospect, to the police station. Police said Votaw admitted selling liquor to Hinton without asking for proper identification. Votaw told police that when Hinton came into the drug store the second time, Hinton told Votaw that he is only 18 years old and not of age.

At the last meeting where the boundaries were discussed, the board asked Gilbert to work out some way that some areas that had expressed preferences could be given their choice of schools.

Under the proposal to be presented Monday, the basic boundaries for Buffalo Grove would include the present Cooper and Rand junior high school attendance areas as far south as Palatine Road. Students from Cambridge would be able to choose to attend Buffalo Grove or Wheeling and students from the Ivy Hill subdivision in Arlington Heights, would be able to remain at Hersey or attend Buffalo Grove.

In addition, two optional areas would be set up on the eastern edge of the present Hersey High School attendance area. Students in Prospect Heights south of Palatine Road now attending Hersey High School would be able to choose between Wheeling and Hersey. Students now attending Hersey living south of Kensington Road in Mount Prospect would be able to choose between Hersey and Prospect high schools.

THE PROPOSAL would require the board to adopt priorities to determine in what order students would be accepted at a school. Maximum enrollment of 2,500 students at Buffalo Grove and 2,750 at Hersey would be set and students beginning in August, the board has looked at proposals for Buffalo Grove boundaries and for changes in the Hersey High School boundaries to relieve crowding there. Residents of the Cambridge subdivision have appeared before the board asking to be placed in the new school while residents of other areas, particularly the Ivy Hill subdivision of Arlington Heights, have asked to remain at Hersey.

Gilbert said the proposal to provide optional areas "shows that it is not simple to give options when you think of fairness." He added, "I would not be surprised if when the board looks at what all is involved in making an option plan work that they might decide to establish firm boundaries."

The board has set a deadline of Dec. 1 for adopting boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School. The school is now under construction at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads in Buffalo Grove and is scheduled to open in the fall, 1973.

Unit School Meeting Slated

Representatives of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will meet with other area school representatives Nov. 29 at Rolling Meadows High School to discuss formation of unit school districts.

The meeting is being hosted by High School Dist. 214. Dist. 214 has invited representatives from the seven elementary districts it encompasses to attend. Dist. 214 will attempt to determine how the elementary districts feel about unit districts before taking a stand on the issue.

THE PROPOSAL would require the board to adopt priorities to determine in what order students would be accepted at a school. Maximum enrollment of 2,500 students at Buffalo Grove and 2,750 at Hersey would be set and students

Forget It and Ignore It!

This is the wisest rule to follow whenever a well-meaning friend or relative — who does not have a medical degree — offers you some "advice" on how to treat an illness without having to bother calling a doctor. Such advice is almost always incorrect, even though it is offered with the best of intentions.

By heading a friend's "medical advice" and not going to a doctor, you could lose much valuable time in getting the proper treatment for your condition. Today's doctors spend many, many years in medical school and in internships before they become qualified to practice medicine.

Unless your friend has had identical training and experience, you should forget and ignore his advice and contact a doctor instead.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery services and charge accounts.

NEW TECHNIQUES in fingerpainting don't always come out according to plans as Ruth Larson found out this week at an art workshop held in Arlington Heights. Beatrice Johnston, right, starts a new fingerpainting session at the workshop which stressed learning by doing.

Both women are from St. Marks Nursery School in Mount Prospect, one of 50 nursery schools in the Northwest suburbs represented at the workshop, sponsored by the Northwest Association for Nursery Schools.

WLS To Put Up Antennas Next Fall

TV Reception To Get Better

Channel 7 (WLS-TV) will construct temporary antennas on the Sears Tower in Chicago next fall, which will eliminate poor television reception in the Northwest suburbs.

Meanwhile, Channel 7 officials contend the severe ghosting or double images being received on Channel 7 by local viewers "will not get any worse."

Spokesmen for the ABC-owned and operated Chicago station said "People in our area right now have all the adverse effect they will ever have."

He added the Northwest suburbs have been hardest hit by the rising Standard Oil Building, which has blocked the signal of Channel 7's antenna. He said the Standing on Channel 7 last March and the problem became more severe as compared to the Standard Oil Building and the Sears Tower are at such a height now that reception cannot become any worse.

The Channel 7 transmitter is located atop the Marina Towers office building, a much smaller structure than the towering skyscrapers now being constructed downtown.

Local residents began receiving ghost-construction of the Standard Oil building continued. Channel 7 is the lone major Chicago network affected by the Loop construction. Channel 5 (NBC) and Channel 2 (CBS) transmitters are on the John Hancock Center and thus far there has been little interference.

BUT AS THE Sears Tower continues to rise — the building now is at the 86th floor — the other two major stations will also have interference difficulties. The two stations have not determined whether they will relocate their signals on the Sears Tower.

Channel 11 (WTTW) also plans to install temporary antennas on the Sears Tower next fall. Area residents have reported interference on Channel 11, but not as severe as on Channel 7.

The Sears Tower will be the world's tallest building when completed. Permanent television antennas will not be installed on the massive structure until late in 1974.

Water Main Breaks At Arlington-Central

Businesses and residences around the intersection of Arlington Heights and Central roads were without water yesterday when road crews broke through a water main at the southwest corner of the torn up intersection.

Men from the Palumbo Excavating Co., which has been reconstructing the intersection since April, were working on restoring the main yesterday afternoon.

The mishap occurred yesterday morning near the southwest corner of the torn up intersection.

A request for annexation and multi-family rezoning of .76 acres of land at the northwest corner of Ridge Avenue and Techney Road has been continued to Dec. 6.

The plan commission met to hear the petition Wednesday night but the hearing was continued because the prospective developer, Lyn-Jay Builders, were not ready to proceed.

According to 1963 flood plain maps, the tennis facility will be on part of a natural flood plain. But a 1971 map indicates that the area is no longer considered flood plain.

The six-court building is being financed through revenue bonds.

Fourth Of July Committee Is Being Formed

An Arlington Heights Fourth of July festival committee has been formed to plan a five-day festival in the village from June 30 to July 4 next year.

Represented on the committee are the Chamber of Commerce, Jaycees, Arlington Beautification Council, Lions Club, Woman's Club, Junior Woman's Club, the Village of Arlington Heights and Paddock Publications.

The festivities are being planned to involve church, civic and homeowners groups from all parts of the village. Various athletic and art events are also being considered.

The traditional Fourth of July parade and fireworks display also will be included.

Pupils To Take Oath As Junior City Officials

Thirty-seven Des Plaines teenagers will be sworn in as junior city officials tomorrow as part of the city's annual Youth Appreciation Week.

The high school juniors, chosen from five area schools, will meet at 9 a.m. in city hall, room 1412.

After selection of officers, comments by Mayor Herbert Behrel and swearing in by Circuit Court Judge Anton Smigiel, the youngsters will tour the fire and police departments and Forest Hospital.

A noon lunch at the Elks Club is scheduled.

Youth Appreciation Week is co-sponsored by the city and the Des Plaines Optimist Club. Co-chairmen this year are Deputy Fire Chief Donald Corey and Edwin F. Drole of Des Plaines National Bank.

WEDNESDAY, THE junior officials will meet at 8 p.m. near city hall for a bus trip to Chicago. Tours of the Cook County Morgue, the Chicago Tribune, the Chicago Fire Academy and Trans World Airlines at O'Hare Airport are planned. The group will return to Des Plaines about 4:30 p.m.

Again this year, the 16-year program includes an overnight trip to Springfield. The officials will meet at 4:45 p.m. Friday, leaving at 5 p.m. and will return Saturday evening after tours of Springfield monuments and government offices.

The junior officials will attend the Nov. 20 city council meeting.

The program ends with a voluntary essay contest. Topic again this year is "What's Right With Our Nation." Four winners will be named and prizes include a portable typewriter.

The program is held yearly to honor area teenagers and introduce them to government operations, Drole said.

This year's list of students includes the son of Ald. Arthur Erbach (5th), Chris Erbach, of 1275 Prospect Ave. is one of six representatives from St. Viator High School.

No Township Suit Hearing Until '73

An Appellate Court hearing on the township government League of Women Voters suit probably will not come up before Jan. 1, LWV Atty. Richard J. Troy said yesterday.

"We're just going to have to file briefs now," Troy said. He and attorneys for Palatine, Maine and Niles townships will plead the case before three First District Appellate Court justices when the hearing is called.

'The Interview' School's First Play

"The Interview," this year's first Studio Theatre production at Maine East High School, depicts the gradual dehumanization of the individual and his metamorphosis into a machine-like mouthpiece of middle-class America, according to director Edward Sullivan.

The play, to be staged in Room 147 at 8 p.m. Nov. 16, 17 and 18, will feature Lori Boninconro.

Township Government Is Favored In Northfield

Northfield Township residents gave township officials there a vote of confidence by turning down the referendum Tuesday to abolish that form of government.

With most of the precincts tallied in Northfield Township, residents voted to retain the township system by a wide margin. More than 9,000 persons favored township government and 6,000 opposed it.

The referendum was initiated by the League of Women Voters in Northfield Township and was the first time that township residents have voted on the issue.

The Northfield Township question was placed on the ballot, while a similar move in Palatine, Maine and Niles Townships was not allowed by the district courts. The Appellate Court, however, will consider the legality of a township referendum in Palatine, Maine, and Niles townships but no date has been set for hearings.

THE MOVE BY the three townships was thrown out by the circuit court because there was not ample time to notify

A frantic attempt to force a referendum on the Nov. 7 ballot failed in those three townships. The referendum would have offered voters the choice of abolishing or keeping township government.

LWV MEMBERS statewide have determined to get township governments abolished, particularly in highly-populated suburban areas. In these regions, the original intent of a rural, grassroots government has been taken over by local villages and cities, LWV members argue. Township officials basically disagree with the LWV argument. In the latest clash, they refused to allow an abolition referendum because the state legislature has not approved a bill naming a substitute level of government to take over for the township.

The first abolition referendum in the state was held in Northfield Township Tuesday. That issue failed, and another referendum may not legally be submitted for that township for another 23 months.

Members of the LWV in Maine, Niles and Palatine townships are aiming for the next election in April, when township officials will be up for reelection. Some candidates who believe township government should be abolished may run for a position of township in April to work toward a referendum vote, according to LWV member Ann Scollay.

Maine East Orchesis Groups Pick Members

Maine East High School's Orchesis has chosen new members for Senior Orchesis, Junior Orchesis, and the Orchesis Basic Training and began rehearsals for the Dec. 14-16 V-Show acts in "Flashback Follies."

Under the direction of Betty Schmitz, Orchesis members alike are preparing V-Show acts, one being a routine "I Want To Be Happy" from "No, No, Nanette."

Twenty Maine East girls are new to Senior Orchesis. They are Robin Abrams, Kathy Blasutio, Bonnie Brown, Kathy Chase, Mary Egger, Kathy Elmers, Linda Forshier, Kristin Gulliksen, Nancy Hajek, Gail Hansen, Sue Howard, Bonnie Kohler, Karen Kolze, Laura Korczik, Letta Krtzman, Noreen Luetke, Anita Palcheck, Kathy Sherman, Debbie Shore and Loretta Staudt.

New members in Junior Orchesis include Rhonda Barard, Linda Barnazel, Julie Bilotich, Roberta Blum, Gail Boruchew, Sue Bord, Sharon Brocksten, Robin Butchin, Lynn Clehon, Marie Clemente, Eda Di Prima, Diane Di Vito, Marianne Eterna, Jan Foreman, Maryanne Galante, Lori Garvi, Diane Gattuso, Mary Giacomo, Debbie Girsh, Ellen Grindel, Julie Halasz, Nancy Harner, Karen

PTA Notes

Dempster Junior High School PTA invites parents of its students to attend the PTA meeting on Thursday, Nov. 16 at 8 p.m.

The Topic for Discussion will be the "Goals of the Dist. 59 School Board." School Board Pres. Harry Peterson, along with Al Domanico, chairman of the goals committee, will make a presentation. Other school board members will also be in attendance. There will be a question-and-answer period. Refreshments will be served.

THE MAINE WEST High School Parent Teacher Council (PTC) will hold its second annual fall open house tonight from 7 until 10 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. John Hell, PTC president parents, invite all those parents of Maine West students who did not attend the first open house to attend this one.

The purpose of the session is to help parents and teachers become better acquainted. Student guides will be stationed throughout the building to help parents find their way around Maine West. Refreshments will also be served in the school cafeteria during the evening.

85 Maine West Pupils Named State Scholars

The Illinois State Scholarship Commission has named 85 Maine West High School seniors as state scholars in the 1973-74 competitive state scholarship program.

The state scholars, who represent nearly every high school in Illinois, were chosen from the 51,000 students who entered the competition by taking the examination administered by the American College Testing Program. High school academic record and examination scores are used in the selection.

State scholars received a certificate of merit which identifies them as having high academic achievement in high school. Monetary awards up to $1,200 for 1973-74 for use towards tuition and fees at public or private colleges or hospital schools of nursing in Illinois of the student's choice will be provided for state scholars who have financial need.

FOLLOWING IS A list of the state scholars named from Maine West:

Celeste Andrews, Janice M. Andrews, Bonnie Arndt, Robert D. Bakus, Jean Baylie, Denise Bell, David J. Bergman, Robert Brannon, Paul A. Breider, Barbara J. Bridwell, Debra A. Brodd, Cynthia L. Brodie, Carol Ann Buchanan, Bonnie M. Cassidy, Robert Chapman, Patricia Colecchi, Linda Costagli, Phillip L. Daprato, Kathleen Degenhardt, Anne M. Detzner, Gary Dole, Mark R. Elchhorn, June Elmermann, Jano Elsfield, Nancy Evans, Jill C. Faistad, Phillip T. Fischer, and Mary Freemire.

Other state scholars from Maine West are: John A. Gages, Sandra Garza, Ingrid Goebel, Carol Gustafson, Gayle A. Haman, Sandra L. Hanus, Gary P. Heilmann, Curtis J. Henrich, Joanne Hull, Cheryl Husband, Kathleen R. Ingraham, Clarence D. Johnson, Richard Latalia, Barbara S. Levand, Bruce A. Locke, Ronald Loewenherz, Julie Maday, Robert McDonald, Joffery McGrath, Estelle G. McHagan, Regine A. Meissner, Steven C. Menella, Roxanne Miller, Marie Mlodoch, and James P. Moore.

Also, Kimberly M. Norton, Gail K. Nygaard, Patti Jo O'Connor, Dale A. Oehlerking, Thomas J. Olenicki, James Olson, Michael J. Parker, Theodore W. Parker, Suzanne Patterson, William B. Paxton, Jeffery L. Potter, Joseph A. Prang, Thomas Rasch, Virginia Reinhart, John Rennau, Lynn Rosner, Janet Schug, Suzanne Sciez, Nancy Seitz, Thomas Stevens, Carl S. An Italian Finally Got 'Valachi Papers' On Film

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Italian producer Dino De Laurentiis has done what no American filmmaker has had the intestinal fortitude to do: bring "The Valachi Papers" to the screen.

"The Valachi Papers" are to "The Godfather" what fact is to fiction.

"One of the reasons many Americans were afraid to make this picture was the reaction of Italian-Americans," said De Laurentiis.

"Well, I am an Italian. I could do it without being accused of many things. But I say also there are 22 million Italians in the United States. My picture involves more than 5,000 mobsters."

"No good Italian will identify with these criminals."

NEITHER IS De Laurentiis concerned with reprisals from the Mafia.

"In my country there is organized crime, of course," he explained. "But the Mafia works on a different basis over there. They are involved in land ownership and agriculture — not prostitution, dope and gambling.

"What interests me is that 'the Valachi Papers' was on the best-seller list for 26 weeks, but no one in America bought it for the movies."

"So I bought it in 1968 before 'The Godfather' was published. But I couldn't get anyone to work with me on distribution. They were afraid."

"When Vito Genovese died in February, 1969, I started production. I don't glamorize the gangsters like they do in 'The Godfather.' That one is a pro-Mafia movie. Mine is historic fact."

De Laurentiis is a brusque man of strong opinions and full of kinetic action. He speaks bluntly and forcefully.

"After three weeks shooting in New York I heard from the Italian-American League. They wanted me to delete the words Mafia and Cosa Nostra from my picture, also the names of Genovese, Luciano, Maranzano and Masseria.

"I MOVED the picture to Rome right away and kept shooting. I told them to call the author of the book and sue him if they objected."

"Yes, Italians are proud people. But this film has nothing to do with Italians. It deals with facts. If it were fiction that would be altogether different."

"Organized crime is a plague to society and someone must have the guts to denounce it on the screen. If it is an Italian who does this, so much the better."

The producer and director Terrance Young are at pains not to make any of the Cosa Nostra characters even slightly sympathetic. The audience cannot take sides, as it did in "The Godfather."

There are no good Mafiosi in De Laurentiis' picture because he is convinced there is no such animal as a good killer.

Cowboys Must Forget Past Year; Optimism For 72-73

by MIKE KLEIN

Hardly anyone is counting his basketball players out this winter's Central Suburban League North Division squabble.

And that includes Mel Sheets at New Trier West.

"The kids feel like they can beat anybody they play," said Sheets, a former head coach down in Alton.

Sheets' marriage to New Trier West basketball enters its eighth season this winter. He's the only head coach in Cowboy history.

But through six previous varsity seasons, Sheets and the Cowboys have failed to bring a CSL championship to this 2,700 student campus on the winding road in Northfield.

The best performance was second place in 1968.

Hampered by close defeats last year, the Cowboys tumbled to eighth place. There were only six wins in 21 starts during a very long four months.

But Sheets says last year is best forgotten. And apparently most CSL North coaches have heeded his warning. Because almost to a man, they pick either New Trier or Maine East to win the division title.

And while surrendering the South Division title to Bernie Brady's robust Maine South Hawks, North coaches predict an eye-for-an-eye battle among schools in their division.

A four-year starter at Millikin in Decatur, Sheets talks softly and slowly about last year's failures.

"We had an awful lot of ballgames that went down to the wire," he said. "It seemed like the kind of year that we just didn't win a close ballgame."

"I think we only won one and lost six or seven. But the only time we got run out of the gym was against Maine South."

Those had guys romped 73-49 at New Trier's expense. But despite 15 losses, the Cowboys were outscored by only six points — 1,318 to 1,312 — over the season. Ten losses were by six points or less!

The Cowboys return six of 13 lettermen including one All-Central Suburban big man to complement a brand new offense that will find sweaty bodies racing human-skarem around the court.

"We'll play a high or low post with two centers rebounding and everybody else shooting," said Sheets. "If we could play with two balls, the kids would like it real well."

"We'll find out right away if we can play like that and if we're going to be any good or not by opening with Conant, New Trier East, Evanston and Waukegan."

The Cowboys' spread out running attack will pivot around the two lettermen co-captains — 6-4 center Joe Donnellan and 6-0 guard Carl Imburgia.

Donnellan averaged 13.6 points and 10 rebounds last winter to earn a spot on the All-CSL team. Imburgia was selected honorable mention All-Conference after averaging 12.7 points and grabbing 80 rebounds.

Imburgia also earned 58 assists and led the Cowboys with 52 steals.

It's been one fine performance after another for Donnellan, one of only five seniors on the 1972-73 Cowboys. "He's a real good defensive player and pretty well controls the inside," said Sheets.

"He doesn't really hurt you in any way. No one shuts him down. You just know he's going to give you a good ball-game."

"I've got a couple kids I don't know whether will go like hell or throw the ball out the window," Sheets continued. "But I don't worry about Joe."

Sheets didn't admit that Imburgia ever tossed a round pigskin out a window, but claimed the 160-pounder played "hot and cold."

"As a fresh-soph, Carl was the outstanding player in the class," said Sheets, a former sophomore coach at Glenbrook North. "And at times last year, he was the best player on the floor."

"If Carl can ever be consistent, he'll be as good a guard as there is in the area."

Sheets plans on moving Imburgia to one outside wing — not a true guard — "so he can go to the board and have some room out there to play a little one-on-one."

Ideally, the Cowboys will try sticking with three guards plus two centers — Donnellan and either senior letterman Scott Rooth or 6-6 junior Gunnar Thors. All-Conference forward Paul Jones graduated.

Rooth captains Bob Naughton's varsity football team and will get a late basketball start since the Cowboys appear in Saturdays CSL football playoff.

"I'd have to say Scott a real good chance to play for us inside even though he's short by some standards," Sheets said.

"From just a spectator's standpoint, I'd say he's one heck of a football-player. And that aggressiveness carries over on the basketball court."

Thors played some varsity last year, very little actually, but led the junior varsity with a 15 point average.

Six-foot-three Kelly Warner and 6-4 Craig Boyer, also juniors will get good shots at post opposite Donnellan.

Beyond that group, the Cowboys shrink rapidly to 6-1 junior forward Clay Parcells. Everyone else is six feet or smaller.

At 5-6, guard Al Bartelstein looks up at everybody except guard Dave Buwa. Also 5-6.

Bartelstein lettered as a sophomore last winter, leading New Trier with 94 assists while adding 30 steals.

The power behind New Trier West will undoubtedly be Donnellan. A consistently good Imburgia could mean the difference between second and first.

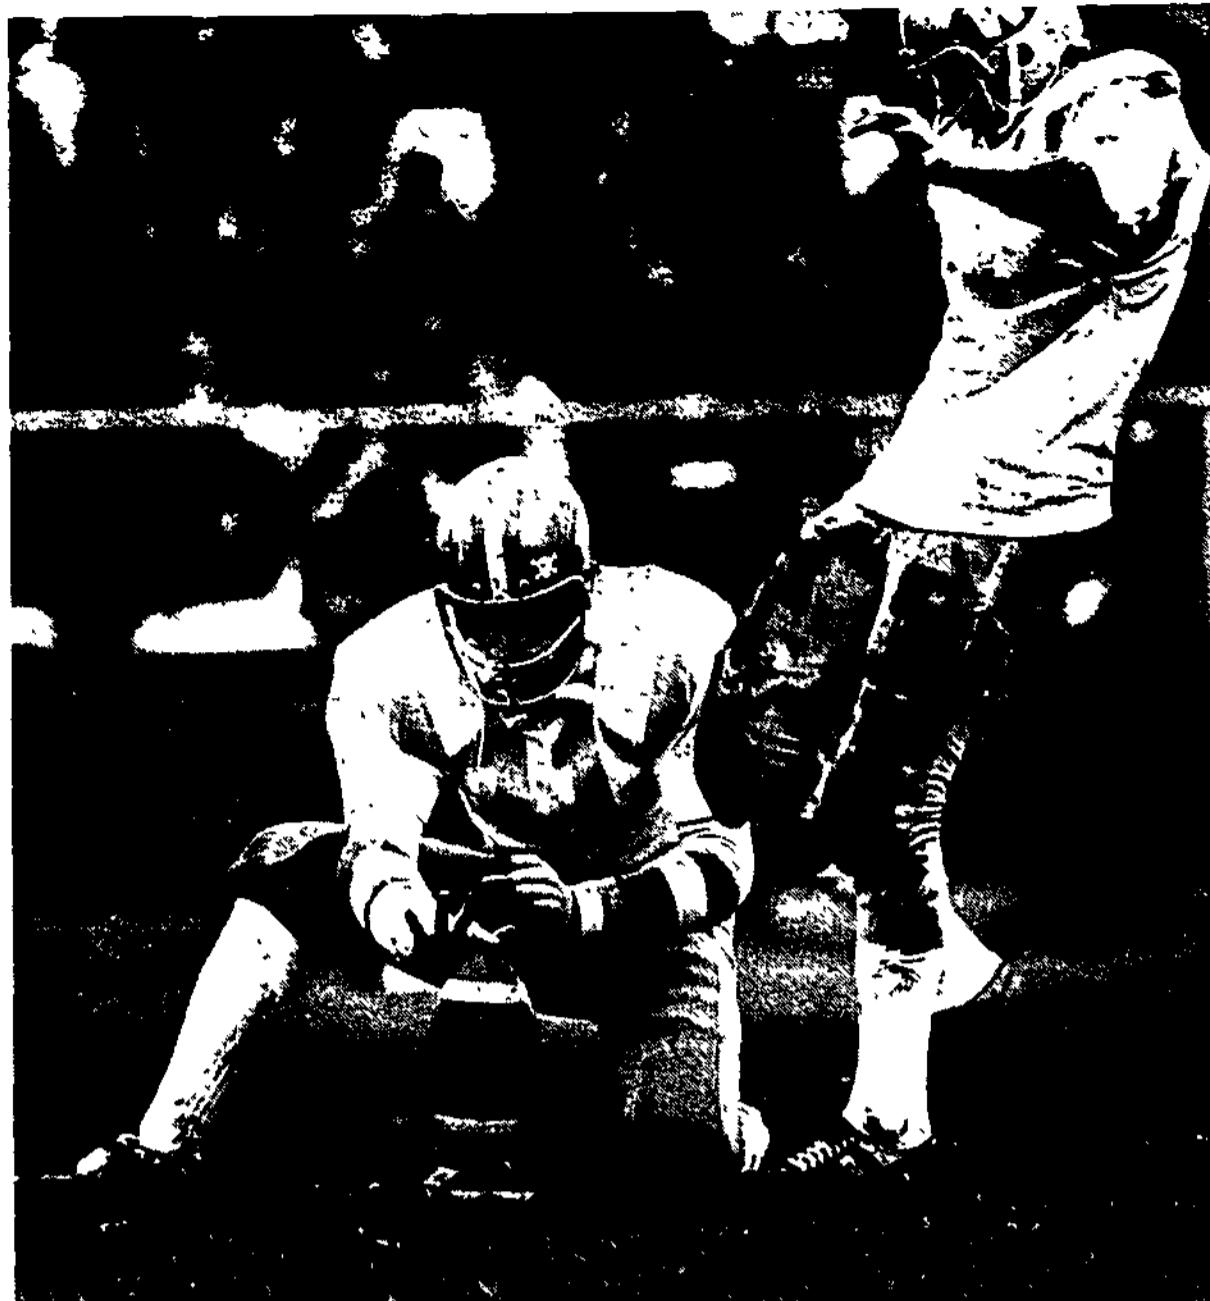

One thing's for sure, however. New Trier won't finish eighth this winter.

But the Cowboys don't look like last place material anyhow.

Far from it!

What Is Answer To CSL Problems? Here's A Plan

This is the second of two articles dealing with the Central Suburban League and problems it incurred during the past football season.

by MIKE KLEIN

Assemble one dozen men and you'll get 12 different ideas on how to accomplish most anything.

In this case, qualifying North and South Division champions for the Central Suburban League football playoff.

It's no hassle when a club survives undefeated as Niles West (5-0) did in the South and New Trier West (4-1) in the North.

But a big chocolate mess results when two or more teams tie at the top.

As almost happened last weekend when Niles West plus Deerfield and Maine West all envisioned 4-1 records in the CSL South.

That bubble burst when Niles West defeated Deerfield, 21-6. Niles treks to New Trier West on Saturday for the first CSL playoff. A crowd nearing 5,000 is expected.

Of course, there would be no problem if the Central Suburban hadn't added three schools — Maine East, Highland Park and Niles East — created two divisions and instituted a playoff.

Two divisions plus a playoff seemed far more bearable than one huge, pulsating 12-team league.

Besides, Saturday's playoff should gross about $4,000 according to Jim Probst, New Trier athletic director.

After expenses, the league will receive 50 per cent with the remainder split evenly between Niles West and New Trier.

Despite clear divisional winners, at least 10 CSL football coaches have expressed displeasure with (A) Divisional and game tie-breaking procedures, plus (B) General disregard of coaches' attitudes concerning those rules.

Like CSL coaches were never involved in policy makeup. Ultimately, principals made the final decisions based on recommendations from the league ADs.

At the coaches' post-season meeting last Monday night, they largely affirmed their discontent and vowed to make changes.

"Judging from the reaction there, I'd say most everyone agreed that there's a better way of doing it," said Paul Adams of Deerfield.

They also voted that should Saturday's playoff end deadlocked, that's it. There will be no winner on stats. Just co-champs.

Discussions with all but one CSL coach (minus Ed Pugliesi of Niles East) indicate they'd like to dump or vastly alter CSL tie-busting policy for individual games.

These rules create a winner based on the following three categories:

Penalties, three points;

First down, two points;

Total net yardage, two points.

Many other systems could be employed. This one discussed could be altered. The most discussed choices:

—Continue with two divisions but abolish the playoff, thus eliminating any need to dissolve ties.

—Revert to one 12-team division.

—Use just total net yardage.

With alterations, the three categories used this fall could have merit. They have weaknesses, but remain a definite building block.

"What I don't like about it is when a team recovers a fumble inside the 20-yard line, they call that a penetration and award points," said Mike Basrak, major domo of South champion Niles West.

The Herald believes qualification for penetration points should be altered and two categories — defensive points and return yardage — added.

Regarding penetrations, only drives beginning in a team's own territory should attain penetration points. It makes this category purely an offensive measuring stick.

Under the new defensive category, two points should be allotted for each fumble recovery or interception. It would be three points if the play led to a score or the opponent was halted 15 or fewer yards from scoring.

The 15-yard figure is used because the average high school field goal kicker is highly inefficient from 30 or more yards away.

But any turnover inside the 15 eliminates a fairly positive three points.

Holding the opponent on fourth down doesn't figure in here because that shows up under first downs.

The Herald also believes return yardage from kickoffs, punts, interceptions and fumble recoveries should be added.

Thus, an 11-point system would replace this year's seven-pointer. Penalties should remain at three points with first downs, net yardage, defensive points and return yardage pulling two points apiece.

That could decide an individual game. But it does nothing for breaking a divisional tie.

For this reason the Herald believes the final weekend of each season should remain unscheduled until the previous Monday.

According to Flitzhugh, no IHSA rule prohibits this type of scheduling.

Most certainly, it would make divisional races more exciting. And if two competing teams battled twice on consecutive weekends, so what?

It's far more creditable than having one contender finish against a pasty and the other against a respectable team.

Last weekend, Deerfield was genuinely penalized because it had to finish against the top contender while Maine West drew pathetic Niles North.

Probably, Maine should have drawn Niles West once more since the Warriors had a commanding lead in the three-category system.

Deerfield could have been paired off against Maine South, the division's next toughest opponent. Leaving remarkably bad Niles East and North a second chance at each other.

Perhaps this system would work even better with two unscheduled weekends.

Whatever happens between now and next fall, the CSL coaches will have a bigger voice this time. The three-category system didn't operate under their approval.

And as Basrak at Niles West says, "We as coaches — if we don't have a voice in it, what good is it?"

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

"YOU HAVE TO experience it to believe it," Bob Cummins had said on the long distance telephone, "but a houseboat actually extends your boating season by two or three months!"

Or as he said last Friday evening

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

sider of "for its size." The boat handles remarkably well, period.

We cruised at what turned out to be an economical 3000 rpm, which felt like something around 16 or 18 miles per hour, but it could have been faster. It's rather like driving a Cadillac, ("golly, officer, it didn't seem that fast") you don't feel the bumps and swells that you expect to feel as you accelerate.

We cautiously avoided the big lake until Sunday when forecasts called for overcast skies, but calm waters, and instead put the big boat through a number of tests, including tight turns, moorings and other maneuvers. The boat handled them much more easily than the skipper, I might confess.

Even though the steel hull of the River Queen is made to accept heavy pounding and to be manageable under a variety of conditions, the crew is not always as capable. So we spent the stormy days exploring the Kalamazoo river. We were impressed at how shallow the boat can operate. The hull appears to draw less than two feet and it keeps moving nicely even as the propellers are churning mud... a test we made rather inadvertently.

The River Queen is one of the bigger sellers in a highly competitive industry, even with its healthy price tag. As equipped, our Star Stream would retail for about $24,000, list price.

That's a lot of money... but then it buys a whole lot of boat. And at this time of year, most marine dealers are swinging discount hatchets.

We would suggest that your midwest houseboat be equipped with a forced-air gas heater forward and aft. After that you will be satisfied with standard equipment. (I continue to scoff at the need for an air conditioner on a boat of any kind.)

One option that would be enticing (and expensive) is a "flying bridge" which duplicates the controls below in the main cabin. And then, if I were going to go that far, I would likewise go for the 50 footer, (separate pilot cabin/lounge, cooking/dining area, two staterooms, flying bridge) following which I would immediately go for a huge bank loan.

Des Plaines Statistics

The following statistics are compiled from the records of Maine High Schools North, West and East. All compete in the Central Suburban League and are regularly covered by the Des Plaines Herald. Each team played eight games during the 1972 football season.

Encourage Car Pools For Game

Tickets are on sale for the Super Bowl III Mid-Suburban League championship game between North Division titlist Hersey and South representative Elk Grove slated for Friday at 8 p.m.

Tickets cost $1.25 for adults, $.75 for students with identification cards and $.75 for all children, regardless of age and may be purchased at the main offices of either school in advance between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. through Friday.

In anticipation of an overflow crowd, those planning to attend the game are urged to organize car pools. Elk Grove students are encouraged to ride the school buses ($.50).

Tickets may be purchased beginning at 7 p.m. at the gate prior to the game at Hersey, but the gates will be open at 6:30 for those who have purchased them in advance. No seats will be reserved.

Passes that will be honored at the pass gate include the Mid-Suburban League Pass, the Inter-Suburban League Pass, special employee pass for Elk Grove and Hersey (immediate family included), I.H.S.A. officers, sideline pass which must be displayed, Hersey High School student athletic pass and fall sport participants pass and Gold Card passes. Nothing else is acceptable.

Coin collectors can keep abreast of new issues and values, every Thursday in the HERALD.

Grove, Dempster To Be Inspected

Remodeling Weighed For 2 Schools

Members of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 School Board and administration will inspect Grove Junior High School, Elk Grove Village, and Dempster Junior High School, Mount Prospect, tomorrow

to discuss a possible $2.3 million remodeling plan for the two schools.

James Erviti, superintendent of Dist. 59, said the board has yet to make any decision on the proposal for remodeling. "The board has just decided to find out what it would take to remodel the schools."

On Oct. 30, a member of the Berger Kelly & Associates architectural firm presented a plan for remodeling the schools to the board.

THE PLAN CALLS for a rearrangement and expansion of classrooms, a small addition to the existing buildings and repair work on the schools' heating and ventilation systems.

Erviti said that if the board decided to have the remodeling done, the $2.3 million figure was a maximum cost estimate. He said the project would cost the maximum amount only if the board decided to have the entire remodeling plan done over a period of several years. The cost would be less if the board decided to have only part of the remodeling done or had the work done as quickly as possible.

The architect's report that was submitted to the board estimated that work on each school would require at least 14 months. The schools would have to be closed during the construction period if the work was to be done in the minimum amount of time.

Erviti said needed repair work on the schools' heating and ventilation systems "made up a very large portion, 30 to 40 per cent" of the total remodeling cost.

THE COMPLETE remodeling, if undertaken, would bring Grove and Dempster up to the standards of the other, newer junior high schools in the district in terms of facilities, arrangement, and learning center size, said Erviti.

Grove and Dempster schools were built in sections constructed over several years. The two were first opened in 1960. They are the district's two oldest junior high schools.

'Mortals, Immortals'

Topic At Churches

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of discussion in all Christian Science churches this Sunday. First Church of Christ, Scientist, Laurel & Marion streets, Des Plaines, invites everyone to come to its services which begin at 11 a.m. Sunday School for students to the age of 20 is held at 11 a.m. and a nursery is also available.

Wednesday evening meetings commencing at 8 p.m. are held weekly. Testimonies as to the healing, saving and guiding power of God as found in Christian Science are given by members of the congregation. The public is invited.

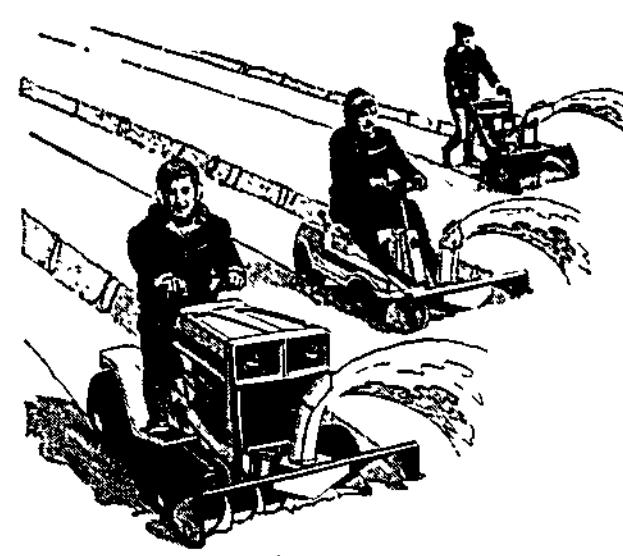

Ex-Patients At Forest Hospital Surveyed

The Forest Hospital Research Department is conducting a survey of discharged patients and their opinions about hospital care.

The telephone survey is under the supervision of Dr. Ronald Schwartz, clinical psychologist. Volunteers are trained to do phone interviews from prepared questionnaires. They also meet weekly to discuss their phone experiences and actively participate in the treatment evaluation process.

Anyone interested in volunteering to work on the study may contact Jim Seltzer at 827-8811, ext. 227, on Monday, Wednesday or Friday.

It May Be Quieter In County Soon

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Things are going to get quieter in Cook County beginning Nov. 16, if a new county anti-noise ordinance is as effective as intended.

The ordinance was formally adopted by the Cook County board yesterday, setting decibel levels on various sound sources, including cars, trucks and lawnmowers, and the hours of the day various levels will be allowed.

One of the first effects from the new ordinance is expected to result from reduced hours of operation for garbage scavengers.

The ordinance, which applies throughout the county, provides for fines of $25 to $500 and jail sentences of up to six months for violators.

The ordinance prohibits private scavenger firms from making trash pickups before 7 a.m., and after 6 p.m., not including time spent in transit.

Included in the ordinance is a section which categorically prohibits any distinct and loudly audible noise caused by crying, shouting, or calling or from any "whistle, rattle, bell, gong, clapper, hammer, drum, horn, hand organ, mechanically operated piano, musical instruments, radio, phonograph, sound amplifying equipment or similar electronic devices."

The new law also prohibits the use of any horn or audible signal device on any motor vehicle except as required by law.

The law establishes a schedule of the maximum allowable noise levels which will be permitted according to source and date of manufacture. It places restrictions on the manufacture and sale of products and equipment and also on the operation of the equipment.

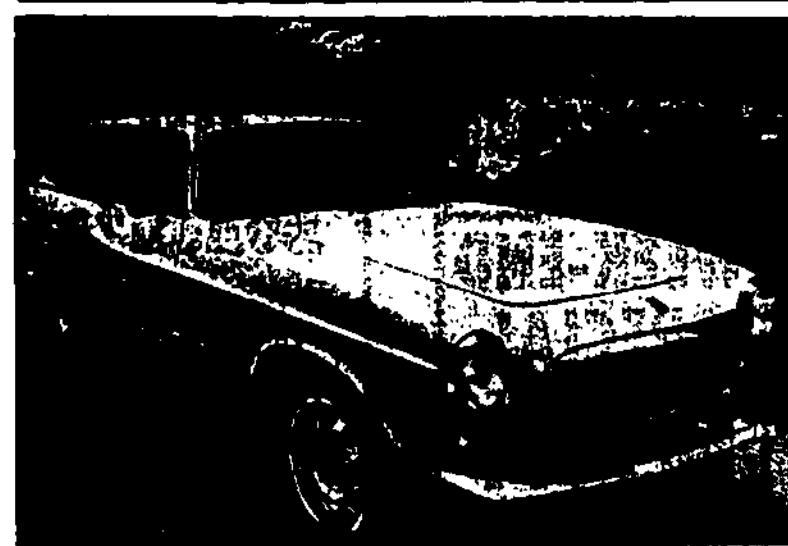

Included in the ordinance are noise levels which will be allowed on autos, trucks, motorcycles, snowmobiles, minibikes, buses, all construction and industrial equipment, power tools, lawnmowers, lawn tractors, engine-powered pleasure boats, dune buggies, trail bikes and go-carts.

The ordinance will be administrated and enforced by the Cook County Department of Environmental Control. It is reported to be similar, yet more stringent, than the existing ordinance in the City of Chicago.

Sam Booras, director of the county's environmental control department, said enforcement of the law will center on the manufacture and sale of products in the county. Booras said he expects the ordinance will be followed because many governmental units are adopting similar legislation and the manufacturers are cooperating with new restrictions.

Black Vote Beat Edward Hanrahan

by ROGER CAPOTTINI

A News Analysis

Like an old football knee injury, the vote from the black wards in the City of Chicago came back to haunt State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan Tuesday and gave his healthier opponent, Bernard Carey, an upset victory in their battle for the office.

In addition to knocking Hanrahan out of his immediate position, the disastrous blow from the once-solid Democratic wards may have ended Hanrahan's career and signaled the demise of the formerly all-powerful Democratic team.

While the official vote count on the bitterly contested race still is being tabulated, the unofficial totals indicate Carey managed the upset by combining heavy vote totals in his favor from most suburban and black precincts.

The key to Carey's surprise victory, however, came out of the black wards in Chicago.

A REVIEW of several black wards in the city indicated an enormous amount of ticket-splitting in what traditionally have been straight Democratic wards.

Those 14 predominantly black wards show how Carey won the battle and made Hanrahan's optimistic remarks of early Tuesday night "premature."

Carey was victorious in 10 of the 14, carrying Wards 2, 3, 6, 8, 16, 17, 20 and 21 by large majorities and the 29th by a slight edge.

Hanrahan early in the evening said he had reports from a key black ward that showed he would win. Unfortunately for the incumbent, he apparently was looking at one of the four he won, and two of those by a narrow margin.

Hanrahan carried the 24th and 27th Wards by a healthy majority, but won the 4th and the 28th Wards by only a few hundred votes each.

Incomplete returns from the 14 wards showed Carey with 132,642 votes to 83,492 for Hanrahan, or about 59 per cent for Carey to 41 per cent for Hanrahan.

WHILE MUCH of that vote would seem to have resulted from an intense dislike building for four years against Hanrahan, some part of it must be attributed to an increased awareness on the part of the blacks for their own best interests. They not only balked when it came to Hanrahan but crossed party lines in favor of Charles Percy.

At the same time, it was not a strictly anti-Democrat vote, as the voters of the same 14 black wards turned out for gubernatorial candidate Dan Walker, giving him 104,000 more votes than they gave Hanrahan.

With those votes still trickling in, many political observers have begun to speculate on whether the trend indicates the downfall of the Daley machine — that the Democratic ward committeemen can no longer control their voters.

While there exists much evidence to document that theory, there are other figures that should diminish the hopes of those who would like to see the machine collapse.

The Democratic machine had no trouble delivering the vote for Hanrahan in certain wards.

Among the 30 wards Hanrahan did carry were those headed by the likes of John D'Arco, Claude Holman and Vito Marzullo.

$1,100 Federal Grant For Driver Education

Maine North High School's driver education department recently received a federal grant of $1,100 to help implement a new driver education curriculum.

The grant, awarded by the Office of National Highway Safety to a total of eight Illinois high schools.

Maine North's driver education department is headed by project director Thomas, chairman of school's driver education department and former president of the Illinois High School and College Driver Education Association. Members of Maine North's driver education program who will participate in the study are Derril Kipp, Thomas LeStange, and Robert Mueller.

Martin Elected To Realty Board

Ralph H. Martin of Des Plaines, vice president of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, was elected secretary of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards at its recent convention.

The 56th annual meeting of the IAREB was held last month at Chicago's Marriott Hotel. Its purpose was to provide information and education on a number of real estate topics.

Martin served as chairman of the convention's promotion and ticket sales committee and as moderator for the "Coaches Conference" workshop. This session dealt with the problems facing real estate owners and managers.

Also during the convention, five Kunkel staff members were included among those who had attained sales of $1 million dollars or over in 1971 that were inducted into the IAREB Million Dollar Club Hall of Fame. They were John Bye, Ernie Schlanbusch, Woody Squassoni, Florence Villadonga and Kermit Williamson.

A SAMPLING of wards controlled by Daley Democrats shows tremendous margins of victory for Hanrahan. Hanrahan's strength was obvious in the following wards, with Democratic committeemen in parentheses: 1 (John Plotowski), 25 (Vito Marzullo), 26 (Matthew Bleaszczak), 31 (Tom Keane), 32 (Dan Rostenkowski), 38 (P. J. Cullerton), and 41 (Roman Pucinski).

Several of the wards lost to Carey were those whose Democratic committeemen, for a variety of reasons, may not have tried very hard for Hanrahan.

Three wards, for example, controlled by black Democratic committeemen delivered the vote for George McGovern, Dan Walker and Roman Pucinski, but not for Hanrahan. Those wards — the 2nd, 3rd and 29th — are headed by William Harvey, Ralph Metcalf and Cecil Partee respectively.

CAREY, AS expected, rolled up large margins in the county's suburban areas.

Co-Workers Are Married

When Marilyn Schultz of Elk Grove went to work for Automatic Data Processing in Chicago, she met the young man who was to become her husband. Of course neither Marilyn nor Steve V. Donaldson, who made his home in Des Plaines, knew at the time that Cupid was pairing them up.

The co-workers were married the afternoon of Oct. 14 in Queen of the Rosary Church, Elk Grove.

Steve's family, the V. Donaldsons, came from their home in Blairsville, Pa., for the festivities, and his brother Neal came from St. Louis to be an usher for the ceremony.

MARILYN is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schultz of Elk Grove. Her sister Patricia and a cousin, Donna Gallo of Melrose Park, were two of her bridesmaids; the other was Diane Edwards of Elk Grove. Phyllis Strong, also of Elk Grove, was maid of honor.

Steve chose Jim Waring of Des Plaines as best man and ushers included Marilyn's brother Edward, Ray Stein of Elk Grove, her cousin; and Tim Kachic, Melrose Park.

Anthony Schultz, 6-year-old brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

AS SHE WAS given in marriage, the bride wore an ivory peau de soie gown with apricot ribbon running through a band of lace at the high neck, on the cuffs of the long full sleeves and circling the Empire waistline. Her elbow-length veil was attached to a lace cap also trimmed with apricot ribbon. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and ivy on a prayerbook.

The bridal attendants were dressed in apricot and carried baskets of autumn flowers.

The newlyweds greeted 140 guests at a reception at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines. Then they left for a two-week honeymoon in Florida and are making their home in Des Plaines.

Marilyn is a graduate of Forest View High School and attended Harper College for a year.

Holiday Flower Lesson Tuesday

"Holiday Flower Arranging," is the topic of a lecture - demonstration which will be presented by the Chicago Horticultural Society at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday. The program will feature a luncheon for guests and will be held at the Botanic Garden, Edens Expressway between Dundee and Lake Cook roads.

Back by popular demand, Mrs. Anne Wertsner Wood, Swarthmore, Pa., will present Society members and guests with another in her series of flower arrangement demonstrations. She will offer tips on how to make the holiday season more decorative and enjoyable through the use of flowers. The arrangements created by Mrs. Wood will be auctioned following the demonstration.

Reservations for this program may be obtained by phoning Mrs. Fran Whittin, Chicago Horticultural Society, at 332-2868.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We have a huge stone fireplace in our family room which is quite dirty. I've been putting off cleaning it but I've procrastinated long enough and I'm wondering what is the best way to do this job. Any help will be appreciated. — Mrs. George H.

The size of the fireplace has probably scared you. Actually, stone isn't too difficult to clean. Readers claim to have had great success by using trisodium phosphate solutions or the commercial preparations made of this material. Start at the bottom, do a small area at a time and include a section over or next to the area you are working each time. It's wise to use rubber gloves. And if the room is carpeted, you know it is important that it be well protected.

Dear Dorothy: I don't make hollandaise sauce often but when I do, I'm left with the whites. Any simple suggestions on how to use them? — Florence B.

Depending on how ambitious you feel, there are angel food cake, nut kisses, meringues, divinity fudge, frosting and so on. Also, you should know that egg whites freeze beautifully. Store them in small containers with two, three or four whites in each — for ease in thawing.

Dear Dorothy: I should ask the doctor this, but I'm embarrassed. It sounds stupid. I'm supposed to put drops in my eyes and foul up the deal every single time. Is there some trick to it? — Elizabeth K.

Asked an eye doctor in your behalf. Said he: (1) Wash the hands well. (2) Sit in a chair, tilt your head back and stare at the ceiling. (3) Pull the lower lid down with a cotton ball or folded tissue, being careful not to touch the eye, and put the drop in. My own No. 4, easiest way, is to have somebody do it for you.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Childbirth Film At Area Hospital

Two showings of a film on the Lamaze method of childbirth will be offered at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. The first showing is at 8:30 tonight and the second will be at 10 Monday morning.

"The Story of Eric" will be presented by the Northern Illinois Chapter of the American Society for Psychoprophylaxis in Obstetrics with music written especially for the film. Highlights of classes demonstrating the techniques involved in preparation for childbirth are shown as well as the actual labor and delivery of one couple in the class. Both husband and wife are active participants in the events as they occur.

All expectant parents as well as the interested public are invited. A question and answer period will follow the film and a recently delivered couple who used the method will share their experience.

Further information is available from Mrs. George Levitt, 882-5556.

The other night I was watching "Gidget Goes Hawaiian" and saw Jimmy Darren. I think he is great! Will you tell me a little about him?

Mrs. L.M.
Arlington Heights

James Darren
James, a car buff all his teen years, ran the gamut of automobile names in his mind when it came time to choose a new name for the marques. His real name is James Ereolani. He finally chose Darren after his favorite car. The still-a-little shy, but also still smart-and-sassy-kid from South Philadelphia has a lot of experience and judgement to go with his career.

Darren is an actor, singer, businessman, husband, father, motorcycle and auto racer, composer and a real estate tycoon of substantial proportions. He believes in getting things done (as you can see from the above). "If you do your thing well, you'll be successful with plenty of time left to enjoy..." he says.

Jimmy is a frequent guest on all the major talk shows. He currently has a new single, "Bring Me Down Slow" in release and a new album and single (still untitled) set for future recording dates.

It is true—John has left the series. Evidently, he left of his own volition. This season will find only the doctor segment televised.

John, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., was born on Aug. 5, 1935. While he is not too tall (5'10 1/2"), he certainly projects his image to the fullest. Sorry, ladies, but Mr. Saxon is no longer a bachelor.

P.S.
Arlington Heights

Larry Hagman

Texas, in either Weatherford or Fort Worth, was Larry's birthplace. He is 41 years old now and has finally found his identity. For a time, he thought that he had no talent, but that everyone else did.

Larry attended Bard College and took drama. After a year, he decided that on the job experience was a 'better pathway than school', so he quit and went into repertory theatre and summer stock. Write to him c/o NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020.

I recently saw a movie with Larry 'Buster' Crabbe. I would like to know how old he is and where he was born. Where may I write to him and how many pictures has he been in?

W.T.K.
Palatine

Born in Oakland, Calif., in 1908, Buster made over 30 feature films during the thirties and forties. His public image shall probably always be that of 'Flash Gordon.' In the early fifties his CAPTAIN GALLANT OF THE FRENCH FOREIGN LEGION became a successful syndicated TV series. For a time he had an early morning exercise show.

Crabbe, who considered a career in law before he became an actor, has become very successful with his swimming pool business and a New York City stock brokerage firm of which he is a licensed representative.

The fan mail still pours in from around the world where Flash Gordon is playing in theaters and on TV. Most of it lately has been from the new African nation of Ghana. All the envelopes have to say Flash Gordon, U.S.A.

How did Jerry Lewis get started with muscular dystrophy?

S.F.
Arlington Heights

Jerry Lewis

While Jerry has been the national chairman of the MDAA for 21 years, he has never divulged why so much effort on his part has been made on behalf of muscular dystrophy. Jerry is one tremendous fund raiser—this year's total was well over the $9,000,000 mark. The first telethon in 1966 raised $1 million. Ours is not to question—but to commend!

When the Cleveland Browns meet the San Diego Chargers at San Diego Stadium, Leroy Kelly (No. 44) will lead the rushing attack. Kelly is the sixth leading rusher in the history of the National Football League and finished fourth in the NFC last year. He was also the second leading punt-returner in the league and number one in the American Conference, with a 9.7 average per return. Kelly and the Browns face the Chargers in their AFC contest on "NFL Monday Night Football," to air on the ABC Television Network, Monday, Nov. 13.

Kelly and the Browns face off with Mike Garrison's Chargers

The number one passing team in the National Football League in 1971, the San Diego Chargers, faces the Cleveland Browns in an American Football Conference game on the ABC Television Network's "NFL Monday Night Football" series, Monday, Nov. 13.

Frank Gifford, Don Meredith and Howard Cosell will be at the microphones in San Diego Stadium to report the clash.

The Chargers, in the tough Western Division of the AFC, perennially face the task of beating the Oakland Raiders and the Kansas City Chiefs for a playoff berth. The Central Division is always tight, with Cleveland battling Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Houston.

Cleveland's outstanding offensive threat is Leroy Kelly, the sixth leading rusher in NFL history and one of the few men ever to gain more than 5,000 yards in his career. He has been picked for the last five Pro Bowls and was the AFC's top punt-returner in 1971.

happily married hypochondriac, who imagines he has only a few weeks to live, enlists the aid of his neighbor and a friend to find a second husband for his wife.

6:30 44  Mother is a Freshman (C)
(1949) Loretta Young, Van Johnson. Mother and daughter become college rivals for attentions of a young professor.

7:30 (11)  Cabinet of Dr. Caligari (W)
(1919) This bizarre German silent film is about a magician, a sleep-walker, and a series of strange murders. As it develops, the film turns out to be a surrealistic odyssey into an insane asylum. Directed by Robert Wiene. Starring Werner Krauss and Conrad Veidt. Contemporary director Alfred Hitchcock is interviewed after the film.

8:00 (2)  Hornet's Nest (C)
(1970) Rock Hudson and Sylvia Kristel. A U.S. Army captain and a demolition crew parachute behind Nazi lines in Northern Italy to blow up a strategically vital dam. The Germans, however, are alerted and gun down the Americans as they land, with only the wounded captain escaping alive. Sergio Fantoni co-stars.

10:30 (2)  Poppy Is Also a Flower (C)

(1966) Senta Berger, Rita Hayworth, Yul Brynner, Marcello Mastroianni, Omar Sharif and a cast of international stars. Filmed over a four-month period in Nice, Monte Carlo, Naples, Rome, Tehran and the Iranian Desert, the film deals with the attempts of the police forces of many countries to locate the leader of a profitable narcotics ring. A special United Nations narcotics bureau helps organize the campaign by tracing the drugs across Europe to their source in the desert.

(9)  One Eyed Jacks (C)

(1961) Marlon Brando, Karl Malden. After prison term, an outlaw seeking a friend who betrayed him, finds him, now the sheriff of a small town. He pretends friendship so that he can pick his own means of revenge—the seduction of his step daughter.

12:30 1: Blancheville Monster (W)

(1962) Gerard Tichy, Joan Hills, and Leo Anchors. A young girl, daughter of a half mad count, seems doomed by a gloomy castle's superstition that her life must be sacrificed as fulfillment of an ancient family legend.

11:  Blood Rose (W)
(1970) Philippe Lemaire, Annie Duperey, Howard Vernon. An artist madly in love with his young wife, seeks to restore her beauty, destroyed by fire, in a chilling way.

12:45 (2)  Lisa (C)

(1962) Stephen Boyd and Dolores Hart. The story concerns a flight across Europe by a disturbed young Jewish refugee right after World War II and the aid she gets from a Dutch police officer who accidentally teams up with her.

1:00 (7)  Days of Glory (W)

(1944) Tamara Toumanova, Gregory Peck, Alan Reed. Russian guerrillas help beat back the Nazis.

1:05 (5)  The Tramplers (C)

(1966-Italian, dubbed) Joseph Cotten, James Mitchum. Foreign-made western set in post-Civil War South.

1:15 (9)  Paradise Canyon (W)

(1935) A government agent is assigned by his superiors to run down a counterfeiting gang supposed to be operating around traveling medicine shows: the solution to the mystery is climaxed in a deserted mine shaft. John Wayne and Marion Burns.

2:55 (2) * The Star (W)

(1953) Bette Davis and Sterling Hayden. A fading movie queen must choose between a comeback and real love.

On the Cover

Walton's get the green light for the rest of this season

Of all the new programs on TV this season, the most critically-acclaimed has been "The Waltons," a series depicting the life of an Appalachian family living during the Depression. The show, based on last year's Christmas special "The Homecoming" written by Earl Hamner, has been given the green light for the entire season, thus overcoming the fears of many who thought the show may face mid-season cancellation due to its competition from other programming. On our cover, three stars of "The Waltons"—young Richard Thomas, who portrays John-Boy Walton, and veteran character actors Ellen Corby and Will Geer, who play the grandparents. "The Waltons" are seen on Thursday evenings on the CBS Television Network. Columnist Jay Allen recently talked with Richard Thomas during a break in "The Waltons" shooting. That column is featured elsewhere in this issue.

SATURDAY

Elizabeth Montgomery makes her first TV dramatic appearance in nine years as a young woman trapped in an isolated house by a violent storm, unaware that she is the next target for an unknown killer in "The Victim," a suspense thriller airing on the ABC Television Network's "Tuesday Movie of the Week," Tuesday, Nov. 14.

Also starring in the 90-minute drama are George Maharis, Eileen Heckart, Sue Anne Langdon and Jess Walton.

In "The Victim," wealthy Katherine Wainwright (Miss Montgomery) braves a violent storm to travel to her sister's secluded estate after the sister, Susan (Miss Walton), telephones to say that she is filing for a divorce. Katherine does not know that after their conversation, Susan was murdered and her body hidden.

When Katherine arrives and can find no trace of Susan or her husband, Ben, she becomes worried. The housekeeper, Mrs. Hawks (Miss Heckart) can offer no help except to say that Ben is on a business trip.

Katherine's concern turns into fear as the storm intensifies and both the electricity and the phone are mysteriously cut off. Suddenly Ben (Maharis) returns home, hoping to reconcile with Susan. He, too, has no explanation for her disappearance. Trapped now by the storm, Katherine is unaware Susan's killer has been waiting for an opportunity to make her the next victim.

'See Tom run and hide!'

Turkey in the 'Treetop'

By Karen Johnson
Managing Editor

While most of television stars do a little strutting when the cameras roll, one of the guests that Tasha Johnson will welcome into Channel 9's "Treetop House" on November 18 at 8am will really outdo himself.

"Tom" a 55-pound turkey who hails from the Ho Ka Turkey Farms in Waterman, Illinois, recently joined the lady from Beloit and four little pilgrims for a taping of the Thanksgiving special.

The four little folks were most congenial as the taping progressed...but Tom?

The group had just returned from a magic trip to the "Ice Follies" where they met Peggy Fleming when Tasha announced that they were about to meet a "real live turkey."

Now there are turkeys who are and turkeys who aren't. This one was....CAMERA SHY. While Tom's traveling companion assured Miss Johnson and the kids that, "All turkeys love people," this particular bird hid behind everything available. Cameras stopped and the crew went into action. It was "catch the turkey time." Feathers flew, kids giggled, grown men tripped over camera cords, and Tom led all a merry chase.

Finally deciding to forsake the role of prima donna he settled down to the birdly business of poking around like a good bird. And the control booth had to go back to work.

Perhaps tho. Tom had a reason for his unstable performance. For at the base of the "Tree" sat a large frozen gobbler, all ready to be popped into the oven.

That's why folks, when turkeys visit television facilities, filming are bound to take, a little more production time, a little more patience.

At the end of the two-hour-session Tasha still had the same smile she started out with. As she said goodbye she called out, "The show airs November 18. Be sure to watch."

A Brooklyn-born southpaw takes revenge with a gun

Paul Newman stars in "The Left Handed Gun," exciting drama of Billy Bonney, better known as Billy the Kid, on "The CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, Nov. 15, on the CBS Television Network. John Dehner, who portrays Doris Day's employer on "The Doris Day Show" on the Network, plays the role of Pat Garrett in this black and white film.

In the West of the 1880s, Brooklyn-born Billy the Kid (Newman) vows to kill a sheriff and three other men responsible for the murder of rancher Turnstall (Colin Keith-Johnston) who had befriended him. Enlisting the aid of two trail companions, Charlie (James Congdon) and Tom (James Best), he takes revenge on two of the four murderers. Billy then escapes to Mexico, where he becomes romantically involved with Celsa (Lita Milan), the wife of a gunsmith. When the romance is discovered, he is forced to flee Mexico. With his buddies, Billy then resumes his original plan of vengeance.

Better to be fast and fat and not fancy

Kathy Glass, of NBC-TV's "Return to Peyton Place," has a special recipe for a quick spaghetti dinner. "I cook up some noodles and mix in some tomato soup," she reveals. "It's not fancy, but it's sure fast."

The 17-year-old Walton

Young Richard Thomas, who stars as "John Boy" in the highly-acclaimed new CBS series "The Waltons," likes to relate his real life to the role he depicts as the eldest son of a Blue Ridge mountain family living during the Depression.

However, the New York City-born actor's only real claim to any similarity with "John Boy" is the fact that he does have relatives in the Virginia-Tennessee-Kentucky foothills. His grandfather, a Kentucky miner who later became a judge saw his son—Richard Sr.—become a ballet dancer.

AS A RESULT, the young Thomas was born into a show business family. His mother, a ballerina, and the elder Richard Thomas now operate the New York School of Ballet. From there, they hear frequently from their son, whose role in "The Waltons" will undoubtedly prove a major boost in the young actor's career.

For Thomas, 21, the rigors of doing a regular series has interrupted his somewhat diversified lifestyle. Already a "veteran" of Broadway, movies and TV (his first professional appearance was "in my early sixes," he says), Thomas has been on the "Walton" set from 8:30 a.m. to early evening.

Speaking via phone during a break in the Hollywood-based shooting, Thomas told me he "immensely enjoys the characterization challenges posed by the John-Boy part." The shaggy-haired actor was more familiar with his Waltons role than others in the series cast, however, since he starred opposite Patricia Neal in "The Homecoming," the 1971 CBS Christmas special from which "The Waltons" was created.

THE TV SERIES maintains the sensitive emotion of the family situation, with its tenderness and love. The role as the 17-year-old John Boy differs from most of the parts young Thomas has had, which have ranged from numerous guest shots on TV series to motion pictures. Thomas, whose first movie was "Winning," is especially excited over his latest effort, an offbeat, contemporary mystery entitled "You'll Like My Mother." In it, Thomas co-stars with Patty Duke and portrays a fugitive rapist-murderer.

Talking with Thomas, one gets the impression that the actor is educated well beyond the level of most 21-year-olds. Interested in languages, Thomas has studied Mandarin Chinese and hopes to next tackle the Persian tongue. Besides being an avid reader, Thomas also enjoys such things as writing poetry and screenplays, practicing ballet, breeding dogs, and photography.

"I would really like to write more than I get a chance to," Thomas admits, and adds that he would jump at the chance to do some Shakespearian roles. "Richard III would be great to portray," Thomas says.

FOR NOW, though, "The Waltons" is taking the lion's share of his time. While the show is probably the most critically-praised new show of the season, its early ratings haven't been sensational. However, taking its time slot into consideration—programmed opposite the popular Flip Wilson (NBC) and "The Mod Squad" (ABC)—the show has done well enough and is probably destined for a new position at mid-season.

"I realize the whole idea of television is for programs to make money," Thomas admitted, "But this show..." His voice trailed off as to say the same thing many critics have claimed. Sometimes, a program's low ratings do not necessarily mean its quality is sub-par.

That's definitely the case with this excellent show. And while a fellas named Richard Thomas will make it big regardless of "The Waltons" fate, the program deserves to stay on the air.
